DECISION REACHED ON STATE RELIEF

Today

Florida's Good Law.
How Does Russia Do It?
Mr. Sinclair's Book.
They Still Bootleg.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FLORIDA WILL SOON vote on a matter important to her and other states, namely on the suggestion to exempt from taxation all homesteads up to $5,000 in value.

Col. Frank B. Shutts, whose newspaper, The Miami Herald, supports the $5,000 tax exemption law, passing through New York yesterday, said he believed that Florida taxpayers would approve the law.

This writer has frequently recommended such a law on the ground that fathers and mothers should not be taxed for having a family, that they should at least have a roof over their heads and a small piece of ground that no collection could take from them.

THE $5,000 HOMESTEAD tax exemption law will increase enormously Florida's prosperity by bringing more population, more spending power. Florida could easily support fifty millions of people and large Florida property owners who would object to the homestead law should realize that it would greatly increase Florida real estate values. When you have more people spending more money, land is worth more.

FIVE YEARS after passing the tax exemption law, Florida would find real estate values doubled, and Florida's prosperity greatly increased, with other states imitating Florida. Schools where children are educated are tax free, churches built to save souls are tax free, as they should be.

The small homes in which the children and souls are produced and protected should be tax free also. A father and mother should be able to say to each other and to the children:

"At least this roof, this house, this little piece of earth are ours and forever, free from any tax-collector's grip."

ALL THE REAL state advertising ever written would not be worth to Florida one-tenth as much as the simple statement:

"Invest $5,000 in a Florida home, and live, free of taxation forever."

Florida for good reason should remember that it would also mean:

"Come to Florida to spend your income."

WILL ROGERS, stopping over in Moscow, amazed, sends this message to various Hearst newspapers:

"Writers are Russia's richest people. Maxim Gorky's royalties last year were seven million rubles. I am trying to learn to write Russian."

Mr. Rogers, who does not lack business sense, might enjoy writing in Russian more than being paid in Russian rubles.

APART FROM THAT, how do you suppose Russia manages her affairs so well that Rogers reports:

"I never saw so many buildings going up in my life?"

Not only has Russia no unemployed, but everybody, man or woman, able to work is compelled to work. Nobody is paid by government to "go through the motions" of working, standing by the roadside pulling up one weed every five minutes, or listlessly swinging a broom where no sweeping is needed.

IN RUSSIA they don't plough any cotton under; on the contrary they are planning, as are England and other countries, to produce more cotton than ever, in order to seize the foreign cotton trade that this country must relinquish under "regulated prices" and diminished crops.

Russia, far from drowning thousands "little unborn pigs," with their "farrow sow" mothers, saves and raises and fattens every little pig, lavishing tender care on every pig mother.

Do you suppose those "Russian Bolsheviks" could by any chance have some plan better than our "new era" plan? Perish the thought, but could it be possible?

THOSE WHO EXPECT to vote for Upton Sinclair, nominated by the Democrats for Governor of California, will be interested in this paragraph from his book, called "I, Governor of California," in which Mr. Sinclair maps out his course, if, and when, elected Governor. Announcing his intention to pardon Thomas Mooney, sentenced to life imprisonment on conviction of throwing bombs, killing men and women marching in the San Francisco pre-

ROOSEVELT THREATS JAIL MAN

Held for Kidnap Note Against President And Grandchildren

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—A clumsy letter threatening harm to President Roosevelt and his grandchildren has put Benjamin Franklin Varn, 33, in jail on a charge of violating the Lindbergh law.

The letter was addressed to Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House. It said that unless she paid $168,000, "Buzzie" and "Sistie" Dall, children of the President's daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, and the baby daughter of Elliott Roosevelt would be kidnaped, and that injury would be inflicted on the President.

The letter writer included in the kidnap note a telephone number where he could be reached. It was that of the William Sloane House branch of the Y. M. C. A. in New York where Varn had been living and where he was arrested.

Varn described himself as a former machinist in the Naval Aviation Corps and said he was a resident of Charleston, S. C.

The threatening letter was signed "by order of Zangara." It was Guiseppe Zangara who shot at Mr. Roosevelt in Miami in February, 1933, but who hit Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago, instead, causing his death.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park expressed surprise when informed of the threatening letter and Varn's arrest.

Roosevelt Threat Suspect Victim of Head Injury

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 31.—(INS.)—A blow on the head by an airplane propeller when he was an aviation mechanic's mate, second class, stationed at the Navy air station in Pensacola, Fla., in 1921, caused Benjamin Franklin Varn, held for threatening to kidnap the Roosevelt grandchildren, to become mentally deficient, his brother, John D. Varn, of Charleston, said today.

John Varn, who expressed astonishment when he heard of his brother's plight, said Benjamin had never "seemed right" since the accident.

William Donner Roosevelt Sleeps, Safe from Harm

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—While the nation throbbed with news of a kidnap threat against three of President Roosevelt's grandchildren, a fourth grandchild slept in his crib here unguarded.

He is the President's second grandson, William Donner Roosevelt, 21-month-old son of the first marriage of Elliott Roosevelt.

His name was not mentioned in the kidnap "plot" against his half-sister, Ruth Chandler Roosevelt, Elliott's daughter by his second marriage; and "Buzzie" and "Sistie" Dall.

His mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt, of Villa Nova, said:

"We are not worried here, my baby is safe and well."

Elliott Roosevelt married Elizabeth Donner in January, 1932. She received a divorce decree in July, 1933, and he remarried soon after.

GIRL THWARTS KIDNAPER

Police today were searching for a phantom figure whom Miss Arline Dailey, 25, daughter of City Detective Guy Dailey, charges with two attempts to abduct her last night from her home at 302 Warrington avenue.

Miss Dailey said she was walking in the back yard of her home about dusk. Suddenly, she declared, a man sprang up from a bed of flowers, gagged her by clapping his hand over her mouth, and attempted to drag her away.

She fought, broke loose and screamed, Miss Dailey said. At this the phantom intruder fled.

About midnight, some hours after the police had left, Miss Dailey said she saw the mysterious figure lurking about her home again.

Miss Dailey said she believed the kidnaping attempt was the result of assistance she had given to police in dope cases a year ago.

THIRD BARRY REPORT DUE

The report on the investigation of the death of John W. Barry, former police and detective inspector, was to be made today to the Coroner's office by Lieut. Franklin T. McQuaide, of the homicide division.

Lieut. McQuaide insisted his investigation had found the shooting to be an accident, with no evidence to support any theory of suicide or foul play.

Edward J. Brophy, former police superintendent and long-time friend of Barry, who lived at the Barry home in Halket street, Oakland, conferred more than an hour with McQuaide, Chief Deputy Coroner John S. Aldisert and Deputy James E. Carroll in McQuaide's office yesterday. After the conference, held behind closed doors, it was announced that McQuaide would make his report on Barry's death to Coroner W. J. McGregor today.

There were indications that Mrs. Frances King Barry, the widow, may be summoned to the Coroner's office today for a conference.

McQuaide would not disclose the subject of the talk with Brophy. He revealed that a roofer working in the vicinity of the Barry home, August 15, when Barry's body, a bullet wound in the head, was found in the garage in the rear of his home, had been questioned, but declined to divulge what the roofer had told him. The roofer was said to have been one of the first persons who entered the Barry garage in answer to Mrs. Barry's screams.

Elizabeth Palfrey, Tennis Star, Weds

SHARON, Mass., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Miss Elizabeth Howland Palfry, one of the Palfrey sisters of tennis fame, and Dr. Harold Williams Fullerton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander S. A. Fullerton, of Aberdeen, Scotland, were married in the Unitarian Church here yesterday.

Ironic Mural of New Deal Ruined by Acid Thrower

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—A young unnaturalized Russian was arrested today after he had ruined, with flaming acid, the ironic mural of the New Deal, hung here in the exhibit of the Westchester Institute of Fine Arts.

The man gave his name as John Thompson, 26, 1047 Home street, the Bronx. He said his only reason for attacking the lampoon painting, "Nightmare of 1934," was to efface the portion which caricatured Mrs. Roosevelt.

He was held on a charge of malicious mischief.

The picture was burned by naptha flames in three places and will not be rehung, it was announced.

HOLDUP CASH BARED BY MURDER

WARREN, O., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—New Jersey State Police today identified $16,000 in currency found at the roadhouse of Elmer E. Martin, near here, as part of the $130,000 taken February 3 by four men in a holdup of bank messengers at Penns Grove, N. J.

Martin is being held in jail here pending further questioning concerning the slaying Tuesday night of Charles Campbell, 48, of Tucson, Ariz. He was not identified by the New Jersey officers, however, as having had any connection with the $130,000 robbery.

IN COPPER BOX

The money found in Martin's roadhouse was in a copper box, soldered shut. It was in $5, $10 and $20 bills, and was identified through the serial numbers.

Police investigating the slaying said fingerprints of Martin show he twice served terms in Pennsylvania prisons for robbery, and has subsequently been a fugitive from justice.

Campbell was shot Tuesday night on a downtown street here when he stepped in front of a gun which, police said, was aimed at his brother, James, 43.

A bullet passed through Charles Campbell's chest, and then struck and seriously wounded James. Chief Gillen said the shooting was preceded by a quarrel at Martin's roadhouse, but were unable to decide of a complete explanation.

SERVED IN PENNA. PEN

The money was discovered by postoffice inspectors and bank detectives.

The fingerprint records, Chief Gillen said, showed Martin, under the name of Willard Williams, was sent to the Western Penitentiary in Pennsylvania, June 25, 1920, for seven to 11 years on conviction of highway robbery. He was paroled in 1924, but on July 11, 1925 was confined there again for an indefinite term for robbery and possession of stolen goods.

The same man, the police chief said, was subsequently sought as "W. G. Williams, for a robbery at Bellefonte, Pa.

Investigations of the slaying have not revealed any explanation from Martin as to the source of the money, and the saying also is shrouded in mystery.

Riot Ties Up Downtown Traffic

Traffic in Liberty avenue at Perry street was tied up and a crowd of 1,000 gathered this afternoon as two men attacked and beat two employes of Swift & Co., packers.

The assailants were believed to be striking meat truck drivers.

A riot call brought 25 patrolmen and detectives to the scene, but the assailants escaped.

Buffeted by Sea On Stolen Sloop

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Hyman Shapiro, 26, is being held on charges of stealing a sloop.

One day at sea worked hardship on Shapiro, who says he is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. He suffered from exposure so much that he was taken to a hospital.

President's Letter Cheers Boy in 'Lung'

OAKLAND, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—An unexpected letter, signed Franklin D. Roosevelt, today brought cheer to Raymond Rambo, 17, as he started his one hundred and twenty-third day in an "iron lung" at a hospital here.

The youth, a victim of infantile paralysis, is being kept alive by the artificial breathing device.

REAL ESTATE FEE PROBE LOOMS

Council Asked to Sift McNair-Moritz Part In Reappraisals

The searchlight of investigation appeared certain today to be turned on Mayor W. N. McNair and his secretary, Theodore L. Moritz, in connection with the reappraisal of two properties by West S. Brown, real estate expert.

Budget Controller Edward A. Schofield, completing an inquiry into the circumstances, announced he had written a letter to Council embodying his findings and asking for an investigation. This request will come before Council Tuesday.

Council is expected to acquiesce, as that body originally held up payment of a $1,750 bill submitted by Brown for the reappraisals.

SCULLY ENTERS FRAY

Fuel was added to the fire today when former City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully declared that to the best of his knowledge there was not the slightest necessity for a reappraisal of the properties. He said:

"The only excuse for a reappraisal would be a desire to show some one a favor."

Scully added that if he is summoned before Council he will testify regarding the appraisals.

One of the properties involved is at Bigelow boulevard and Webster avenue, the other in Brookline boulevard. Both are in the line of street widening projects contemplated by the city.

COUNCIL MYSTIFIED

What Schofield and members of Council cannot understand, they say, is why a reappraisal should have been necessary when realty agents engaged by the city already had made detailed esti-

Tardy Uncle Fails To Foil Elopers

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 31.—"Stop that marriage," shouted an uncle of Evelyn Olga O'Connell, of Warwood, at 2 a. m. today as she stood before the Rev. William Frayer with Jack Murray Ednie. Replied the minister:

"I'm sorry, but you're too late."

The uncle's tardiness was due to a door locked by the minister's son, Milton Frayer, who drives a taxicab and pilots prospective brides and bridegrooms through the mysteries of Gretna Green marriages.

Wiley Post Delays Stratosphere Flight

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—(INS.)—Wiley Post, globe-trotting aviator, today postponed his proposed flight into the stratosphere in his monoplane, the Winnie Mae, for a new world's altitude record. Post said that weather conditions were not favorable for the flight.

Explaining by Air

GEORGE H. EARLE

Mr. Earle, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee who tonight at 8 o'clock, daylight saving time, goes on the radio in a three-station hook-up (KDKA in Pittsburgh) to explain to "Pennsylvania's voters" why he refused and didn't attend today's relief conference.

DOUG SAYS IT WITH ORCHIDS

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Douglas Fairbanks said it with orchids when Mary Pickford flew from Los Angeles she said upon her arrival today, but she declined to disclose what significance lay behind the presentation.

The film star maintained reticence regarding a possible reconciliation with her actor husband in spite of a mysterious long distance telephone call which awaited her arrival at the Blackstone Hotel.

The actress flew into Chicago at dawn and left a few hours later with Maj. James H. Doolittle in a plane for the Cleveland air races, where she will award the Vincent Bendix trophy. She said:

She wore a sport costume including a brown suede coat and hat to match and a scarlet neckerchief.

Miss Pickford said her next film venture would be a production of Eddy Goulding's "The Flame Within," but she won't act in it.

HOPKINS DUE TO REVEAL VERDICT

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The conference between Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, and Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, over Pennsylvania relief problems ended at 1:25 o'clock this afternoon with all parties declining to discuss what occurred.

Hopkins said that he would make a statement later this afternoon and Gov. Pinchot said that he would be present when the relief administrator issued his statement.

The conference started at noon in an effort to formulate a plan for relief work in Pennsylvania without calling a special session of the Legislature.

TO ANNOUNCE DECISION

Accompanying Gov. Pinchot were Eric H. Biddle, Pennsylvania state relief administrator; William A. Schnader, Attorney General and Republican nominee for Governor, and M. Harvey Taylor, Republican state chairman.

As they left the conference room, Hopkins said that the conference was over. Schnader nodded his head in confirmation of Hopkins' statement.

Gov. Pinchot remarked:

"Whatever Hopkins says is all right."

The meeting was intended to be a non-partisan one for discussion of the relief crisis by Republican and Democratic leaders, but George H. Earle, Democrat gubernatorial nominee, and David Lawrence, state Democratic chairman, insist on a special General Assembly session instead.

Earle is "confident," he told Gov. Pinchot in a telegram from Wilkes-Barre last night, that Democratic legislators would serve without pay and "Republican legislators can do no less."

Gov. Pinchot left Harrisburg by airplane this morning.

The meeting was held without Earle.

Mrs. Pinchot Here, Silent on Relief

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot was in Pittsburgh to visit the County Fair. She refused to discuss the state relief situation or the possibility of a special session of the Legislature. She will leave tonight for Milford, where she will join the Governor.

Baby Born at Fair, Officer Aids Stork

Sergt. U. S. Madden, of the Allegheny County Police, stationed at South Park, played assistant to the stork today.

At a parking lot near the fair grounds a baby boy was born to Mrs. Herbert McDade, of Belle Vernon, Pa., a visitor at the park. A physician was summoned and, with Sergt. Madden's assistance, ushered the impromptu visitor into the world. The mother and son then were taken home and both were reported doing nicely.

Siamese Quintuplet Cats Killed by Fall

GULFPORT, Miss., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Instinct of the mother cat to carry her kittens out of the house by the nape of the neck led to the deaths of the "Siamese" feline quintuplets which had been on exhibition in Mississippi City.

Attempting to sneak the quintuplets out of the house yesterday, the cat leaped a fence and dropped her offspring. Two of the freak kitties were killed. The owners applied the mercy stroke to the other three.

McNair to Ask Vatican Ruling for Father Cox

Putting up to the legal department of the Vatican the question of Father James R. Cox holding a job as city assessor.

A visit to the Pope, who won't be asked to decide on the Cox matter.

A meeting in New York with Harold Lloyd, film actor who played the part of a mayor who upset a political machine in a recent picture viewed by His Honor.

Shortly after his arrival at City Hall today the mayor said he had torn up Father Cox's resignation and added:

"Council President Bob Garland says it's against the canons of the church for a priest to hold a city job. I am going to spend four days in Rome and will take it up with the legal department of the Vatican.

"If they say it's not contrary to church law, I will insist on a vote on Father Cox' appointment in Council."

The Mayor plans to leave on his trip to France and Italy at 11 p. m. tonight with Mrs. McNair. When the train leaves Pennsylvania Station, Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston will automatically become deputy mayor—McNair appointed him yesterday.

Office attaches said that Joseph (Boze) Lavery, former detective and former Republican, will not accompany the Mayor in the triple capacity as bodyguard, chaperon and baggage handler. But Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's secretary of many jobs, will drive to New York to see his chief off on the Conte di Savoie.

VIOLENCE FLARES AS STRIKE ZERO HOUR APPROACHES

WOMEN WATCH KILLER DIE BY GAS

International News Service.

FLORENCE, Ariz., Aug. 31.—Louis F. Douglass, 40, Astoria, N. Y., was executed in the lethal gas chamber at the state prison here at 12:40 a. m. today for the "gold nugget" murders of two grizzled prospectors, John Nayden, 74, and Ralph Hart, 64, on February 6, 1933.

Douglass walked into the "tomb of death that comes in the scent of almond blossoms" with a smile on his lips.

The temperature yesterday was 105 degrees.

"It won't be so hot where I'm going."

That was his quip to newspapermen as guards prepared to lead him to the execution chamber.

WOMEN SEE EXECUTION

Two women viewed the execution, the first of their sex ever to witness a gas execution in the United States, and the first to view an execution here since Eva Dugan, murderess, was decapitated while being hanged in 1929.

Identities of the two women could not be learned. Warden A. G. Walker, however, was considerably disturbed when advised the pair had slipped unnoticed by guards into the crowd of 55 men witnesses.

Douglass' sister, Mrs. Bessie McQuisten, El Cerrito, Cal., and her 18-year-old daughter, Delma, were with him during the last 16 hours of his life, but they were denied permission to witness his execution.

LAST NOTE TO WIFE

His steel prison tank cell was stifling during the hours preceding the execution and Douglass drank more than a dozen bottles of ice-cold ginger ale. He ate little.

He was the first "midnight victim" of Arizona's gas chamber. Warden Walker explained:

"It was the humane thing to do, not making Douglass wait until sunrise."

Walker revealed that Douglass' last note was to his estranged wife, who is critically ill in a Jamaica Park (Long Island, N. Y.) hospital.

Three Hours to Live, Gets Reprieve of Week

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Alphonse Brengard, after smoking what he thought was his last cigar before going to the electric chair, now has another week to live.

An anonymous letter, naming another man as the slayer of Patrolman John F. Kennedy and advising authorities to seek a "gangster moll" as well, brought Brengard a reprieve last night, less than three hours before he was to die.

Brengard, himself a former state trooper, was convicted of murder for the shooting of Patrolman Kennedy July 22, 1928, near Woodmere, Long Island. The wounded officer remained alive, though paralyzed, until July, 1932, when he died after surviving 13 operations.

SUMMER BACK FOR WEEK END

Summer was returning today after a two-day interruption by a record August cold spell.

The mercury fell to 54 this morning, eight degrees above yesterday's all time low for that date, but began rising rapidly. It was expected to hover around 80 late today.

The weather bureau, however, cast an apprehensive eye towards the far northwest where freezing temperatures were reported today.

Evelyn Laye, Lawton Deny Nuptials

EVELYN LAYE

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Evelyn Laye and Frank Lawton, stage and screen players, arrived here on the same train but denied they had been married in the east.

They were non-committal about the future.

Miss Laye, British actress, was called back to Hollywood from London to play opposite Ramon Novarro in "The Night is Young." Lawton comes to the film capital to play the title role in "David Copperfield."

Sentenced for Role In Labatt Kidnaping

TORONTO, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Edward Chard today was sentenced to imprisonment of 18 months definite and six months indeterminate after being found guilty of attempting to steal $5,000 in connection with the recent kidnaping of John Labatt, wealthy London brewer.

Chard was alleged to have demanded the money in a telephone conversation with Hugh Labatt, brother of the kidnaped man.

BANKS GRANTED MORE TIME

Dr. William D. Gordon, Secretary of Banking, today granted an extension of time to Decemeber 31 for banks operating on a restricted basis under the Sordoni Act. The previous extension granted by the banking department was to have expired tomorrow.

Dr. Gordon said that, of the 49 banks unlicensed on [illegible]ber 31, 1933, when the last ex[illegible] was granted, all except six [illegible]ve completed reorganization plans and have reopened for regular business. He continued:

"The remaning six banks operating on a restricted basis as of August 21, 1934, have progressed sufficiently with the formulation of reorganization plans to warrant an extension of time to enable them to complete these plans.

"In each instance the Banking Department has worked out an approved plan of reorganization."

Many Bank Claim Checks Uncashed

Hundreds of dividend checks from closed banks in Pittsburgh and throughout the state remain uncashed by the depositors who got them, the State Department of Banking announced today.

Checks totaling more than $500,000 so far are unclaimed, Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, declared. This money is owned by 265,883 depositors in the state, he added.

Tardy Jurist Calms Lupe's Wrath

LUPE VELEZ

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Lupe Velez, fiery Mexican screen star, believes Superior Judge Leon Yankwich "a veree nice man" because he upheld her contention that a dispute over a $5,000 salary check should be placed before the Academy of Motoin Picture Arts and Sciences for arbitration.

Miss Velez in court yesterday related it was a little more than a week ago that she tried unsuccessfully to cash the check, given her by the Rowland Productions, Inc., which, their attorneys claim, stopped payment when Miss Velez failed to appear for her role.

Miss Velez, when she entered court, was upset and expressed her feelings accordingly. She was particularly annoyed because the judge was late. She stormed:

"Soo, he ees late, ees he?

"Thaire ess no excuse! I was at the wrestling match last night, watching beeg steef try to keel each other, and I get up airly to come down here jus' the same!"

But she was placated when the judge, after his arrival, decided against the film company's contention that the check dispute was a court matter and left it up to the academy, as Lupe desired.

BAR TO PROBE NEW DEAL POLICIES

Clash on Roosevelt Marks National Convention

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 31—(AP.)—The American Bar Association meeting here today, is in favor of an investigation of the effects of New Deal legislation and policies.

In a viva voce vote the association in national convention here approved a resolution instructing its next president to appoint a committee for the investigation.

Meanwhile, the general council nominated Scott M. Loftin, of Jacksonville, Fla., for the presidency and William P. McCracken, Jr., Washington, for re-election as secretary. General Council nominees have customarily been elected by the bar delegates.

The council's approval of MacCracken came in the face of demands by some delegates that he resign as secretary because of his connection with the recent air mail litigation. McCracken, a former assistant secretary of commerce, was found in contempt of the United States Senate, but was later freed in court.

CLASH ON ROOSEVELT

The resolution, aimed at the New Deal, was drawn by the general council after being proposed by George L. Buist, of Charleston, S. C., a Democrat, and seconded by Charles E. Lane, of Cheyenne, Wyo., a Republican.

It was approved by the executive committee and then sent before the convention.

Although the resolution was approved without debate, the association heard its first open controversy over the merits of the Roosevelt administration. Several members assailed a committee report on administrative law on the ground that it constituted an attack upon President Roosevelt.

The resolution for an investigation of the New Deal pointed to "rapid development in recent months of novel legislation and governmental trends affecting the rights and liberties of American citizens."

URGES CHANGE

The committee will make its report to the 1935 convention.

The section of the report on administration law which evoked protest and debate asked authority for a committee to confer with government officials and congressional committees to obtain action on the committee's conclusions, as listed in the report.

The principal conclusion was that judicial functions should be withdrawn from Federal administrative bodies and placed in a federal administrative court. The report cited the judicial functions which it said have been delegated to the Secretary of Agriculture, the administrative bodies of the AAA and the NIRA.

JOHNSON PLANS NO STAGE EXIT

International News Service.

BETHANY BEACH, Del., Aug. 31.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson is not going to make a dramatic exit from his post as NRA administrator. He made this clear in an exclusive interview with International News Service here today.

On the contrary, Gen. Johnson declared, he is taking a two-weeks' rest cure so that he can go back to Washington and crack down on chiselers.

However, he still believes the NRA is more than a one-man job and thinks President Roosevelt should name a committee to administer it. He added:

"I've been trying to get out of this one-man role for the last six months, but the President just doesn't want me to go.

"But don't get the idea from this that there has been any fuss kicked up, as published stories said, and that I had a run-in with 'Perky' (Secretary of Labor Perkins) or Richberg."

(Copyright, 1934, International News Serv.)

Denies She Advised Exit by Johnson

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Miss Frances Robinson, administrative assistant to Hugh S. Johnson, today denied published reports (not carried by the Associated Press) that shee had counseled the NRA chief to make a dramatic exit from the recovery administration.

"Gen. Johnson has a mind of his own and a strong one and he certainly doesn't need any counsel from a little stick like me. There is no truth to the reports."

SURVEY SHOWS 36.5 P. C. HERE JOBLESS

14 Per Cent Working Only Part Time, Says Report

Of Allegheny County's 344,187 workers, 32.4 per cent were unemployed in February of this year according to statistics released today by the Department of Research and Statistics of the State Emergency Relief Board.

The report showed that Pittsburgh had the highest percentage of unemployed, 36.5 per cent. Another 14 per cent had only part-time employment.

The survey revealed a smaller population for Pittsburgh than that shown by the 1930 census. The population in February was given as 648,507 as compared with 669,817 in April, 1930, a decrease of 3.2 per cent.

The following table showing the percentage of unemployed workers was given:

Cities.
Pittsburgh	36.5
Clairton	23.8
Duquesne	28.9
McKeesport	29.4
Boroughs and unincorporated communities	27.9

The survey revealed 415,446 native white workers, who constituted 76.3 per cent of the employable population. Of these 132,436 or 31.9 per cent, were jobless. The native Negro workers represented only 6.7 per cent of the total employables, but constituted 9.9 per cent of the total unemployed.

According to the survey, the foreign born workers showed the lowest percentage of unemployment, 28.4 per cent, and the highest percentage of part-time work, 28.9 per cent.

Women showed a higher unemployment rate than men. Women comprised 25.3 per cent of the employables and 27.9 per cent of the unemployed.

FINANCE STUDY BY ROOSEVELT

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt called in Treasury officials today in a resumption of his study of the national financial situation begun last night in a talk with Lewis Douglas, director of the budget.

Secretary Morgenthau and Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, former Secretary of the Treasury, headed the group.

The President, enjoying the leisure of his family home, is obviously looking over the government financing which will come about in regular course next month.

Smiling confidence, Mr. Roosevelt frankly told a throng of neighbors assembled late yesterday to welcome him home that:

"We people in the town of Hyde Park, no matter whether we like it or not, we are paying, and will have to pay for the correction of mistakes that were made in other parts of the country in the past, and pay to get things better."

Shots Halt Eviction March, 2 Wounded

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Shots fired from landlord Sam Julian's house stopped a jobless "march" of protest against his alleged eviction of a tenant, and wounded two "marchers."

Police arrested Julian. Two men said to have fired shots from windows are sought. The "march," the police said, followed a meeting last night of about 100 unemployed for discussion of Julian's alleged eviction of Joseph Hassler, a tenant.

2 ISSUES LEFT ON ALUMINUM

Two important differences today remained to be ironed out before peace could be brought about in the aluminum industry, company and union heads declared on their return from Washington.

Eight conferences held under the Labor Department and the National Labor Relations Board in Washington had cleared up the minor differences between the workers and employers.

Officials of the Aluminum Company of America declared they were perfectly willing to give the Aluminum Workers' Union recognition as the representatives of workers who are members of the union.

But the union and the company are unalterably opposed to each other on the questions of check-off of dues and universal wage rates, it was learned.

The conferences in Washington actually wound up in a deadlock on these issues, and Labor Board officials suggested another conference in Pittsburgh next Wednesday in hope the questions would then be worked out. Federal Mediator Fred Keightly will come here to preside at that conference.

2 Shot in Strike Of Truck Growers

SALINAS, Cal., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—State highway patrolmen were on guard against further violence today following the shooting of two men in the strike of more than 5,000 vegetable workers.

Robert Caldwell, a white picket, was shot in the arm, and Jose Pinzon, a Filipino, was shot in the shoulder yesterday in a disturbance at a ranch near here.

MILL OFFICIALS CLUBBED IN GEORGIA

300,000 Workers i[n] Allied Industries 'Standing By'

Associated Press.

The nation-wide walkout o[f] cotton textile workers is scheduled to begin tomorrow night.

Violence already has echoed the strike call. Employes of the Payne mill, in Macon, Ga., struck yesterday and before midnight two officials of the plant had been clubbed and five persons arrested. Pickets, armed with clubs, marched outside the mill fence; company guards, carrying firearms, patrolled inside the gate.

An estimated 425,000 workers in the cotton textile trade will be affected by the general strike. Another 300,000 employes in affiliated fields such as silk, rayon and wool have orders to "stand by." Francis J. Gorman, strike committee chairman, predicted they will join the walkout.

SEEK 30-HOUR WEEK

About 300,000 mill hands are members of the United Textile Workers of America, which says that their average weekly wage is only $10.86. The manufacturers' organization, the Cotton Textile Institute, disputes this, saying the industry has granted bigger wage increases under the NRA than any other line.

The NRA is a center of the fight. The union demands, under the Industrial Recovery Act, the right to represent labor in collective bargaining; the operators say they cannot see where it is representative.

The union asks a 30-hour week with the 40-hour pay, an end to the "stretch-out" of the individual worker's duties, collective bargaining recognition and cessation of discrimination against union members.

Charging it would repudiate the NRA as the code-making authority, the manufacturers refuse to arbitrate the strike demands. They say they cannot increase costs and remain in business.

1,250,000 IN FAMILIES

From Maine to Alabama the 1,281 cotton mills extend, with scattered plants in inland states. The Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Massachusetts and Rhode Island have from 20,000 to 92,000 workers each, the union figures show.

In the background, but vitally affected, are the families of the workers, the grocer who must carry their accounts to the breaking point, the landlord who wonders how he will meet his overhead. The U. T. W. places the cotton workers and their dependents at 1,250,000.

Many of them remember only too clearly the bloodshed of past strikes.

But the only word government negotiators had for them after yesterday's negotiations was that no "substantial progress" had been made toward a settlement.

STRIKE RIOTS TIE TROLLEYS

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Rioting tied up Spokane's transportation system completely today.

After four persons were injured in attempts to disperse a thousand strike sympathizers last night, President Frank T. Post, of the Spokane United Railways announced service would be suspended this morning. He hoped to restore partial service in the afternoon.

Tear gas and fire hose were used to disperse the crowd which stormed the company's car barn with rocks.

Most of the windows in the barns, cars and buses were broken.

Carmen and bus drivers seek a 10 per cent wage increase, improved working conditions and reinstatement of nine discharged men.

DOG HERO 'DECORATED' FOR SAVING LIFE

Collie Brought Aid To His Master in Mt. Lebanon

He's the famous collie who saved the life of his master, Paul W. Barnes, of 34 Altadena drive, Mt. Lebanon, last spring.

Although he was shut in the cellar, Barnes' wife and daughter heard Rob Roy's sharp, insistent barking. A search revealed Barns unconscious in his garage with the motor of his car running.

W. F. H. Wentzel, Western Pennsylvania Humane Society secretary, decorated Rob Roy at the society's county fair booth yesterday.

The collar bears a chromium plate, inscribed with his name and a short description of his brave deed. The red star is the insignia of the American Animal Relief Corps, a decoration worn only by dogs that have saved human life.

According to Wentzel, Rob Roy should be credited with one of the most unusual evidences of canine wisdom in the records of dog life.

Boop-a-Doop! U. S. Turns Guns on Tin Pan Alley

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The federal government undertook today to break up what it called a monopoly of music.

In a complaint naming the country's leading publi[illegible] and composers of popular [illegible] the government charged a violation of the Sherman anti-trust act and asked a permanent injunction prohibiting any agreements covering the public performance of music unless the field is "open to all owners of copyrighted musical compositions upon an identical and equal basis."

The complaint named the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, the Music Publishers' Protective Association, the Music Dealers' Service, Inc., and 128 members of the three organizations. It was filed in the United States District Court yesterday by Martin Conboy, federal attorney.

The government charges the defendants "have a complete monopoly" on the music industry, are in a position to "dictate to and dominate" the radio industry, have eliminated fair competition and fix royalty rates "arbitrarily."

MR. DITTMORE DEMONSTRATING HOW "TO ROD A GUY"

Reveals to Police Methods of Coping With Crime

Every stranger is a possible crook and all crooks are "yellow," an ex-convict says.

A. W. Dittmore, of Milwaukee, an ex-gangster once sentenced to prison and now nationally known as a police instructor, told Bellevue businessmen, police and borough officials in Borough Hall last night never to cash a check for a stranger.

Instead he should be told that identification must be made through the chief of police. When the man steps out the police should be telephoned the stranger's description, and unless he reports at police headquarters, he will be arrested. In six cases out of ten, the check passer will be a lawbreaker, Dittmore said.

The lecturer cautioned against resisting a hold-up man with a gun unless the victim be a policeman. Dittmore then demonstrated methods to be used by the police in disarming and manhandling a criminal.

The former gangster warned against the use of loud sounding alarm boxes for banks and other structures. A sharpshooter stationed in an unobserved position in the building opposite, with a signal connected to the cashier's cage, is the best protection, he said.

BIRTH RATE DECLINE BLAMED FOR DROP IN SCHOOL ROLLS

Prince's Bride-to-Be Poor as Church Mouse

Limited Trousseau For Marina Unless British Chip In

BOHINSKO LAKE, Jugo-Slavia, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The gracious Princess Marina, of Greece, must limit the trousseau for her wedding to Prince George, of England, to modest proportions, informed circles said today, unless the British royal family comes to her aid.

Marina's parents are almost as poor as the proverbial church mouse. This was cited as further evidence that the affair is a "love" match.

Prince Nikolas, 27-year-old Marina's father, has been without an income ever since his brother, the late King Constantine, lost the Greek throne 12 years ago.

The Princess' mother has given Marina her old pre-war wedding gown to wear when she goes to the altar with George in Westminster Abbey this winter. This nuptial garment, although considered gorgeous in the days of Czar Nicholas, will require considerable alteration to make it fit Marina, who is taller and more slender than her mother.

Like Marina's father, her mother, who was the Grand Duchess Helen Vladimirovna of Russia, has no regular income of her own. Friends believe the family has been helped considerable in the past by Prince Christopher of Greece, Marina's uncle, who inherited some of the Leeds tinplate millions and who is now living in Rome. He is the widower of the late Mrs. William B. Leeds.

BANDITS KIDNAP U. S. FILM MAN

International News Service.

HARBIN, Manchukuo, Aug. 31.—An American film representative was kidpaned, nine Japanese and five Chinese killed and a number of others abducted when a gang of Manchukuoan bandits wrecked a train on the South Manchurian Railway near here today.

The kidnaped American is Arthur Lury, representative of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Manchukuo.

First reports stated J. J. Russell, Tokio sales manager of the firm, also was abducted, but it was later discovered he had locked himself in his compartment and escaped the bloodthirsty horde which swarmed aboard the wrecked train, riddling it with shots and plundering the bodies of their victims.

The wreck occurred just after midnight in a torrential rain. Four coaches overturned and piled up on top of the locomotive.

For two hours after the smash, the Japanese train guards fought off the bandits. But finally the first and second class coaches fell into the hands of the raiders, who shot the guards down.

'SUICIDE' NOTES HELD HOAX

A hoax was suspected by McKeesport police today in the "suicide" notes found in a coat at the junction of the Monongahela and Youghiogheny rivers.

Police and citizens dragged both rivers until early today. No trace of a body was found.

Two notes were found addressed to "Sophia Kmetz" residing in either Star Junction or Isabella, Fayette County. One read:

"I am ashamed to face the one I love. Tell the police not to look for my body as I don't want it to be found. If anyone gets this letter tell Sophia I died thinking of her."

Glassport police informed the McKeesport authorities that a boy had found a similar note while walking along the street Thursday. State police are seeking "Sophia" in an effort to clear up the mystery.

FARM GIRL FREE IN 'ROMEO' SLAYING

Leona Quits Husband Hunt, Goes Home With Mother

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

CLARION, Pa., Aug. 31.—Freed of murder in the slaying of her 61-year-old mail-order sweetheart, John B. Kelly, Leona Menser, 20, was on her way back home today with her mother, Mrs. Nettie Menser, of Coshocton, O., her search for a husband at a temporary standstill.

The jury's verdict of not guilty and the rousing demonstration of approval of the spectators who jammed the courtroom here were still ringing in her ears as she made this solemn vow to her mother:

"I don't want a husband now—for a while yet anyway. I've had enough of husband-hunting."

Leona came here in response to a matrimonial advertisement of Kelly's following a six-month courtship by mail. The shooting of the aged mail-order Romeo climaxed her two weeks' visit in his home and occurred, according to her testimony at the trial, as the result of an argument and scuffle for possession of a gun.

TWO-FOLD DEFENSE

The verdict of the jury of seven men and five women makes the killing appear both accidental and justified. The commonwealth contended she fired the fatal shot deliberately, but without malice, and in doing so committed murder in the second degree. Trial Judge A. A. Geary instructed the jury to disregard first degree murder in its deliberations.

A two-fold defense was presented. Her attorneys, John M. Myers and W. M. Geary, argued that she grabbed up the gun for self-protection, but that the shot was fired accidentally in a scuffle.

SPIDER AND THE FLY

Attorney Geary, in a dramatic appeal, likened the case to the nursery tale of the "Spider and the Fly." He thundered:

"That spider, John Kelly, coaxed the innocent fly, Leona Menser, into his parlor."

Then he demanded:

"What has the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or the County of Clarion lost with the death of John Kelly?"

In summing up the case for the state, District Attorney M. H. Davis declared:

"I am only doing my duty and I ask you jurors to do the same. You must not be moved by sympathy and eloquent appeal."

Judge Geary, in his charge to the jury, instructed them to disregard first degree murder and explained if they found that the shooting was either accidental or justifiable, then they should find the defendant not guilty.

CHEERS GREET VERDICT

Cheers and handclapping greeted the rendering of the verdict. The ringing of the Courthouse bell announced that the jury had reached a decision at 8 o'clock. Retiring for their deliberations a few minutes after 5, the jury was taken first to dinner. They began their deliberations shortly after 7 o'clock, discussing the case for nearly three-quarters of an hour and then deciding to take a ballot.

Only one ballot was necessary. Leona, surrounded by new-found friends, was hurried to the home of Harry Agnew at Fisher—a neighbor she hardly knew at the time of the tragedy. Her mother joined her and there the reunited mother and daughter spent the night, leaving this morning for their home in Clowville, near Coshocton.

DILLINGHAM, PRODUCER, DIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Broadway mourned today one of its leading figures—Charles B. Dillingham.

The noted theatrical producer died last night after being seriously ill since Sunday. He suffered a general breakdown several weeks ago. He was 66.

Dillingham, who produced more than 200 shows, was known principally for his musical productions, and among the most spectacular were those he presented at the Hippodrome, in his heyday the biggest theater in the world.

Dillingham was the last of a triumvirate associated in the theatrical business for many years. The other two were A. L. Erlanger and Florenz Ziegfeld.

Among Dillingham's best known shows are the Fred Stone revues in cluding "Chin Chin," "Criss Cross," "Stepping Stones," Victor Herbert's "The Red Mill" and "Mlle. Modiste," and "Lady of the Slipper," "The Candy Shop," "The Slim Princess," "Dolly Dollars," "A Madcap Princess," "Sunny," with Marilyn Miller, and the Frederick Lonsdale comedies, "The High Road," "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," and "Aren't We All?"

Dancer Frees Constable 'On Take'

MITZI MAYFAIR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Town Constable Herbert Elmo Hodges, of Laurel, Md., walked out of jail a free man today after Mitzi Mayfair, dancer, on whose complaint he had been arrested on an extortion charge, said he had not attempted to extort money from her.

Hodges was arrested outside the dancer's dressing room at a local theater yesterday by detectives who said he had in his pocket a $10 bill which Miss Mayfair had given him. He was lodged in jail overnight when he failed to raise $2,000 bond.

On questioning by Assistant United States Attorney Samuel Goldstein, Miss Mayfair said Hodges, who halted her for speeding near Laurel last Thursday night and then let her off, did not actually demand money and did not threaten her.

The dancer said Hodges called on her at the theater twice after the roadside episode and told her an inspector had observed his failure to arrest her and that he had been dismissed from his post on that account.

He was invited to come a third time and visited the dressing room while detectives hid outside. He accepted the money, but Goldstein said it was offered voluntarily.

OIL MAN'S SON FREED IN DEATH

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Young Walter Witherup planned a quiet breakfast with his family today to celebrate his acquittal on a murder charge arising from the shotgun death of his father, Clark N. Witherup, 52, Kennerdell oil lease operator.

Witherup, 21, burst into tears last night as Harold R. Clark, of Oil City, foreman of an all-male Venango County jury, announced the "not guilty" verdict which the jury reached in three and a half hours of deliberation.

The elder Witherup died December 9 from a wound he received in his lonely oil lease cabin. Hunters found his blanket-wrapped body several days later near a Clarion County creek, 35 miles away.

Young Witherup, arrested several days after the body was found, contended during the trial that he shot his father accidentally while cleaning a rifle.

Youth Acquitted In Death of In-Law

GREENSBURG, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Arthur W. Johns, Indiana County youth, was acquitted by a Westmoreland County jury of a murder charge arising from the death of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Dolly Reger, whom he was alleged to have shot last spring at the Reger home in Bolivar, as she attempted to prevent her daughter, Margaret, from leaving with him.

ALVIN REOPENS AS NEW FILM PALACE

Gala Crowd Turns Out For First Showing; M'Nair's There

Today the tinsel was down, the flowers and the ribbons were carried away, the telegrams and notes and cards of congratulation were filed to become treasured souvenirs in another day. And today a new modernistic motion picture house, the Harris Alvin, took its place as another first rate amusement center for Pittsburgh.

Yesterday it was another story. The flowers were fresh and the ribbons new. The telegrams and notes of congratulation were posted and pinned for admiring throngs to read and admire.

And the throngs of Pittsburgh's social and political kingdoms flocked to the gala opening of the new house, arisen in the frame of the historic old Alvin, host to many a famous legitimate production in days of the past.

THE MAYOR WAS THERE

Mayor McNair was there—with Mrs. McNair and Betty McNair—and so was his predecessor—ex-Mayor John Herron. James F. Malone also was present.

Senator Frank J. Harris bustled through the crowd. John H. Harris, son of the founder, John P. Harris, of the Harris Amusement Company, greeted Fire Chief Joslin Heinz and Councilmen Walter R. Demmler and William J. Soost, and Welfare Director Southard Hay. The Rev. Father James R. Cox, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, former Assistant City Solicitor James L. O'Toole, Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar, former Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh and scores of others.

The Very Rev. Father J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, and Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Richard Rauh and his mother, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, former welfare director, also were present.

BAND PLAYS ON

There were lots of others there last night, strolling through the indirectly-lighted lobbies and aisles, eyeing the Claude Hurd murals, listening to the new organ played by Bernie Armstrong and playing with the electric eye operating the doors from the lobby to the inner lobby.

They saw a theater of simple and dignified lines, decorated in colors rather than ginger-bread. The old balcony and gallery were ripped out, they saw, and replaced by one large balcony.

Everything was new and modern and everyone laughed at Shirley Temple, famed child star, and the band played on.

Looking down upon the crowds from an alcove leading from the grand lounge to the balcony was a portrait of the late Senator John P. Harris, founder of the Harris chain. It was unveiled by Mrs. Harris.

$3,200 STOLEN FROM HER CAR

Thieves who stole an automobile containing $3,200 worth of bonds and later abandoned the car were sought by police today.

The car was stolen from Mrs. A. Stewart, of 428 Denniston avenue, late yesterday as it was parked in Shady avenue while Mrs. Stewart called on friends.

Mrs. Stewart, who had just returned from a trip, reported she had the bonds in her suitcase along with her personal effects.

Police recovered the car on Thirty-ninth street, but the suitcase was missing, although the thieves had left most of the clothing in a rumble seat. The car's battery also was missing.

CHURCH FAVORS FOLK DANCES

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Folk dancing has been added to the list of church recreational activities approved by the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

This was ascertained today at the National Council of Methodist Youth, which has drawn 900 delegates from all parts of the country to attack the problems of "Christian youth in building a new world."

"Folk dancing must be distinguished from social dancing," explained the Rev. Owen N. Geer, who in his book, "Adventures in Recreation," published by the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, gave several differences, including:

First, social dancing usually means dancing with the same partner throughout the evening, whereas folk dancing means a constant change of partners.

Also social dancing tends toward a close embrace—particularly true in jazz. Folk dancing makes close embrace difficult if not impossible.

REPORT 1,000 LESS PUPILS THIS YEAR

332,000 Children Face Call to Class When Bell Rings Tuesday

The declining birth rate, described by Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of city schools, as the most critical problem in the nation, will cause a decrease in the enrollment of city schools for the first time in history, he said, today.

The school bells will ring in city and county next Tuesday for approximately 332,000 children.

Of those, the city schools expect 113,000, the city parochial schools 43,700, the county parochial schools, 40,300, the county schools over 85,000, and the 19 independent district schools in the county about 50,000.

FIRST DECREASE

Dr. Graham, pointing out that the enrollment last year in the city schools was 114,311, declared the decrease this year may reach 1,000, adding:

"That's probably the first decrease in enrollment in Pittsburgh history. And it's due to the decrease in birth rate.

"We have made a survey of children of pre-school ages. The birth rate began to drop here in 1927 and 1928, but in 1929 and 1930 and on, it accelerated rapidly. We expect more than 5,000 decrease in the coming six years, unless migration to the city offsets the loss.

"In my opinion, the dropping birth rate is the most critical problem in the nation.

"Our survey among the pre-school children was supplemented by a check on vital statistics.

"There is a chance that students who cannot get employment and who would normally drop off might come back into high schools and make up the loss in the elementary schools. But part time jobs were more numerous during this summer than in the two previous summers.

"We know, fairly accurately, what will happen in the way of enrollment during the next six years through this survey."

Dr. Graham explained that the financial status of the schools was fair, at least as good as last year.

As of last June, the city schools had enrolled 67,599 in elementary schools, 38,132 in high schools, and the remainder in vocational and special schools.

SCHOOL FOR BLIND

He announced also the establishment of a new class—the first of four authorized—in the Bellefield School. It will be for children partially blind.

The county and parochial schools expect little change in enrollments.

Dr. C. E. Dickey, superintendent of county schools, declared that all county schools will open, although a few are still in bad financial condition.

The teachers' institute will be held in Memorial Hall, October 19 and 20, in connection with the Western Pennsylvania Educational Association's meeting, he said.

Dr. Paul Campbell, superintendent of parochial schools, expects enrollment similar to that of last June.

Weather Conditions

The high pressure that was centered over Eastern Ontario yesterday morning is now in the Far East, and extends down along the coast, with considerably increased pressures. Low temperature records were broken at Washington, D. C. and at Harrisburg this morning as a result of the high pressure. Another high now appears over Saskatchewan and extends down over the Rocky Mountain states, causing another drop in temperature over that section, to below freezing in Central Saskatchewan. The plains states low pressure is advancing eastward very slowly. It is still located over the great central plains, and is attended by cloudiness and showers and thunderstorms over the plains states and the upper Mississippi Valley. The tropical storm apparently curved back over the Gulf, after striking the coast of Texas near Galveston.

River Conditions

The rivers are falling slowly; stage at Franklin is two-tenths foot below zero; Lock No. 7, Mon., 10.1; Pittsburgh, 10.0; Dam No. 4, 9.9; No. 6, 9.2; No. 10, 9.1, and No. 12, 9.0. The dams are up.

DOOMED WIDOW BARES SLAYER OF DENTIST

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—A fantastic solution for one of California's most mystifying murders came today from the lips of a woman sentenced to die.

Blayney Matthews, special investigator for the district attorney, reported Mrs. Nellie Madison told him her husband killed Dr. Leonard Stever, Pasadena society dentist, in a fight over another woman.

The former Montana cowgirl, Matthews related, said that shortly before his death her husband confessed he shot Dr. Stever. It was for the fatal shooting of her husband, Guy D. Madison, that the crack pistol shot was sentenced to be hanged.

The investigator said Mrs. Madison indicated a Los Angeles woman is the fight leading to the dentist's death. A woman to whom Madison gave a costly wrist watch was supposedly one of the many women linked with the socially prominent Pasadenan's life.

This was the watch, Mrs. Madison said, which was taken from Dr. Stever's wrist when he was shot down last December 12, near the Scottish Rite Cathedral, and figured so prominently in subsequent investigations. The watch was mailed to Mrs. Frances Corn-Cooke, wealthy Pasadena divorcee, who was a central figure in the murder investigation, with a demand for $5,000.

Mrs. Madison's weird story was reportedly told at Tehachapi Prison, where she is awaiting execution for the murder of her husband in his Burbank (Cal.) apartment last March 24.

Matthews quoted the condemned woman as saying:

"When you are in my position, one hasn't much to gain or lose in anything they say."

WOMAN SAVES 2 FROM LAKE

BANCROFT, Ontario, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Two men today owed their lives to the heroism of a woman whom they had never seen before.

Dr. F. Hopkins and George Bradshaw, of Illinois, were fishing Wednesday on Pudash Lake when their canoe capsized.

Bradshaw went down. Dr. Hopkins swam to his rescue. The breeze carried the canoe out of the doctor's reach. Bradshaw became unconscious and the doctor was unable to make shore.

Miss C. Flocard, of Picton, Ontario, driving in her automobile, saw the men and ran to the water's edge where a rickety old punt was moored. In it was a broken oar. She jumped into the punt and swung the oar as a paddle.

Dr. Hopkins by this time was too weak to do more than hold Bradshaw's head above the water. Miss Flocard was unable to get them into the punt, so she tore off her stockings and a scarf, improvised a tow rope and dragged the men ashore.

Mother Admits Urging 'Cold Love' On Beauty Sued as 'Marble Bride'

LEE BARTLETT McCRAE . . . IN THE DIVORCE COURTS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Ethel Hartman Randall, attractive mother of beautiful Lee Bartlett McCrae, "Miss Atlantic City of 1925," today warmly defended her daughter who is accused of being "cold" by her suing husband.

In an unusual letter to the New York Evening Journal, Mrs. Randall characterized her daughter as a mental—not a physical type. She admitted teaching her daughter that a man and woman, to keep love at its best, should deal with the physical side of love "with the utmost restraint."

And her daughter, following this advice, has now come to the divorce courts.

MOTHER WED THRICE

Mrs. Randall was herself married three times. Her daughter wooed by many, finally married Winston McCrae, handsome Atlantic City hotel clerk. Three days ago they went before Advisory Master in Chancery Knight and McCrae asked for a divorce.

He accused his wife of being cold to him six months after their marriage, and she finally admitted the charges. She said that from childhood her mother taught her that married people "should be good comrades and nothing more."

Mrs. Randall's letter said:

"My daughter has been termed the 'marble bride,' which is far-fetched. She is really a lovable sweet girl with a keen sense of humor, an appreciation of the best in art and literature, a splendid ambition to do something worthwhile with her life, and last but not least a very normal enjoyment of being loved and admired.

SUITORS GALORE

"Up to the time of her wedding to Winston McCrae there were always three or four men madly in love with her. She had reams of poetry written to her, flowers sent in such profusion that the house reminded one of a conservatory; candy, books, jewelry, every attention that the minds of her admirers could conceive. . . .

"She even likes to be kissed. The only thing she does not like is sex relations.

"I have always tried to instill into her mind a desire to live on a high plane. I longed for her to have a beautiful marriage and to keep the first freshness of love and its romance and idealism. Such a love stimulates the mind to creative expression such as poetry, art and music.

"There is nothing especially revolutionary about my idea. Other people have tried to catch and hold that pristine enchantment of young love."

Trolley Crew, Passenger Kidnaped

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Mark up the first street car kidnaping.

The victims, Motorman Joseph McBride, Conductor Calvin Miller, and passenger Dominick Gazzella, are back safely—minus $44.50 in cash and street car tokens.

Two kidnapers boarded the car last night, waited until the trolley picked up speed, then leveled pistols at the crew and ordered them to "keep going" and "shell out."

The car rolled on until the robbers chose a stop convenient for flight.

Train Hits Truck, Driver Fatally Hurt

GREENVILLE, Pa., Aug. 31.—When a truck which he was driving was hit by a Pennsylvania passenger train, Lawrence Halabaugh, of Cochranton, was killed. The man was employed on the construction of a highway.

'FAITH DOCTOR' BEATEN, ROBBED

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Two Masontown men face court trial on robbery and assault charges arising from the theft of $12,000 reported by a self-claimed "faith doctor."

Martin Lucky and Louis Myock were identified last night at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Herbert E. Steinman, of Masontown, by Ashby Ford, of near Masontown, who said they beat him in the yard of his home several days ago and took a tin box containing the money as he was preparing to start to a Uniontown bank.

Ford also charged the men with taking $365 from the pockets of his clothing, after beating him with clubs. He said the men sprang to the attack from behind a bush as he left his home. He was found unconscious a short time later by his wife.

Police Chief Fined For Squirrel Hunt

WOODSFIELD, O., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Police Chief Edward Carpenter, of Powhatan, O., arrested for hunting squirrel out of season, was fined $100 today and his shotgun and game were confiscated.

Officers said the police chief had six squirrels when he was seized.

'RED' BANNER SEIZED IN M'KEESPORT

A red flag bearing the legend "Defend the Soviet Union" was in the hands of McKeesport police today as two members of the Young Communist League were jailed on the charge of passing handbills without a permit.

The banner was turned over to the police by the caretaker of Christ Park, who reported he had hauled it down when he discovered it yesterday morning.

FLAG SEIZED

While letters on the flag called on Young Communists to stage a demonstration at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad station, McKeesport, tomorrow night.

While passing handbills advertising the meeting, police say, Al Martin, 22, of 1129 Walnut street, secretary of the Young Communist League, and Gust Mikades, 19, of 316 Twelfth street, were arrested early today.

FINED $25

The two denied passing the bills before Magistrate E. M. Trich. Patrolmen Harris Fry and John O'Hara testified the youths had thrown handbills and a can of paste away when they saw the officers. They were fined $25, with the alternative of 30 days in jail on a charge of violating a city ordinance and loitering.

Martin was ordered out of Council Chamber Monday while making a plea for permission to hold an "International Youth Day Demonstration" against war and Fascism at the Baltimore and Ohio station. He and others contended a meeting place designated by police at Ninth and Water streets is isolated.

Fear 136 Drowned As Steamer Sinks

TOKIO, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The steamer Talan Maru foundered near Antung, Manchuria, today, and fears were expressed that 136 passengers and members of the crew were drowned, it was stated by a Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch. Twenty-six persons were reported to have been saved.

PITT ASSAILED BY SOCIALIST CANDIDATE

The University of Pittsburgh was denounced last night by Dr. Jesse H. Holmes, professor of philosophy at Swarthmore College. The Socialist candidate for Governor charged that abuses of the rights of free expression constituted a disservice to the most fundamental principles of the government.

Dr. Holmes attacked Pitt during an address before a meeting in the Penn Training School under the auspices of the Oakland branch of the Socialist Party. He said:

"What we need is a lot of talk without anybody to put the lid on."

Pointing toward Pitt and evidently referring to the recent ousting of Dr. Ralph E. Turner, liberal professor, he continued:

"You've recently had an example at that disgraced, prostituted institution somewhere over there run by a president held in contempt by educators everywhere in the country."

IDAHO WOMAN HELD IN KILLING

POCATELLO, Idaho, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Mrs. Caroline Shankel, 28, attractive wife of Robert Shankel, 45, prominent local business man, was under arrest today at the family home on a charge of first degree murder preferred by Sheriff Thomas J. Stroud, of Lemhi County.

The charges grew out of the shotgun slaying May 27 of Milton Merritt, 65-year-old miner and rancher, at Forney, Idaho, where the Shankels own a summer home.

Evidence in the case, the sheriff said, included shotgun shell waddings found on the window sill of the cabin where the shooting occurred. The wadding, he said, corresponded to that in shells found in the Shankels' summer home and in the home here.

This evidence, Shankel said, is nothing more than a coincidence. He added that the shooting was probably done by a person or persons he had discharged. He would not amplify the statement.

Airplane Takes 'Joyride' All By Itself

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The motor of Fred Vroman's airplane stalled while he was practicing takeoffs. He began to climb the throttle before jumping out to spin the propeller.

The motor started with a roar, the plane jumped forward and Vroman ducked. Skipping over his head, the bright red monoplane soared into the air, did fancy loops and barrel rolls, and finally crashed.

Girl Tap Dancer, 8, In National Contest

Betty Jane Lee, of 421 Rochelle street, Knoxville, 8-year-old tap dancer, was picked for the semi-finals from a large number of dancers at a national contest held in Chicago by the Dancing Masters of America, it was learned today. Betty Jane is one of the fast-steppers from the William Pilloh Dancing School, 204 Seventh street.

R. B. Petit, of Pittsburgh, owner of the car, pleaded guilty to a charge of allowing an intoxicated person drive his car and was sentenced to 10 days in the county jail and fined $25.

POPE DISCUSSES PENNSYLVANIA

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Pope Pius expressed "the fervent hope" that President Roosevelt would find a way out of the present economic situation in the United States in the course of a private audience yesterday with Bishop Joseph M. Gannon, of Erie, Pa.

His Holiness said he hoped the President would find the way by which it would be possible for the people to return to work and thereby regain a feeling of dignity and peace.

The head of the church and the bishop discussed general affairs in the United States and particularly the condition of working men in Pennsylvania.

PARIS 'RAZED,' SEES BIG CITIES DOOMED

PARIS, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—What he called the constant threat of doom to great European cities by air raids was vividly described today by Pierre Cot, minister of air, after French aerial maneuvers in which defenses of Paris were technically crushed.

Cot warned that frightful destruction awaits great centers as a result of the huge progress in aviation since 1918, saying:

"Our mistake is judging the possibilities of modern aviation on a basis of that during the war. We forget also that during the last war bombardments were small.

200 TONS OF BOMBS IN DAY

"We forget also that during all of the war London received but 20 tons of bombs, which made 1,800 victims. Today an aerial fleet could easily drop 200 tons on London in one day. Ten days of such bombardment would produce 180,000 victims. No capital could resist such slaughter."

Cot added that this took no account of the "abominable progress" made since the World War, adding:

"A single plane loaded with incendiary bombs could start more fires than the Paris fire department could fight. Imagine an attack combining incendiary gas and bombs. It would be a panic."

ONLY RUSSIA SAFE

Only Russia is reasonably safe in Europe, Cot said, because of the huge distances from other capitals and the lack of great industrial centers.

He urged a reduction in French army and navy credits and a doubling of air credits, at the same time insisting that the only solution would be a world agreement to abolish military air fleets and the establishment of an organization for international control.

Le Bourget airport was twice theoretically destroyed in the maneuvers, which were wound up this morning with the field again "bombarded" by 15 planes.

Officers said the huge superiority of attack over defense was conclusively shown in the war games.

Heimwehr Leader Now Student Pilot

Under the tutelage of Capt. Godwin Brumovsky, famous war pilot, von Starhemberg took his first lesson. To guard against possible hostile attack while he was in the air, the government assigned a second airplane armed with a machine gun to accompany him.

paredness parade, Upton Sinclair writes, of himself:

"Immediately after having taken the oath of office, he (Sinclair) stepped to the microphone and said: 'As Governor of California my first action is to sign a pardon to Thomas J. Mooney. At this time I offer to him my profound apologies for the injustice which the state of California has done to him for the past eighteen years.'"

THAT IS EXACTLY what Mr. Sinclair, if elected Governor should do and say, if the State of California has done Mooney injustice for the past eighteen years. If, however, Mr. Sinclair is not absolutely sure that the five California Governors preceding him were wrong in refusing to pardon Mooney, he should act with deliberation. To condemn "justice" too lightly would be unwise, even in this new era.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD that government enforement by the United States Treasury will no longer spend half its time to keep half its men busy fighting small moonshiners, operating only within a few miles of their ten or fifteen-gallon stills. It will devote its energies to "big bootleggers" operating all over the country.

It seems to have caught one of the "big ones" far from the southern moonshine regions. On a farm near Millwood, Long Island, a still was found with a capacity of 25,000 gallons a day. Undisturbed, such a still would be profitable. Whisky, tax free, costs the maker fifteen to twenty cents a gallon. A bootlegger can sell it, even with a deep "cut" for "protection" at $5 a gallon.

IT WILL BE hard to kill an industry so exceptionally perfected, but the Treasury means to do it. If the law punished the buyer of illegal whisky, as well as the seller, that might help.

THIS SATURDAY 500,000 textile workers will go out on strike, according to Mr. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee, and unions expect the government to "feed and finance" the strikers in accordance with the government promise to "let no man starve."

That might be a long strike, calling for a good deal of public money.

IF ONLY THE government would pay these bills with freshly printed money, instead of insisting on issuing flat, inflated government bonds that bear interest and double the cost. A government bond on yellow paper isn't worth one-millionth of a cent more than an ordinary greenback, since gold is no more.

NEW BOMB FEAR GRIPS PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—A new form of bomb terrorism was revealed today with the receipt through the mail of a small artillery shell transformed into an infernal machine.

It was delivered by a postman this morning to a young French woman, Edith Parmentier, who took it to the police. A hole had been bored through the side of the shell and a fuse inserted.

Unlike the early summer's bombs mailed by "the three judges of hell," there was no device to cause an explosion when the package was opened.

Nazi Plan to Oust Italian Newsman

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—(INS.)—Mario Da Silva, correspondent of the Lavoro Fascista, of Italy, has been privately advised the government is planning to deport him for his articles criticizing the Nazis, it was learned today.

Recent sharp outbreaks against Germany in the Italian press may cause the expulsion of certain other Italian correspondents. Da Silva recently was criticized by the Nazi newspaper Der Angriff for his articles.

Ailing von Papen To Ask Long Leave

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—(INS.)—The continued illness of Baron Franz von Papen, former vice chancellor, today gave rise to rumors he may not be able to take up his post as special envoy to Vienna for a long period.

The rumors, which could not be confirmed, said von Papen was likely to ask Chancellor Hitler for a long leave of absence. He is ill at his home in the Saar Valley.

NO JEW TABOO, HESS INSISTS

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Rudolf Hess, minister without portfolio and Hitler's deputy in the Nazi party, said today he was mystified by the persistence of reports that he was issuing or about to issue a five-point order forbidding Nazis to fraternize or even speak to Jews.

He interrupted his preparations for the forthcoming Nurnberg party congress long enough to declare:

"There has been no such order; there is no such order; there will be no such order—in fact I haven't yet even thought of such an order."

O'Duffy, Cosgrave Avoid Party Split

DUBLIN, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Differences between William T. Cosgrave and Gen. Eoin O'Duffy, leaders of the Fein Gael, the chief political party opposing President Eamon De Valera, apparently were smoothed over at a long meeting of party leaders last night.

Indications were that peace was restored at least temporarily. Cosgrave objects to the extreme measures of the Blue Shirts led by O'Duffy, but he sought to avoid a split with the O'Duffy element.

Prussia Bans Gorki Books as Dangerous

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The books of Maxim Gorki, famed Russian, were banned from Prussia today under the law of February 4, 1933, regarding writings "dangerous to the state."

TRANSFER ONLY ONE OFFICER

Only one police officer was involved today in the routine monthly transfers of the police department. He is Lieut. Boyd Penn, transferred from Center avenue to Penn avenue police station.

Acting Police Superintendent Jacob Dorsey, who announced the transfer, also announced a new system for filling vacancies while lieutenants are on vacation.

Hereafter, when a lieutenant leaves on furlough, a man from the ranks will be promoted to acting lieutenant to take his place during his absence, instead of transferring a lieutenant from another station.

NATIONAL MEET AT GREENTREE

Delegates from many sections of the tri-state district will be in Pittsburgh tomorrow, Sunday and Monday to attend a mahrajan and national convention of Arabic-speaking people at Leuvaline Farm, Greentree. It will be the first gathering of its kind in America and is expected to attract more than 10,000 persons.

Attending will be Syrians, Lebanese, Egyptians, Palestineans and nationals of other nations speaking the language. The aim of the gathering will be to unite Arabic-speaking peoples of the United States.

Among speakers will be Joseph M. Khoury, editor and publisher of Ash-Shaab, New York, the Very Rev. Elia Hamaty of St. Paul, and Elia D. Madey, poet and editor of As-Sameer, of New York.

New Deal Gets Help On 'Initials'

MERCER, Pa., Aug. 31.—W. C. McCoy, president of the Mercer Fair Association, would add some more three-letter words to the

New Deal's list of initials. In a letter to a farmer's publication, he writes:

"We have had very little relief from NRA, CWA, RWD, AAA, etc., but we believe pig, cow and ewe eventually will bring us out of the depression. And maybe hen will help."

DIONNE BABY IN 'COMEBACK'

CALLANDER, Ont., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Tiny Marie Dionne, smallest of the famed quintuplets, came back in sensational style today after failing to gain weight yesterday and added one whole ounce.

Her four sisters likewise gained, dividing an increase of 1½ ounces among them. Emilie, the second smallest, showed the way with 1¼ ounces.

	Pounds	Ounces	Gain (Ounces)
Yvonne	7	4½	½
Annette	6	13¾	¼
Cecile	6	3¼	¼
Emilie	5	1¾	1¼
Marie	4	13¾	1
Total weight	[illegible]	[illegible]	Total gain [illegible]

TWIN 'QUARTET' IN IOWA, TOO!

ALGONA, Ia., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Algona has its consecutive twins, contrary to the belief of Dr. J. C. Plummer, of Ohio State University, that Mrs. Vincent Kemp, of Bremen, O., has the only pair of consecutive twins in the nation.

Mrs. R. H. Spencer, Algona resident, is the mother of two pairs of twin boys, her only children, born less than two years apart. They are James and John, Robert and William. The oldest now are 17 and the youngest 15.

The oldest Spencer twins were born when their father, now dead, was 76 years old, and the youngest when he was 78.

The father was a Civil War colonel. The first twins were born on Lincoln's birthday.

N'ORLEANS SET FOR TRIAL BY KINGFISH

International News Service.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 31.—Like the courts of medieval Europe before whom there was little hope for the accused, a bench of nine justices, handpicked from the state council of Huey P. (Kingfish) Long, tomorrow will place the politically rebellious city of New Orleans on trial by ordeal.

Grave charges face the Mayor, some members of his commission, his district attorney, his superintendent of police and judges on the bench of courts of the city and of New Orleans parish.

They are accused of graft, of corruption and of vice in the administration of the South's largest, loveliest, most ancient and widest open city—of gouging a $13,000,000 "pay off" from the huge profits of lotteries, handbooks, dice, the roulette wheel and its 80 blocks of red-light district.

"LITTLE TAMMANY"

The Mayor, T. Semmes Walmsley, is titular head of the old regular Democratic Club, the South's "Little Tammany," a powerful political organization that has ruled the city of New Orleans for decades and that, until the rise of Senator Long to power, was the controlling factor in state politics.

He and his machine last January administered Long a smashing defeat in the New Orleans mayoralty election, the first disaster that has beset the Kingfish since he was elected Governor in 1928.

The other accused are friends and supporters of the Walmsley regime, elected through the old regular machine.

Eugene Stanley, District Attorney, is the man on whom the Kingfish stubbed his political toe. Stanley launched an investigation of ballot stuffing frauds in the election on constitutional amendments in 1932 when the old regulars and Long were welded in political amity.

IGNORES PARTY LINES

Regardless of party lines, and out-maneuvering the attorney general of the state who sought to quash the proceedings and supersede him in the probe, Stanley jerked 513 election commissioners into court. He got prison convictions on the first three that have been tried and the convictions have stuck through the State Supreme Court.

For this unseemly disregard of constituted political authority Stanley was put on the spot. Huey determined to be rid of him. He demanded that the old regulars support State Senator Charles Byrnes, the man who defended the convicted election commissioners, against Stanley in the January election. But Stanley had become a popular hero. When anyone defies the political boss in this section of the world, people either tap their heads meaningly or else conclude he's something extra-special.

Francis Williams, a member of the Railroad Commission, was running for mayor, attacking both Long and Walmsley's old regulars. So the old regulars, with an eye to the Stanley-Williams alliance, told Long to pick up his marbles and scram, and came out for Stanley. Walmsley won, Huey's candidate ran second and Williams third.

Democrats Open Drive With Picnic

George Rankin, candidate for the State Senate; James L. Quinn, candidate for Congress, and Samuel Weiss, P. J. Moran, Joseph Baine and Al K. Robinson, candidates for the Legislature, will attend. Carl D. Smith is chairman of the speakers' committee.

Brookline Democrats To Picnic Tomorrow

The Brookline Democratic organization is holding a picnic tomorrow at Linden Grove, Sawmill Run boulevard, Castle Shannon. A committee, with James J. McGaffin as chairman, and A. E. Showalter as secretary, has prepared a special program.

Lodge to Entertain Ford City Visitors

Oakland Lodge No. 13, I. O. O. F., will entertain a delegation of Odd Fellows from Ford City in the lodge hall at 3412 Fifth avenue, Wednesday. C. A. Weber and J. W. Graham are in charge of the program.

Boy, 13, Spared Trial in Death Of Pal

BILLY ATARES, 13

Illinois Will Send Young Slayer To School

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Billy Atares, the 13-year-old Chicago boy who shot and killed a playmate, will not be tried for murder or sent to prison.

State's Attorney Greening today had accepted recommendations of psychiatrists that the boy should spend several years at the state school for boys at St. Charles, then be placed in a foster home.

Dr. James P. Molley, Jr., and Verne Lyon, who examined young Atares at the request of Gov. Horner, reported:

"We feel the trial of this boy on a charge of murder would be unwise and that it would be better to have the case heard by the Juvenile Court. A prison sentence would be very dangerous to him."

Several weeks ago Billy confessed he shot and killed Raymond Wylder, 11, near Auburn, Ill., because the younger boy had told about a robbery.

CHILD CENTER OF MARITAL MIXUP

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—A strange marital mixup resulting from a Canadian romance was told in Superior Court here yesterday when Max T. Francis petitioned for reversal of a decision granting the custody of his 5-year-old daughter, Maxine Lucille Turcotte-Francis, to her mother, Lucille Turcotte.

Attorneys related the romance between Francis and Mrs. Turcotte began several years ago in the Hudson Bay region of Canada.

Francis, a married man, met Mrs. Turcotte, also wedded, and later they went to San Francisco, where on December 9, 1929, a daughter was born to them.

SO THEY DIVORCED

Then they agreed to divorce their respective wife and husband and be married. Francis obtained a divorce here and Mrs. Turcotte, with money provided by him, returned to Canada and divorced her husband.

When she returned here after five months absence, attorneys told Superior Judge I. L. Harris she found Francis had married another woman.

Mrs. Turcotte appealed to the Superior Court and Judge Harris at that time decided she should have temporary custody of her daughter. But he confiscated a railroad ticket which she had purchased to go to Canada to insure her remaining here that the father might see the child.

BACK TO NORTHWEST

Later Mrs. Turcotte failing to find work, boarded an airplane and went to Vancouver, B. C., where she entrained for the home of her parents in the Hudson Bay country. The mother wrote to her attorney here:

"The courts were too slow. I want my child. I love my daughter and I hope the courts will stretch a point so I can keep her."

In his appeal, Francis told the court he could provide a better home for the child than its mother could, Francis said.

"You dissolve the order and I will go to Canada and bring the child back. It doesn't matter how I get her. I will get her."

Three Seek Divorce, One Decree Granted

Divorce suits were filed by Laura Murphy against Charles J. Murphy, Stanley Muslick against Margaret Muslick and by Eva Melnick against Louis Melnick. A divorce was granted to Andrew J. Lux from Margaret Lux.

Of All Things! Seasick Fish Rush Ashore

POINT CLEAR, Ala., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—All one needed to catch a barrel of assorted fish, eels and crabs on the eastern shore of Mobile Bay near here was the barrel.

For miles the shore line was literally lined with thousands of sea dwellers of various sorts, sizes and shape, some dead, some stunned and some apparently endowed with life on the ocean wave.

Some of the natives hereabouts say the fish are made seasick by tides of fresh and salty water which disturb the salinity of the water; others say they were stunned by lightning and still others suggest they were scared to death by a sea monster.

SURVIVES SHOT INJURING BRAIN

LOGAN, W. Va., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—A bullet between the eyes tore away part of his brain, but Homer Tomblin, 33, of Hart's Creek, was taking nourishment today and hopeful of recovery.

Brought to a Logan hospital Sunday night, physicians said he had no chance to recover and did not operate to remove the bullet.

Dr. Henry D. Hatfield, United States Senator from West Virginia, was called in on the case and started the delicate task of trying to save Tomblin.

The hospital says Tomblin is conscious at times and takes some food.

Deputy Sheriff J. D. Herald said Tomblin had been paying attentions to a young woman named Virginia Varcelo, which was resented by John Perer, of Cherry Tree, near Logan.

Demand Mexico Reopen Churches

MEXICO, D. F., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Two thousand demonstrators, most of them fashionably dressed women, marched through the streets demanding the government reopen closed Catholic churches and allow them complete liberty to practice their religion. Police broke up the affair and arrested several speakers.

POLICE SCENT OPIUM; 3 HELD

Three Chinese were held for court on charges of violating the state pure drug act today, as the result of a raid made last night when detectives, walking along Third avenue, thought they detected the odor of the drug.

Inspector Samuel Wheeler, Lieut. Frank Ferris and Detectives Nunzio Marino and Alex Thompson crashed into the establishment of Lee Wing, 49, at 512 Third avenue.

In Central Police Court the officers testified Gee Yee Sam, 32, of 520 Third avenue, was smoking opium, and Gee Quock, 39, of 512 Third avenue, was cooking the narcotic.

A fourth man seized, Soohoo Yon, 40, of 516 Third avenue, was discharged. He told Magistrate Anthony Lucas he had just stopped in to see his friends.

RULING VOIDS MARRIAGE OF 40 COUPLES

CROWN POINT, Ind., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Forty couples, clients of Crown Point's out-of-state "marrying parson" during the last three weeks, today faced the disconcerting possibility that they really weren't married after all.

The situation arose when County Clerk George W. Stewart revealed that since August 15 he has made no record of the marriages performed by the Rev. Oscar H. Stevens, and furnished a formal opinion from County Attorney George Hershman backing him up. The pastor they contend is not legally qualified to perform nuptial ceremonies.

Stevens came to Crown Point a year ago and setting up shop in an auto parked near the courthouse, posted signs advising marriage license applicants that they might be wed cheaper there than at the offices of competing justices of the peace.

When he arrived from South Dakota, Stevens, an ordained Presbyterian pastor and member of the Black Hills Presbytery of the church, was refused admittance to the Logansport Presbytery which governs churches in Northern Indiana.

Because he is still a member of the Black Hills unit, the pastor contends church rules permit him to perform marriages anywhere in the country. The county clerk and county attorney here think otherwise.

Stevens said he expected to file an injunction suit to force the clerk to register his clients as properly wed. Meanwhile, he continued doing business.

'TOY GUN' GUARD BALKS ESCAPE

Clyde Lamb, arrested in Hammond on a minor robbery charge, was found to be an escaped prisoner from Tennessee.

eH was put in a cell and his wife, Gladys, came to visit him carrying a basket of pears. Deputy Holley searched the basket and reported finding hack saw blades.

Mrs. Lamb also was put in a cell.

Happy Newlyweds

MR.-MRS. ONSLOW STEVENS IN THEIR NEW LIT'LE HOME

Mr. Stevens, the young actor, pictured as he and his bride, the former Miss Phyllis Cooper, a banker's daughter, settled down in Los Angeles to their first housekeeping. They eloped to Yuma, don't know when they'll be able to leave the city for a honeymoon trip. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

VETERAN SEEKS MISSING WIFE

A wounded New York war veteran, who is willing to forgive the wife who deserted him, today had centered his search for her in the Pittsburgh district.

Mrs. Avels

He is Harry Avels, of 1479 Noble avenue, the Bronx, who sent out an appeal to his wife, Lillian, asking her to return home, according to an International News Service dispatch from New York.

Avels was quoted as saying that his daughter, Ruth, 10, was dangerously ill and constantly asking for her mother. In his appeal to his missing wife, Avels said:

"Come back, wherever you are. I don't know why you ran away but I will forgive you no matter what the reason is. And I hope you'll forgive me if I did something wrong without realizing it to make you leave your home and children."

CLUES TO FIRST AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Important new finds of skeletons and other relics of prehistoric races which once lived on Kodiak Island, Alaska, were reported today to the Smithsonian institution by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka.

Kodiak Island was a key point in the great migrations from Asia by which most scientists now believe the Americas were peopled. Wave after wave of Asiatics passed over it on their way from Bering Strait south, says the Smithsonian.

Dr. Hrdlicka, noted authority on ancient man, has been directing excavations on the island for four years. He has found that Kodiak in the ancient past was inhabited by a succession of different peoples, each with a different culture.

Besides skeletons of prehistoric Americans his party has unearthed two carved stone lamps. The scientists also are collecting the bones of birds and animals found with human remains at different depths in the earth. They seek to reconstruct a picture of the food and hunting habits of the peoples.

POISON VICTIM DIES NAMING WOMAN

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—An autopsy report on the contents of the stomach of a man who died gasping that a woman "gave me two pills" was awaited by police today.

A preliminary examination showed the organ "ulcerated and discolored." Dr. M. J. Patrick disclosed last night as police tried to clear up the mystery surrounding the sudden death of Anthony Bernota, 40-year-old miner.

A prominent Shenandoah woman named by the miner as he fell dead from a chair Wednesday was questioned by police, but Chief James Burney expressed confidence she had nothing to do with the case.

Withholding her name, he declared:

"I have known her for years, and I'll stake my reputation that she had nothing to do with the case."

Bernota died on the day he was to have left for a visit to his native home in Lithuania. A passport and steamer tickets were found among his possessions.

The miner was stricken as he sat in a chair at the home of Mrs. Nellie Kupnia, and gasped out the "pill" accusation as he fell dead at Mrs. Kupnia's feet.

SHRINERS PLAN 'STAG' PICNIC

The Syria Temple A. A. O. N. M. S. will hold its annual "stag" picnic at Kennywood Park September 7, according to Illustrious Potentate David Timothy. The park has been reserved for Shriners only. Lucius McK. Crumrine is chairman of the affair.

Mr. Crumrine

Lenore Kight, world's champion middle distance swimmer, will be the feature attraction. She will swim in a 160-yard relay race against Louise Clark, Anna Mae Gorman and Johanna Gorman. High and fancy diving contests and four boxing bouts are also included on the program.

RIVER HARBOR PLAN DEBATED

CHARLEROI, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Members of the Monongahela group of the National Rivers and Harbors Committee opened discussions in Charleroi today on the government's plans for establishing protection to the Monongahela River harbor line between Elrama and Rice's Landing.

If the committee approves the government's plans the work may be started before the advent of cold weather, providing employment for 1,000 men and representing a saving of more than $2,000,000 to private property, committee members said.

A. J. Harner, chairman of the Western Pennsylvania group, said the plans contemplate halting erosion of the shore line by construction of retaining walls, installation of pilings, and slagstone fillings to re-establish the river's original harbor lines.

Freed in Slaying Of Girl's Father

MARILLA, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Pleading not guilty, Carl N. Merrill, 30, of Sheridan, who last Sunday shot and killed his sweetheart's father, Julius F. Bauer, 46, Marilla farmer, was acquitted yesterday after a hearing before Peace Justice Leo F. Doldt.

The shooting occurred when Merrill, visiting Ardith Bauer at her home, was attacked by her father, wielding an iron pipe, according to testimony.

Age Pension Move By Roosevelt Asked

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Meeting in executive session, the National Association of Power Engineers adopted a resolution addressed to President Roosevelt urging him to present to the next Congress an equitable old age pension plan. It was telegraphed to the President.

Spruce Tree Saves Couple From Death

CANON CITY, Col.—(INS.)—A spruce tree growing beside the highway in Phantom canyon near here earned the undying gratitude of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Swanson, of Troy, N. Y. A front tire on their car blew out, causing the machine to skid off the road. The tree stopped it from plunging off a 35-foot embankment with probably fatal results.

Lindsey Wins Nomination For Judge

BEN B. LINDSEY

Won Fame for Idea On 'Companionate Marriage'

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Ben B. Lindsey, former juvenile court jurist in Denver who became internationally known for his "companionate marriage" and other ideas, today was assured the nomination for a Los Angeles County superior court judgeship.

The former jurist was disbarred by the Colorado State Supreme Court after coming her to practice law in 1927.

Immediately he started a fight to be reinstated. The California Bar board of governors declared Lindsay had been admitted to practice here. He later proved he had not received a fee in a case while on the bench in Colorado and he was reinstated in that state.

His race for the judgeship here is the first re-entry into politics, although he recently was labor compliance officer for the NRA in Southern California for about five months.

ACTOR, EX-WIFE MAY END FIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The contempt of court action brought against Nils Asther, film actor, was delayed today in Superior Court with indication the issue of $5,000 back alimony he is alleged to owe his former wife, Vivian Duncan, will be settled out of court.

Attorneys for Miss Duncan said she was in the East on a theatrical tour and would be unable to press the action until her return. By that time, the attorneys hope settlement will be effected.

Boy Lone Witness To Father's Killing

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Stabbed in the heart by an unidentified assailant, Lorenzo Caruso, 44, was killed almost instantly early today during an argument in front of a beer garden which was having an opening celebration.

PITTSBURGHERS HELD IN BLIND RACKET

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Detectives of the mendicant squad today said the arrest of two men on a downtown street corner had disclosed racketeers reaching into the ranks of blind musicians.

Roth Miller, 23, blind accordion player, and Red Overman, 29, also sightless, who plays a saxophone, were taken into custody on charges of disorderly conduct. The detectives said they collected $20 in 30 minutes.

The pair was brought here from Pittsburgh, detectives said, by an "agency" which manages the affairs of blind musicians for a "cut." Although good musicians, investigators said, the men prefer to play on street corners where they can earn more money.

Arrested with the men was John Horwitz, of this city. The detectives said Miller told them it was Horwitz's duty to guide them around and pick up the best "stands."

Officials of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind here denied the two men arrested in Philadelphia today were Pittsburghers. The officials said the two men probably were members of the Fraternal Order for the Blind, an organization that allots territories for blind mendicants to work.

Stage-Struck Girl Gone With $1,260

PORT WAYNE, Ind., Aug. 31.—(INS.)—A pretty, stage-struck 13-year-old girl with a bankroll of $1,260 was being sought throughout Indiana today.

The girl, Norma Bush, was believed to have run away to go to Hollywood. She disappeared from here last night after taking her father's life savings. Norma wore red pajamas and a gray coat, her parents reported.

Success May Depend on Your Food!

How fast you go ahead in the world, how much money you make, depends very largely on how wise you are about your choice of food.

If you are tired out by 11:30, if you're dull after lunch, if hot weather gets you, it's probably because you just haven't learned to eat the right things.

It's very simple, too. Try eating one meal a day of Shredded Wheat, milk, and fruit. This happy combination will make almost any one more alert, full of pep, and efficient. It gives your body, in concentrated, easily digested and delicious form, what it needs for nourishment, tissue building, resistance to disease, and it contains bran to keep you regular.

Shredded Wheat is whole wheat—one of Nature's best foods—boiled and baked.

Just try one meal a day of Shredded Wheat. It proves what it will do for you in a very short time!

SPORTS CARNIVAL :-: Floyd Gibbons Returns :-: ON AIR TONIGHT

Swat King, Dempsey Booked

Messrs. Ruth and Dempsey (Babe and Jack) will be interviewed this evening for the benefit of the children and the police traffic safety campaign. Mr. Ruth and Mr. Dempsey will visit with William Lundell, NBC announcer, about good health, physical fitness, and being on the safe side of an accident. (WCAE—7:30.)

This evening sets itself into an air field day what with boxers, skaters and football games all in the same night. The all-star football game between the Chicago Bears and an amateur college team comes on the air from Soldiers' Field in Chicago at 10. Hal Totten (he's the one with the twin girls) announces the event with the help of Gene Rouse, another NBC sports announcer. The amateurs are coached by Nobel Kizer of Purdue . . . just so you can catch up on your football. (KDKA) still praying that oil acquaintance . . .

Way back in 1915 before radios or straight eights or ice cubes there were some hits like "The Quaker Girl" . . . "Hello Frisco" . . . "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee" and "Underneath the Stars." Remember? A fox trot was still a pretty smooth dance and you went one-two-three-skip round and round the floor.

The Old-Timers' program gives you a chance to try out your skill with the two-step at 8:30 tonight, KDKA. Orchestral scores are those they sent out to bands 19 years ago.

The Federal Communications Commission, which has absorbed the Federal Radio Commission, asked for additional information on that application of Station WMMN for renewal of license. Station WWSW contends they should have the Fairmont (W. Va.) station's facilities in the interest of better public service. "Better public service" is the limb on which all the plums hang. "Public interest, convenience or necessity" must be served according to that eleventh section of the federal radio act before you can have a license to broadcast.

But just what constitutes "public interest, convenience or necessity" . . . is something not so easily defined.

Phil Baker's first broadcast was for a sponsor who sold oil . . . and the broadcast was so bad Baker's still playing that oil acquaintance be forgot. Now he's leaving the air for six weeks and the folks are crying big tears.

So that Baker shall not vacation in vain, his sponsor brings in a "Headline Hunter," Floyd Gibbons fills on the spot for the six-week period.

The time they have left over, after Gibbons hurries through with his speech, goes to Morton Downey and Irene Beasley, two of radio's consistently good singers (KDKA, 9:30).

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

There has been confusion in the minds of several Globe Trotters regarding provisions of the Home Owners Loan Corporation Act.

The Globe Trotters (and I know they don't want their names mentioned) are a little upset over the rule about the date of the passage of the act, June 13, 1933.

Some of them feel that if their mortgages were not in default before that date they can not get relief from the government even though they have defaulted since.

That is not so.

The Home Owners Loan will grant relief in cases where the default occurred since the passage of the act, but it must clearly be shown as bona fide and involuntary.

This, I know, will be good news to those who have thought there was no relief because their mortgages were not in default on June 13, 1933.

I have checked the above information with the legal department of the Home Owners Loan Corporation and find they are in accord.

George P. Mills' talk on rent relief for landlords was quite interesting and many landlords and relief tenants have requested copies.

If you care to have one, which explains how the new relief program will provide some cash for the landlord as well as protect the relief tenant from eviction, I will be glad to send it.

Drop me a postal.

Croatian Head To Speak

In connection with the fortieth anniversary celebration of the National Croatian Fraternal Union, at Soldiers' Memorial Hall Sunday, John D. Butkovich, national president, will be interviewed during the WCAE "Aircaster" period at 6:35 tomorrow night.

Delegations from all parts of the country will attend. Participating on the anniversary program will be a 75-voice choir from Detroit and 50 orphans from the order's Des Plaines (Ill.) orphanage.

Radio Moguls Plot Pep For Daytime Dialers; Build-ups Loom

By AIRCASTER

It has been evident for weeks that commercial broadcasting has monopolized the night-time hours of the radio networks to such an extent that it would be absurd for the Columbia and National systems to attempt any of their own build-ups after sundown. On the other hand, it has been calculated build-ups attempted during the daytime were considered a waste of time.

But there's just as much time in the day . . . so the executives went into a huddle on the subject of institutional and sustaining programs yesterday. The conference is about to change the policy of local stations and networks and really go to town in the matter of daylight entertainment.

The present set-up, featuring routine shown, a few nonentities, recipes, talks and other casually thrown-together daytime sustaining programs is going to be wiped out. Big names and big musical organizations are going to be substituted and if the daytime sustaining shows aren't better than the commercial shows at night, they should with work and worry be at least as good.

Sometime ago I probably embarrassed a few fellows by adverse criticism of the beer show currently featuring Everett Marshall and Stoopnagle and Budd. It is perhaps only fair to report with equal warmth, that the show has taken on new life; that Mr. Marshall is really doing an extraordinary job of singing and that Stoop and Budd's antics are speedier and funnier.

Will there ever be a woman president of these United States? If you care about the question, you will find it being interestingly discussed next Tuesday night at 9:30, by a lady who has a pretty good idea what the answer is. She is Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt.

John Francis Neylan, general counsel for the William Randolph Hearst interests, goes on the air from the west coast tomorrow night at 8 (WCAE.) Neylan will discuss "The Merchant Brain Trust in Politics."

WCAE Features Tonight

Educational programs and entertainments offer the WCAE audience tonight another balanced schedule.

At 4:45, the Sun-Telegraph Family is on the air; at 5:15, C. H. Rollis gives the Motor News, and at 5:30, "Pieces of Eight" is the attraction.

At 6, James J. Long's long sports comment holds treats for all the fans, and at 7, Howard Price, tenor, sings an all-request program.

ENDLESS PROBE OF UTILITIES PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The Federal Trade Commission, it was disclosed today, probably will ask Congress for continuous power to investigate public utilities any time it chooses.

By giving such authority to the commission or some similar agency, officials believe many abuses could be curbed with a constant threat of publicity.

The suggestion may be contained in a report the commission will make to the next Congress on its seven-year investigation of electric and gas companies. This investigation, ordered by Congress, must end January 1, 1936. Already the commission has collected 60 huge volumes of testimony, and its investigators say it has saved consumers millions of dollars.

Continuous investigation does not mean that the commission would go on with its detailed analysis of the industry, but simply that it would watch outstanding developments.

The power, some officials believe, may already be contained in the commission's charter act, but it is not specific and has seldom been used because of lack of funds.

The commission's findings as a result of its long inquiry are expected to be used by the power policy committee which President Roosevelt appointed to study the whole utility set-up.

The frame-work of the report will consist of four main divisions: the financial disclosures of the investigation; the sensational propaganda charges; legal aspects of the problem, and conclusions and recommendations.

Moody Institute President Resigns

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Dr. James M. Gray, president of the Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago, today confirmed a report he had resigned and announced he had accepted instead the position of president emeritus.

Dr. Gray, who is attending a religious conference here, said he would be relieved of the business and administrative cares of the institute, but would remain as a member of the faculty.

Boy Drowns, One Saved by Rowers

BERWICK, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—A 16-year-old boy drowned last night and another escaped by clinging to their capsized coat in the Susquehanna River.

Peter Boone, thrown into the water with Melvin Culp, 17, when their rowboat upset, sank immediately. Culp clung to the overturned craft until two other youths rowed to his rescue.

3 in Plane Speed For Amazon Wilds

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Two men and a woman in a giant amphibian plane are speeding on a 22,000-mile flight to the wilds of the Amazon.

The fliers, who took off late yesterday, are William C. Talbot, of Hillsborough, Cal.; his wife and O. C. Leboutillier, who served overseas with the British air force during the World War.

13 Dice Players 'Safe;' But 14? Jail Yawns

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—After a dice game raid, police found they had 13 prisoners. Someone mentioned the old superstition. The 13 were ordered to resume their places on the ground. The police effaced themselves.

Soon a tall Negro came running, waving a dollar bill. He yelled:

"Gimme dem dice."

He made 14.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Morgenthau to Pay Debts by Reducing His Assets

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The secret of the Morgenthau speech was that he announced a $2,500,000,000 inflation without directly saying so.

Mr. Mallon

It is not exactly the kind of inflation that the Thomases and Wheelers have been talking about, but a restricted and possibly a business-like inflation. It means the issuance of two and a half billions in currency based on the theoretical bookkeeping "profit" from gold revaluation. Even Mr. Morgenthau put the word "profit" in quotation marks.

He did not say a word about silver, but every insider suspects he will revalue the silver dollar in about ninety days and cash in on that also.

The maximum inflationary possibilities, in that event, will be no more than about four or five billions.

By using three billions to pay off the public debt, he will improve government credit, strengthen government bonds and stop wild inflation talk (temporarily, at least.)

CONJURING

This little high class bookkeeping will probably make Mr. Morgenthau the greatest Treasury secretary since Croesus. At least, he will be the only businessman who ever paid off his debts by devaluing his assets.

In that, he is like the old necktie salesman who was losing so much money that he decided to double his overhead. Or the washwoman down South who deposited $10 in a Negro bank only to return a year later and find that she had no money left because "the interest eat up the principal."

In Morgenthau's case, the principal eat up the debt.

If he keeps on with this system, the New Deal ought to make a profit next year by doubling its expenses again.

BARGAINING

Sparks flew in the closed room where State Secretary Hull last met the Soviet Ambassador. The two bargainers disagreed sharply on the question of long-term credits (the 25-year loan wanted by the Russians). Hull thought that would be the same as giving them money to pay the Czarist debt.

The statement issued 10 minutes later by Under Secretary Phillips was really written by Hull. It was considered too hot for the head man to give out in his own manner. It said that, in view of the Soviet insistence, it was not "possible to be optimistic that any agreement will be reached."

VIOLENCE?

Cotton textile experts fear considerable violence may come from the threatened strike, probably more than in any strike we have had.

The reason is that many of the mills are only partially organized by the union. In some mills, the majority of workers does not yet belong to the United Textile Workers. If these mills try to operate, you can imagine what will happen.

The owners may avoid this by shutting up entirely, many of them can do so profitably, in view of the stocks they have on hand.

AID

Harry Hopkins was just making diplomatic excuses in side stepping his original confession that the government would support the strikers. The inside situation is such that the government will unquestionably support the strikers.

The only way it could be avoided would be for Madame Perkins to denounce the strike. You know how much chance there is of that.

It is important because the union treasury is supposed to contain only about a million dollars, hardly enough to support a strike for more than a few days.

NOTES

The British dole relief rules for strikers take a man off the government dole as soon as he becomes a striker, and thereafter provide only bare food for him in case he can show he is hungry. The cotton textile operators are going to get the best kind of publicity advice, if they follow it. They have hired Bill Lawson, who did practically all the publicity work for the NRA since it started, although he only had the title of "assistant director." A Treasury official privately pointed out to one of our Army men that if we became involved in a Far Eastern war the Treasury's silver would come in right handy for supporting an army in the Orient.

The Democratic leaders here had long been forewarned about the Socialist Sinclair's victory in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, but that did not make the blow any easier to take. You may have noticed Chairman Farley sent no congratulations. His crowd secretly expects Sinclair's Republican opponent to win in November.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN TENNESSEE? JUST WHEN THINGS WERE LOOKING NATURAL AND ROSY FOR THE USUAL REELECTION OF SENATOR McKELLAR SHOOTING STARS BEGIN TO FALL FROM THE POLITICAL SKIES AND A COMET APPEARS IN THE FORM OF A FUSION TICKET HEADED BY THE REPUBLICAN, BEN HOOPER, AND APPEALING FOR SUPPORT FROM "STRAIGHT" DEMOCRATS.

"STRAIGHT" DEMOCRATS! NO WONDER THE SENATOR'S CAMP IS SNORTING ALL OVER TENNESSEE! WHAT HIS FOLLOWERS WANT TO KNOW IS WHAT KIND OF DEMOCRATS HAS SENATOR McKELLAR BEEN APPEALING TO FOR OVER 23 YEARS?

HELD IN DEATHS, KIN CONFESSES

RED WING, Minn., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The purported confession of another man to the double slaying for which Jacob B. Daeffler has served 22 years of a life sentence will be considered by the State Board of Pardons in October.

Daeffler was convicted here of the killing of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Arfchill in 1911, to which Eugene Arts, Daeffler's brother-in-law, allegedly confessed in a letter received recently by the convict. A copy of the letter was turned over today to Probate Judge William M. Ericson by Hugh M. Gillen, of Stillwater, Daeffler's attorney.

At the same time Judge Ericson disclosed that Arts, while not in prison, is nevertheless paying a severe penalty for the crime to which he allegedly has confessed.

Arts is afraid of his shadow, every noise starts him to his feet, the fear that haunts him has turned his hair white, and when indoors he keeps shades lowered and doors locked even in daytime, Judge Ericson was told in a letter some time ago.

When last heard from Arts was in Milwaukee.

BEN FRANKLIN WATCH PAWNED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—A watch that once belonged to Benjamin Franklin was in a pawnshop today, pledged, the proprietor said, by a man prominent in musical circles whose name he refused to reveal.

William L. Leahy, the shop owner, said the man told him he bought it at an auction conducted by the emergency aid group during the World War. Leahy said many persons gave up jewels and heirlooms to aid the government at that time, and expressed the opinion that in the excitement of patriotic fervor one of the descendents of Franklin may have turned it over to the government.

The Franklin Institute, he added, suggested that he turn it over to the museum.

Council Deadlock Remains Unbroken

The deadlock in West Homestead Council, which began the first of the year when Burgess R. H. Lawry joined the minority, continued today. A special meeting of the Council, called last night in an attempt to set the millage rate for borough taxes and arrange for the paying of borough employes, ended with the situation unchanged.

Kroger takes a great forward step to bring you coffee brimful of flavor

What cup-cheering news this is. For now Kroger is dating its coffees hot from the roasting ovens. Which means fresher coffee than you've ever had before—days fresher than coffees that travel great distances and are dated when they are delivered to the stores.

The very hour that Kroger Coffees come from the ovens, the sealed bags are stamped with the date symbol—then rushed to the stores by the world's fastest and most direct delivery service. And once on the shelves, these hot-dated coffees have only a short time to stay. If they don't move before the time limit's up, they are withdrawn from sale.

As an added guarantee of freshness, Kroger's hot-dated coffees are never ground in advance—only at the time of purchase (except vacuum-packed Country Club). And what a startling difference all this makes in the cup—coffee so extra-smooth, so extra-rich that the second cup tastes better than the first. Yet for all their richness, Kroger Hot-Dated Coffees are offered to you without any price penalty.

NEAR TRAGEDY MARS START OF AIR RACES

International News Service

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, Cleveland, Aug. 31.—Marred by the fourth accident in which an Army pilot had a narrow escape from injury when his ship nosed over in front of the grandstand, the 1934 National Air Races started today with the threat of labor trouble hanging over them.

Lieut. D. C. Doubleday, flying with the Army squadron from Selfridge Field, Michigan, was uninjured when his ship turned up on its nose after it hit a small hole in the ground while landing.

Three other pre-race accidents also ended in near tragedy.

TURNE RFORCED OUT

Three of the nation's foremost speed fliers were winging their way from Los Angeles to Cleveland in a renewal of the Bendix Derby, which lost one of its entrants, Col. Roscoe Turner, a favorite to win the coveted trophy, when at the last minute he was unable to repair his plane in time.

Douglas Davis, of Atlanta, Ga.; John Worthern, of Patterson, La., and Lee Gehlbach, of Springfield, Mass., remained in the running. They will arrive here late this afternoon.

MECHANICS MAKE TROUBLE

Sponsors of the races ignored the threat of labor troubles which arose when more than 50 local airplane mechanics threatened to stage a demonstration to mar the classic. Phil Henderson, race official, denied that labor trouble would interfere seriously with the races.

Henderson denied the claims of Walter B. Wier, a former United States Marine aviation mechanic, that air race officials were making the airplane "grease monkeys" work for nothing.

Wier declared that more than 50 mechanics who had not been hired were prepared to stage a demonstration, adding that "these men are plenty-sore—watch for trouble."

AIRMEN RACING ACROSS NATION

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Two of three pilots speeding from Burbank, Cal., east in the annual flight of the national air races were making good progress today, but the third, Lee Gehlbach, New York, was unreported after his takeoff.

Douglas Davis, Atlanta (Ga.) flier, in a black and red low wing monoplane, made a seven-minute refueling stop at Goodland, Kan., and then headed for Lansing, near Chicago.

John Worthern, Pine Bluff, Ark., in a red monoplane, sped on from Kansas City after a nine-minute refueling. His first refueling was at Albuquerque, N. M. He reported he encountered storm clouds at 17,000 feet.

Gehlbach did not announce any refueling stops.

Col. Roscoe Turner, defending champion, holder of the Burbank-to-New York record of 10 hours and five minutes, which the three may try to erase if they arrive at Cleveland, scene of the races, in good time, did not leave. A broken gas line could not be repaired in time. Turner said he would attempt to break his record tomorrow.

94 Distillers Fail To Win U. S. Permits

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Pursuing its policy of discouraging expansion of liquor production beyond market capacity, the Federal Alcohol Control administration announced today it had denied application for 94 distillers permits and canceled five since June 1.

Youth in Cemetery Killed by Shotgun

EMLENTON, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—John Larossa, 22, was killed accidentally at a tool shed in the Crawford Memorial Cemetery as a shotgun discharged while he was leaning it against the porch.

10 Passengers Hurt In Elevator Plunge

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(INS.)—Ten of 21 passengers were injured today when an elevator plunged from the fourth floor of the Lefcourt State Building, 1375 Broadway, to the basement. Most of the injured were women.

'PERFECT PLANE' FOR SAFE AIR TRAVEL BUILT BY LOCKHEED

ALLAN H. LOCKHEED

Designer Boasts Ship That 'Can't Fail'

By LEON W. SHLOSS
International News Service

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31.—The specter of sudden, horrible death or injury which has haunted air travelers since the inception of commercial aviation was definitely removed today through invention of the "perfect plane" by America's air designer—Allan Lockheed.

His name a byword wherever record-breaking aerial achievements are records, Lockheed, who is here for the National Air Races, told International News Service that his latest creation "will bring to commercial and private aviation factors of safety, comfort and efficiency heretofore unattained."

The new ship carries two motors, which are built into the nose of the fuselage so close together that the failure of one will not result in the perilous "circular drift" which has precipitated so many aerial disasters in the past.

Mary Pickford, "sweetheart of the silver screen," was expected to assume her niche as sponsor of the 1934 races. Maj. James Doolittle, outstanding birdman, is piloting the famous actress each. Maj. Doolittle is not entering the speed contest this year.

An international flavor was added to the races when Gerd Achgelis, ace German "crazy flier," and Flight Lieut. R. L. Atcherley of the British Royal Air Force swooped down out of the clouds

LIQUOR BOARD ACT CHALLENGED IN TEST SUIT

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—Thoughts while strolling: Don't suppose anyone will ever name a child Elmer anymore. The Name Silas was killed by the same kidding. Walter Huston with a di-funny mustache could almost pass for Hitler. Add nifty dressers: Ed Hatrick. What became of Pearl Ormonde of the Follies?

One word description of any New Yorker—droopy. How many football heroes become famous men? Ford Frick is another Indiana sod-buster. Stuart Erwin has the surprised look of just waking up out of a sound nap.

Leaners along Sixth avenue who just stare. Stanley Gibson who buys rundown magazines and makes them click. Young

Walter Chrysler is a whirlwind walker, too. The relief over Dillinger is fleeting. We'll always have one. So long as there is crooked law enforcement. Lawyers, judges, ugh!

That country-boy-looking orchestra leader, Isham Jones, writes the most hits. The musical comedy elevator runners at Dunhill's. Like the page boys on the Ile de France. America's most distinguished looking middle-aged lady—Ruth Bryan Owen. They say bankers secretly chuckle how easily they got off.

Verne Porter has a Gibson man profile. Mrs. Ed Hutton and Mrs. Grace Coolidge might be twins. That white-haired savant who takes his cat on a leash to the news reels. Broadway's close pals—Bide Dudley and Kelcey Allen. Sign: "We custom tailor your clothes." That's verbing it up!

Somewhere I have seen a statement credited to Ed Howe that "a good scare usually does a man more good than sound advice." That's right in a way and shows a discernment that comes only with thoughtful years. It is a circuitous way of saying experience is the best teacher. Yet most of us prefer sound advice and always seek it. However, it is difficult to find among men under 60. In a severe jam give me the 70-year-older. The Younger Generation's Old Fogey.

Many of the de-luxe hotels have special arrangements with former wealthy clients somewhat

a boon for both these troubled times. With so many suites vacant, old patrons may rent them for special cocktail parties at quarter rates or occupy them at half tariff for week-ends in town. This gives a hotel the impression of being busy and depression victims a patina of old-time pomp.

New York has completely abandoned the no-name high hat. It was once a symbol of hoity-toity to be known only by a number. Fifth avenue was especially packed with this aloofness. Twenty years ago there was not a sign on the thoroughfare from Madison Square to Plaza fountain. The last of the hold-outs were Altman's and Cartier's. The Ritz Carlton, from its opening until recently, was signless. The signs today are inconspicuous, but signs, nevertheless.

Borrah Minnevitch's harmonica players are the most highly paid in the world. No one in the raggedy regiment receives less than $100 a week and a few get $200. The idea for the gutter urchin orchestra was given to Minnevitch by Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld over a midnight cup of coffee at Lindy's. Minnevitch scoured the East Side sidewalks for recruits but found the ripest talent along the Brooklyn waterfront. Each youth—two are Negroes—is what he calls a "natural" that is a passionate lover of the harmonica. So much so, indeed, that off duty they go off in pairs to wah-wah in lunch stands, all night coffee pots and hamburger hutches. Just for the fun of it.

And with the sidewalk cafes—they've reached Harlem now—sprouting everywhere, the strolling musician has a paradise in contrast to usual skimpy pickings. He fringes the tables playing his saxaphone, violin or accordion and in such proximity few can resist passing out a coin. Of course, the troubadors know their psychology and usually play some tender love melody to a moon-eyed looking couple. This will often flush out a dollar bill.

There is one forlorn minstrel, haunting 5th avenue, who claims to have led orchestras for Fritzi Scheff and symphonies at Carnegie many years ago. In a tam, bow-tie and velveteen coat, he plays a violin like a figure out of a gypsy novel. He is reputed to make more than he did in the good old days. A nice idea, that.

* * *

So if things keep up and a tall, reedy fellow shows up plinking "Over the Waves" on the mandolin, I hope the response will be generous. No tinfoil nickels or under table tipping.

Nation's Elms Doomed By Scourge of Beetles Unless U. S. Finds Curb

All elm trees in the United States must be killed unless a concerted effort is made to check the menacing Dutch elm disease which has taken hold in the eastern states, according to Dr. O. N. Liming, of New York, lecturer at the tenth annual shade tree conference in Carnegie Museum today.

SHOT HOLES: OUT OF EACH CAME A BEETLE

Bark showing the tiny holes left by emerging beetles. Actual counts on representative areas showed that 100,000 beetles emerged from a 20-foot section.

The disease was brought into this country from Europe on elm logs imported in 1926.

The first case of the blight noted in this country was in Ohio in 1930 and was proportionately small. A large outbreak last year in metropolitan New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, however, may spread the disease over all the eastern elm areas.

The most conspicuous element of the blight is the tiny multistriatus beetle. This insect carries the deadly fungus from a sick tree to a healthy tree, which in turn soon dies when its water "veins" are dammed.

INNER BARK: HERE WERE THE EGGS

Inner bark showing the engravings that served as egg galleries. The long was about six inches, represented more than 200 eggs that were to produce beetles.

The beetles lay their eggs underneath the bark. Counts in several representative areas indicate that as many as 100,000 beetles have emerged from a 20-foot section of trunk to carry their scourge to healthy trees. The longest egg gallery was about 6 inches long, representing over 200 eggs.

The Dutch elm disease has a more deadly effect and acts more quickly than the chestnut blight which killed off most of the American chestnut trees during the World War, according to Dr. Liming. One normal elm was reported to have been killed three weeks after the fungus was planted.

The disease was first discovered in Holland by Dutch tree experts in 1919 and spread through Belgium and France to Italy, through Germany to the Balkan states, up into Scandinavia and over into Great Britain. Statistics show that 80 per cent of all elm trees in Europe are now dead because the efforts to control it were futile.

In proportion to the number of diseased areas in the United States the number of trees which have been affected is small.

Forestry experts are keeping a close watch for signs of the disease throughout the country. The Bureau of Plant Quarantine will not issue permits to import living elms. Requests have been made for any person knowing of a suspicious-looking elm to send a sample and its exact location to the Dutch Elm Disease Laboratory, Agricultural Experimental Station, Wooster, O.

There is no known means of preventing the disease except burning the blighted trees, according to Liming. He says a rule requiring the removal of the bark from imported logs before they leave Europe, and their treatment in hot water upon arrival in America, has been issued by the Bureau of Plant Quarantine.

Dr. Liming will lecture on control activities relative to the Dutch elm disease at a meeting of the tenth national shade tree conference in Carnegie Museum Lecture Hall tomorrow. Other speakers on the Dutch elm disease include Dr. Curtis May and Dr. R. Kent Beattie.

Dr. Liming is regional supervisor of the Dutch Elm Disease Eradication of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. He is located in the Bronx (N. Y.) branch.

CATTLE PARADE, POLO ON FAIR PROGRAM

Retreat by Boy Scouts And Horse Races Also Features

With a parade of livestock and horse racing continued, the program of the Allegheny County Fair in South Park today swung into its fourth day. A retreat by Boy Scouts and a horse polo game will bring the activities of the day to a close.

The principal attraction yesterday was the dog show in the forenoon, and Boy Scout demonstrations, horse show and military exhibitions in the afternoon. Judges in the horse show events were Mrs. W. C. Stevenson, of Middleburg, Va.; Gen. C. B. Mehard and Frank R. Evans.

TODAY'S PROGRAM

Today's program—Noon, parade of livestock; 2:30 to 5 p. m., horse show continued; 3:30 p. m., light harness and horse running races; 6 p. m., retreat by Boy Scout Camporal; 7 p. m., horse polo game.

Tomorrow's program—11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., classes in horse show; 2 p. m., track and field meet for men and boys and girls of the Allegheny Mountain Association district; 4 p. m., exhibition by volunteer firemen of Allegheny County, followed by parade; 6 p. m., retreat by Boy Scout Camporal; 6:30 p. m., amateur all-star boxing show of 12 bouts.

Winners were:

ISSUE RAISED BY BONDING COMPANY

Pittsburgh Case Goes Before Dauphin County Courts

The constitutionality of the State Liquor Control Board Act has been challenged in a suit filed in the Dauphin County Court by Louis Verille, of Station street, Pittsburgh, and the New Amsterdam Casualty Company.

Several weeks ago Judge Walter Dithrich revoked the liquor license held by Verille for operation of an establishment in Station street. Special Deputy Attorney General John M. Walker, who asked for the revocation, charged Verille had violated the law and that his bond should also be forfeited. Judge Dithrich ordered the license revoked and the $1,000 bond, which had been posted by the New Amsterdam Casualty Company, forfeited.

A copy of the court order was sent to Harrisburg by Walker and the State Attorney General's office sought to collect the bond.

In Harrisburg yesterday attorneys for Verille and the bonding concern opposed the forfeiture of the bond by filing a suit in the Dauphin County Court. It is expected that the casualty company case will be a test case, as it is the first of its kind under the new law.

In the petitions filed yesterday it is contended the state liquor act is unconstitutional in that it deprives the licensee of the right to appeal a revocation.

The liquor control act was written by Attorney General William A. Schnader and it will be his office that will fight the case of the Pittsburgh man and the bonding company.

The law states that the rulings of the Quarter Sessions Court in revocation proceedings shall be final and that there shall be no appeal.

Deputy Walker when interrogated concerning the case said:

"I think they will have a hard time knocking aside any parts of that act. The act was prepared by Mr. Schnader and he knows what he is doing on the matter of constitutionality."

REBUILD STORE ON FIFTH AVE.

Work is under way on the $50,000 modernization of the former Campbell department store building in Fifth avenue, it was announced today by the Commonwealth Real Estate Company.

The first floor of the eight-story building will be converted into three store rooms with an elaborate entrance to the upper floors. Black granite and stainless steel are being used in the decorating.

Construction will be completed within two months, and negotiations are being carried on now for first floor tenants. The building is owned by the Schenley estate.

Pair Held in Theft Of Woman's Auto

Two men were held in North Side Police Station today in connection with the theft of an automobile from Helen Ebert, who operates a confectionery store at 1107 Juniata street.

John Tongel, 31, of 1213 Juniata street, one of the two held, said he got into the automobile by mistake. His companion was Joseph Berry, 31, of 102 Lamont street.

LIQUOR FINES IMPOSED

Judge Joseph A. Richardson, of Criminal Court, yesterday imposed heavy fines on liquor law violators.

Solomon Wolkowitz, a tailor of Finance street, in whose place was found considerable "moonshine," told the court he would pledge not to violate the law again. Judge Richardson fined him $100 and put him on probation.

John Dudas, of Versailles Borough, in whose place was found a 25-gallon still and three barrels of mash, was fined $200 and paroled. Frank Bombalaski, of Natrona, was fined $100, and Annie Robick, also of Natrona, was fined $25 and paroled.

Officers of the Reali Carabinieri Beneficial Society, of 6454 Frankstown avenue, which is appealing the refusal of the State Liquor Control Board to grant a liquor license, were questioned by Judge Richardson.

Anthony Rizzo, of 6731 Deary street, produced the books, but said he had not had opportunity to post them since becoming secretary last June. Andrew Gallo, of Dormont, treasurer, said he had attended only two meetings this year. Frank Conumindo is president. Judge Richardson requested counsel to submit briefs.

Past Grand Matron Of Rebekah's Dies

SHOT AS BULLET ENTERS HOME

Four bullets fired by an unknown person resulted in the wounding of a man last night and put electric lights out of commission for an hour on Mahon street in the Hill district. Shots whizzed over the heads of two other persons.

Thomas Dyer, 40, Negro, of 2370 Mahon street, was shot in the leg while sitting in the kitchen of his home when a bullet entered through the window.

Mrs. Lena Finley, 40, of 2419 Webster avenue, and Alphonso Bey, Negroes, of Whitney terrace, told police they were walking down the Junilla street steps when they heard four shots. One of the bullets nearly hit Mrs. Finley, she said. Another struck an electric power line and put it out of commission. Homicide detectives began an investigation.

NO SHIP FARE, HANGS SELF

Unable to obtain passage money to Europe, where $2,000 awaited him as part of a land settlement, Eugene Shields, 45, of Painters Run road, Beadling, hanged himself in his home last night, the morgue reported.

Officials investigating the death reported the victim had recently received $245 to be used for transportation to Europe to receive $2,200. He spent the money for liquor, according to deputy coroners, and was brooding over his inability to obtain additional funds.

You Never Meet Professors in Classrooms Now

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

There is a big contest going on these days that nobody seems to know about.

Con Prof. Piccard go higher into the air than Prof. Beebee can dive deeper in the ocean?

What's getting into the professors anyway? You never meet one in a classroom any more.

Prof. Piccard has a balloon. Prof. Beebe has a diving bell. All the professors are running the government.

Tempest in Teapot Boils Over Dogs at County Fair

E. M. Joel, a licensed dog show superintendent of the American Kennel Club, today declared that persons who exhibit their dogs in the show at the county fair may be disqualified from other shows in the future.

Robert Maloney, local delegate to the American Kennel Club, assured exhibitors they would not be disqualified in future shows if they exhibited their pets at the fair.

It all began at the close of last year's fair. Joel had been hired by a representative of Commissioner C. C. McGovern to handle the dog show. Joel now says he has never been paid.

With the opening of the fair this year a number of exhibitors have declared they were told that if they exhibited their dogs in the show, they would not be qualified to enter other shows held under American Kennel Club regulations.

At the fair grounds yesterday several exhibitors withdrew their pets just before the judging and prize awarding took place. Joel said:

"I never told anyone they should stay out of the county fair show. I did point out, however, that if the county did not have the approval of the A. K. C. they would be barred from other meets. If the county is awarding prizes and judging dogs without approval of the A. K. C. it's not a fair show."

One exhibitor declared:

"Mr. Joel told me if I entered the show I would be disqualified in other meets. Besides, I would not leave my dog there. I saw an attendant rolling a dozen dogs in the same sawdust. That's mixing 12 sets of fleas."

Mr. Maloney declared:

"No one who exhibits at the park will be barred from any show. The American Kennel Club is too big to do anything like that. The point system is not used in awarding prizes at the fair and therefore the show does not come under AKC regulations."

School Dedication At Turtle Creek

The new Rose Street Park School, Turtle Creek, built by fathers of pupils with funds raised by mothers through bazars, parties and dances, will be dedicated tomorrow and an American flag raised atop the structure signifying its acceptance by the school board. The building will be equipped and classes will start Tuesday, according to Earl Stone, president of the Patton Heights Community Association.

STATE RELIEF DECISION MADE

from the federal government to feed and clothe unemployed Pennsylvanians until the regular session of the general assembly in January.

Gov. Pinchot said if the funds were not forthcoming he would summon the assembly.

The federal government replied it could give the state nothing more until it showed a "willingness" to share the relief burden.

In view of the important November elections, at which Pennsylvania will elect a new Governor, half its State Senate and an entire House of Representatives, it was agreed to call in gubernatorial nominees and chairmen of both parties to obtain a pledge that the 1935 administration would repay a new relief loan from the government in Washington.

Earle declined Wednesday night. So did Lawrence. In a tart message, Pinchot yesterday demanded Earle withdraw his "'discourteous" and "damaging" refusal.

DEFENDS STAND

The former minister to Austria, after conferring with James A. Farley, Postmaster General, and other Democrats at a dedication of a postoffice in Wilkes-Barre, replied last night, saying in part:

"From every moral, legal and practical viewpoint the responsibility and power to give relief to the unemployed in Pennsylvania rests alone with the existing Legislature.

"Regarding the expense of an extra session, I have awaited the suggestion from you that the legislators serve without pay. Failing to receive this . . . I now state I am confident the Democratic legislators will serve without pay . . . on this errand of mercy' . . . I feel sure Republican legislators can do no less.

"The moment you call a special session as evidence of good faith . . . funds for the unemployed will be advanced by the Federal Relief Administrator, who will be better satisfied by definite constitutional action than by promises of candidates."

Session Would Solve Problem, Lawrence Says

A call by Gov. Pinchot for a special session of the Legislature will bring immediate action by the federal government to continue the allocation of relief funds to Pennsylvania, Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence predicted today.

Lawrence returned to Pittsburgh this morning from Wilkes-Barre instead of proceeding to New York for the relief conference between Pinchot and Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins. Attorney General William A. Schnader and Republican State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor also had been invited to the conference, but declined when George H. Earle, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, kicked over the plan for a bi-partisan conference.

Lawrence said:

"Neither a candidate for governor or a state chairman can pledge legislators to a relief program in advance of their election. Gov. Pinchot in calling the conference for today was trying to stage a stampede on the last day on which the federal government is pledged to carry the relief load in Pennsylvania. For two months he has had before him Hopkins' ultimatum that Pennsylvania must help itself.

"The mere calling of a session will show the federal government that Pennsylvania is sincere, and that it is the legislators now elected who should meet the problem. A session will not cost $500,000. It need last no more than two weeks if there is leadership in the Republican party.

"The members can meet and impose a tax where it belongs in short order. The tax should be on manufacturers, for one source. Heretofore the Republicans have tried to shoulder the tax on the little fellow."

G. O. P. MEETING CALLED HERE

HARRISBURG, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—A call for a meeting of the Republican State Committee at Pittsburgh, September 8, was issued today by M. Harvey Taylor, state chairman.

The meeting was called "for the adoption of a platform and such other business" as may come before the committee.

A successor to William S. Vare as republican national committeeman is expected to be named. United States Senator David A. Reed, nominee for re-election, has been mentioned for the post.

A meeting of the Republican county chairmen and vice chairmen will be held the same afternoon at Pittsburgh.

The meeting will be just one day after the final date on which candidates may file petitions and the final day on which pre-emptions may be filed.

GARBAGE FOES URGE POWER PLANT PLAN

Proposals for a garbage incineration system that would save Pittsburgh more than $100,000 a year were made to City Council today by Attorney W. Clyde Grubbs, chairman of a group of citizens from the East End and contiguous districts who had opposed the erection of an incinerator on the Brilliant pumping station site in Highland Park.

In a letter to Robert Garland, president of Council, Attorney Grubbs intimated his group would be willing to withdraw its opposition if the city would alter its plans for the proposed incinerators to include a system for utilizing the energy created by the burning of the garbage.

TO OPERATE PUMPS

Mrs. Grubbs, who made a study of the project with a firm of engineers, said it would be possible for the proposed incinerators, with alterations in present plans, to generate sufficient power to operate electrical power plans at the Brilliant and North Side pumping stations.

Mr. Grubbs said at least $100,000 a year could be saved if the two proposed incinerators were equipped with power generating plants, and that if the two projects were combined into one big centrally located plant the saving would amount to more than $125,000 annually.

NORTH SIDE FOES JOIN

The incinerators, the attorney said, could generate enough power to drive the pumping station equipment and to provide electrical power for Highland Park.

Attorney Grubbs requested Council to withdraw its present applications from the County Commissioners and consider the new proposals at its meeting next Tuesday.

W. W. Stoner, who heads a group of North Side residents who had opposed the incinerator program, joined Attorney Grubbs in sponsoring the new proposals.

SINCLAIR SWEEP SPLITS PARTY

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—As Upton Sinclair sped east today for an interview with President Roosevelt, the expected rift in the Democratic party over the former Socialist's nomination for Governor had blown open.

As he boarded a train in Pasadena early today Sinclair expressed confidence he would win the California governorship in November and hoped he would return with the indirect support of the President. The noted author said:

"I don't expect the President to come out directly to support me or any other state candidate. But I feel my election is certain and am going to see if I can get federal aid for my EPIC (end poverty in California) plan if elected."

In San Francisco Justus S. Wardell, one of the leading party figures in the state and third on the Democratic ballot which Sinclair won in Tuesday's primary, said he would support either acting Gov. Frank Merriam, Conservative Republican nominee, or Raymond L. Haight, Progressive and Commonwealth party candidate.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today arranged an appointment here for next Tuesday with Upton Sinclair, California Democratic gubernatorial nominee and author of the "Epic" plan to end poverty in California.

POLITICS :: By Mark Shields

Earle's Refusal Causing Much Discussion

Entirely aside from the impropriety of the action of George H. Earle, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, in refusing to attend today's relief conference in New York, much discussion already has arisen as to the political repercussions, especially as they may affect leadership in the Democratic party.

Mr. Shields

Considering the episode chronologically, it will be recalled that on Wednesday State Chairman David L. Lawrence said that he and Mr. Earle would attend the New York conference along with Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins, Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Attorney General William A. Schnader, Republican candidate for Governor, and M. Harvey Taylor, the Republican state chairman.

Mr. Lawrence, as party leader, affected to speak for both himself and Mr. Earle.

Then Wednesday night in Scranton, Mr. Earle completely reversed the situation with a statement that he would not be present because nothing was to be served by such a meeting. And on the heels of this statement Mr. Lawrence said that Mr. Earle spoke his sentiments also.

This change of front by Mr. Lawrence has caused much speculation here among his friends. They are wondering whether political leadership of their party does not rest in the eastern end of the state, particularly in Philadelphia, rather than in the West through the influence of Mr. Lawrence and Joseph F. Guffey, the candidate for the Senate, and the apparent liaison with the Roosevelt administration.

Leadership of Party Swinging Eastward?

Certainly the wires became crossed somewhere, and when Mr. Earle made his statement Mr. Lawrence promptly fell into line. There are suspicions here that Mr. Earle was accepting his guidance from influential Philadelphia Democrats rather than from his state chairman.

In this connection it is recalled that Mr. Earle was not the original choice of Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Guffey for Governor. They had fixed upon Warren Van Dyke, former state chairman. But suddenly the picture changed, principally through the influence of David Stern, Philadelphia newspaper publisher, and there were reports that Albert M. Greenfield, Philadelphia real estate man, also had been somewhat instrumental in the Earle selection.

The Greenfield connection never has been fully confirmed, but there has been no question but what Mr. Stern was the man who principally brought about the slating of Mr. Earle as the Democratic organization candidate.

Furthermore, the political strategy of Mr. Earle is being condemned by many Democrats in this section who give serious thought to the condition of their party. They believe he made a wrong decision in foregoing the New York meeting. They also believe that Mr. Lawrence was at fault in acquiescing in this decision, and that he should have attended, even though Mr. Earle did not.

Lawrence at Fault In Failing to Meet

He could have done so as titular head of the party, the man who would have to get pledges from Democratic legislative candidates for co-operation on a relief program if any workable plan had been perfected.

As to the subject matter of Mr. Earle's statement, there is no objection among Democrats. They are in unison in their belief that no negotiable pledges to an abstract relief program for the next regular session can be secured, either from Democrats or Republicans. In this they are joined by Republicans who acknowledge that there is no discipline in their own party which could enforce pledges.

Moreover, there was some prejudgment of what was to be offered today, and from any standpoint a hasty and arbitrary action by Mr. Earle. Democrats believe he should have waited until today in New York, and then have made his statement if he felt it justified.

There is the additional factor of the criticism which has been leveled at Mr. Earle by Governor Pinchot. The Governor was unequivocal in his castigation of the Democratic candidate, making it certain that he can give no assistance to him in the coming campaign.

Indeed, the upshot may be that Mr. Pinchot, who might at least have been restrained to a position of watchful waiting in the campaign, now will continue his attacks upon the Democrats, though that need not bring him to warm enthusiasm for Senator David A. Reed.

But the principal point under discussion is who is the leader of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania at the present time. At the moment it appears to be Mr. Earle in the foreground, though other people in the East probably are not far in the background.

M'NAIR, MORITZ PROBE LOOMS

mates of the cost to the city of taking the two properties.

Schofield places the responsibility for hiring Brown at the door of McNair and Moritz, hinting it was a "favor" to Brown.

Mayor McNair, asked today if he had authorized a re-appraisement of the properties, replied:

"It involves litigation. I can't say much about the case until it is over. It all comes up in court."

Moritz said:

"Whatever happened did not happen on my initiative. I'm a subordinate around here and take orders."

Schofield reported that Moritz had taken Brown into the Law Department August 15, and insisted on seeing the original appraisal figures.

FIGURES REFUSED

These were refused at first, Schofield said, because they are usually held confidential. He added:

"On August 17, he (Brown) got the copies of the original appraisals, and Ward Bonsall, special city solicitor, stated the Mayor wanted a reappraisal."

Brown returned on August 28 with the reappraisals and put in his bill for $1,750. Brown's estimate of probable property damages by reason of the Bigelow boulevard improvement, was $527,999, about $7,000 below the figures of the original appraisals.

BOOSTS ESTIMATE

Brown's estimate of damages in the Brookline boulevard improvement was $104,618 in addition to $14,620 damage to the right-of-way of the Pittsburgh Railways Company. The original appraisers placed the damages at $75,008.

Controller James P. Kerr, joining with Schofield, said he would ask for a check-up by Council of two $100 vouchers for "services" by Brown, which Kerr has held up.

In one instance, Kerr declared, Brown was not asked to perform the service. In the other, the Controller asserted, he was informed the law department under Cornelius D. Scully had carried on negotiations with the Pittsburgh Railways Company, owners of the property, eliminating necessity for damage payments.

GIRL MART CASE FACES PROBE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Dr. John P. Buckley, acting foreman of the county grand jury, said today a written request had been made to Attorney General U. S. Webb for appointment of a special prosecutor to head a grand jury investigation of the handling of the so-called "girl mart" scandal of 1931 by the District Attorney's office.

The request was turned over to Assistant Attorney General John W. Maltman, who said he would lay it before Webb.

The main point of investigation, it was said, is the dismissal of charges in the girl case against John P. Mills, wealthy real estate man. Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, and Jesse Shreve, of San Diego, were tried on morals charges in San Diego in connection with the case. The charges were dismissed after a jury failed to agree.

Mills never was brought to trial, although the county went to considerable expense in housing some of the girl witnesses in a downtown hotel, authorities said. In the case, it was charged young girls were furnished to wealthy men patrons for gay parties.

MOONEY HAPPY OVER SINCLAIR

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Thomas J. Mooney, serving a life term in San Quentin Prison for the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, was described today as "jubilantly happy" over the nomination of Upton Sinclair as Democratic candidate for Governor of California.

Miss Anna Mooney said she had visited her brother at the prison and found him rejoicing.

Direct comment by Mooney on the nomination of the man who has promised to pardon him if elected Governor, was forbidden by Warden James B. Holohan, of San Quentin, who declared:

"It would be poor business for convicts in a state prison to be discussing state elections."

Miss Mooney said her brother realized, however, "that the same powers which sent him to prison will make every possible effort to keep him there."

Miniature Fair Delights Settlement Children

More than a thousand Hill district children had happy memories today of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement's second little world's fair, held at the settlement house yesterday.

Chief feature of an all-day program was "The Precious Sixpence," an operetta in two acts, which brought dozens of nursery rhyme characters, impersonated by a cast of 130 children, to the stage. Marguerite Reed was the author.

Other attractions included a dance on the roof garden, a handicraft exhibition, and the junior Olympics, athletic events on both land and water.

The playground yesterday afternoon, furnished as a "midway," was one of the most popular spots. There entertainment included a Punch and Judy show and a weight-guessing booth.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

Mayfair --With--

Patricia Pitt

Today brings not only tidings of September brides and the parties given for them, but also of returned honeymooners who were married this summer.

Miss ...

I refer to the Christopher Magee Steels, who have returned from a prolonged honeymoon in the West and have opened their residence in Beacon street for the autumn and winter.

Their wedding was an event of May 16 in the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer.

They have visited, during the past three months, La Jolla, Ensenada, Monterey Peninsula, Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz, Bear Lake, Lake Tenaya, Mariposa Grove, Yosemite, Lake Tahoe, San Francisco, Seattle, British Columbia, Salt Lake City, Zion National Park and Grand Canyon National Park. Before starting home they made a sea voyage from San Francisco to Seattle.

Programs Of Review Varied

MRS. CHARLES M. BEGGS

Into many fields the Liberary Review has gone in search of programs for next season and fiction, the drama, the movies, art, music, current events and citizenship will all be touched upon before the year ends. September 14 is the first meeting date and it is on that afternoon that novels of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries will be compared, types of American novels will be discussed and last year's history of the club will be presented.

Eva Le Gallienne's life story is one of the topics to be taken up at the October session at which Mrs. Clifford C. Taylor, State Federation chairman of work for the blind, will be a guest speaker and will talk on "Our Neighbor's Children." A visit to the Allegheny Observatory is another October event. The new year books list the four lectures which are to be given at the International Art Exhibit in Carnegie Institute.

Mrs. Stephen M. Byers, of Washington, Pa., citizenship chairman in the State Federation of Pennsylvania women, is to be a November speaker, talking on "Temperance Education" and on the same program Mrs. Floyd H. Nickeson, one of the club members, will have a paper on "Training Our Children for World Citizenship." The club quartet will furnish music for the Yule program which will also have other special features.

Book reviews, a talk on "City-Owned Institutions," an address by Mrs. Jennie Bradley Roessing on "Our Juvenile Court," an evening party at which the Rev. William Victor Parsons, pastor of the Brighton Road Presbyterian Church, will be the speaker, a study of motion pictures and a guest day are further promises from the program committee for the year ending June 14.

Mrs. Birdie Hyman Feldbaum, of the Morrowfield apartments, Squirrel Hill, will arrive home Sunday after spending the summer in Atlantic City and other eastern resorts. Mrs. Elias Hyman, of the Morrowfield, will return late this week from Atlantic City, where she has been for the summer.

Ladies Auxiliary To Be Entertained

The Ladies' Auxiliary to Allegheny Commandery No. 35, Knights Templar, will be entertained at luncheon in Malta Temple, West North avenue, on Wednesday. Mrs. J. E. Reed is chairman. After luncheon there will be a business meeting and cards.

Allison Park Girl Is Wed

Dr. and Mrs. George F. Roberts, of Allison Park, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Charlotte H. Roberts, to John A. Rhorer, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Rhorer, of Glenshaw.

The ceremony took place in the Allison Park Community Church yesterday morning with the pastor, the Rev. Mark Wingard, officiating.

The bride wore a traveling suit of pearl grey with a corsage of yellow tea roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Mrs. Roy Carroll, was her matron of honor, and Mr. Carroll was best man.

After a motor trip east Mr. and Mrs. Rhorer, Jr., will reside in Glenshaw.

Pittsburgh Folks Visiting Ontario

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Callahan and their son, Michael, of Sheridan avenue, are at their cottage at Sturgeon Beach, Ontario. For the past two weeks they have had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lloyd and their son, Jack, of Northumberland street; James W. McClymonds and J. R. McClintock, of the East End.

B. P. W. to Hold Corn Roast

The final outdoor activity of the Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club for this season will be a corn roast at the home of the president, Miss Marie Maloney, on Thursday evening of next week.

Groups Set Dates for Roasts

Supper will be served from 5:30 to 7:30 at the corn roast to be held Thursday in Olympia Park, Mt. Washington, by Alameda Chapter, No. 391, Order of the Eastern Star, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Ruth M. Campbell.

Mrs. Frank Yohn is general chairman for the annual corn roast of Loyalty Chapter, No. 345, also set for Thursday. It will take place in Riverview Park with dinner from 5:30 to 7 o'clock.

Century Court, No. 166, Order of the Amaranth, has scheduled a corn roast at the shelter house near the oval in Schenley Park for Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock. Special plans have been made for the entertainment of children. In case of rain the affair will be held on Thursday evening. Mrs. Ida Cohen heads the general committee and has Mrs. Celia Mendoza as co-chairman and Miss Anna Goldbloom as ticket chairman.

Electa Chapter, No. 51, of the Eastern Star, has planned a bake sale and card party at the Rosenbaum Home Arts Studio for Saturday, September 8, with Mrs. Nellie E. Wagner as chairman.

Miss Wooldridge Will Be Honored

Invitations are out for the reception which the Woman's Civic Club of Wilkinsburg will give Thursday afternoon, September 13, in honor of Miss Edith L. Wooldridge, the new president. The affair will take place at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel and acceptances are being taken by Mrs. Karl M. Hewitt.

Cereal Crepes In Fashion Parade

By DOROTHY ROE

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Oatmeal has stepped out of the breakfast nook and into the parlor.

As a matter of fact the whole cereal family has been elevated to sudden honor among the style moguls, and no more shall cornflakes blush unseen on the kitchen shelf.

Cereal crepes are the newest wrinkle in the fall fashion parade, and when you hear a young lady calling for her farina nowadays you mustn't leap at the conclusion that she's talking about her breakfast.

She's probably referring to her new fall frock of farina, which is a crepe with tiny, rough flecks and one of the ring-leaders in the cereal fashion serial.

Oatmeal is a soft, flaky looking crepe, which will appear in some of the most dashing daytime frocks of the season, tailored to the last notch and presented in an array of vivid fall colors designed to brighten up the landscape.

Anniversaries Are Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin A. Patterson, of Belle Vernon, celebrated their sixty-fifth wedding anniversary on August 15 with a family dinner, and at the same time their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. V. George Cope, of Detroit, Mich., celebrated their twenty-seventh anniversary.

Scout Leaders To Be Given Courses

Training courses by correspondence for "lone" Girl Scout leaders who have been unable to attend training courses or schools will be offered by the national organization this fall. These leaders who number about 3,000 and are too scattered to be reached by personal contact have long been asking for the training by mail.

The correspondence course which is being prepared by the personnel staff at national headquarters in New York City will, it is hoped, meet this need. The course will be a six lesson one covering the fundamentals of Girl Scout leadership, and the charge will be nominal.

Nearly 2,000 Girl Scout leaders have taken courses in the national training schools and camps throughout the summer.

Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, of Montclair, N. J., noted consulting engineer and member of the Girl Scout national board, is chairman of the personnel division. Miss Agnes Leahy is its executive secretary.

George R. Yulkey, Edward J. Ohl, Jr., and John W. Turnblacer, of Mt. Lebanon, will motor to Atlantic City Saturday, September 15.

Helen Loomis Engaged to Marry

At a party given in their home last night, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Loomis, of William Penn highway, Wilkinsburg, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Myria Loomis, to Harold W. Gehring, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Among the guests were a number of Miss Loomis' Chi Omega Sorority sisters. Both she and her fiance are students at the University of Michigan, where she is majoring in bacteriology in the school of science, and Mr. Gehring is in the school of medicine.

Board Meeting Of Home Tuesday

Important business will come up for discussion at the board meeting of the Jewish Home for Babies and Children, to be held Tuesday at 1:30 o'clock in Kaufmann's dining room.

Retail Credit Men Will Hold Dance

A dinner dance will be held Wednesday, September 12, at the Pines by the Retail Credit Men's Association. A. C. Dunn is general chairman of the committee in charge.

Martha Black Elected to Office

Miss Martha C. Black has been elected vice president of the Women's Club of Wilkinsburg to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Mrs. F. F. Rohrer. Mrs. Rohrer, who will still be president of the College Club next year, would also have become president of the Wilkinsburg club, as the vice president always proceeds to the presidency in that organization.

Miss Black has been a member of the club since 1908 and has served as secretary, treasurer and assistant secretary.

Minister, Wife Return Tomorrow

After spending August at Lake Mohonk Mountain House, Mohonk Lake, N. Y., the Rev. Dr. William Porkess, of St. Stephen's rectory, Wilkinsburg, will return tomorrow.

So much for the big game hunting of new frocks and suits and hats for fall. We're out for smaller fry at the moment . . . and this is what we've bagged! A miscellaneous assortment . . .

Beginning with a cream dispenser (and its not from a dairy farm, either!) One of those nice little gadgets that one only discovers accidentally—and always wants. A little bakelite case resembling your rouge compact . . . in pastel shades. The bottom unscrews and you put a blob of cream on it, then screw it back into the case. When ready to do a little creaming, reach into your bag for this little dingus . . . twist the screw a trifle, and a bit of cream comes out the top. Twist the screw the other way and the superfluous cream disappears! Simple! And for 25c. (Nice for business women, college girls, and even mother's town bag!)

This is about the season when the harvest moon will be "shining on" unless we're greatly mistaken . . . and it's certainly the season when thrifty housewives are doing their canning and pickling.

So that word of the sturdy corn scrapers that are to be had for 35 cents might come in handy! Staunch wooden frames with a wicked row of metal "teeth" grinning in their middle. Easy to run the corn through and get only the best of it for canning.

Also, an individual corn scorer to serve with the golden bantam that is brought to your dinner table. That is, for those who don't like to gnaw! 25 cents.

We're slightly muddled — been looking at muddlers and considering their various types and which to choose. And came to the conclusion that the aluminum ones at 10c are pretty good for muddling purposes — although they look like big silvery nails. Lightweight enough that they won't chip pieces out of your best glassware!

For Labor Day spree-ers — if you won't be too cold outside! For nursery cupboards — if you have a youngster in the house! For the kitchen in your apartment —if you're just keeping house "lightly": We suggest . . .

These perfectly swellish galvanized metal boxes that come with handles, making them easy to carry . . . and a separate, covered compartment inside that can be moved around. Excellent for lugging a whole 24-hours food along with you on Labor Day! Equally good for keeping the baby's bottles fresh and handy in the nursery cupboard. Splendid for the business girl who wants a few knicknacks on hand and hasn't much space for a refrigerator! Painted a cheerful green . . . and priced $2.25.

Bridge prize . . . future holiday gift . . . or just something nice for yourself! A little round box of Chinese lacquer decorated in red or plain gold . . . filled with 12 coasters. So convenient to have on a table when guests drop in and begin to clutter up the place with glasses that need coasters (if your furniture is to be spared!) 50c the set.

—DOROTHY RANDALL.

These New Wool Frocks Trimmed by Tricks With Patterns

By PRUNELLA WOOD

PERFECTLY PLAIN wool frocks which don't need another thing to enhance them beyond the manipulation of their elegant material are rather hard to come by. But when one has been run to earth, it becomes a dear friend till it drops to pieces from excessive popularity in the wardrobe.

This fall finds many clever tricks with striped and plaided stuffs recommending a lot of models. The independent look of a wide, loose blouse coupled to a sleek tube skirt, now so desirable, is wonderfully worked out by clever spotlighting of plaid designs which have been patched together to bring out the squares in an exaggerated manner over the bodice. Stripes have been impressed to duty in pencil-silhouetting skirts. The under sides of some models look very much like the ribs of an umbrella, so closely and cleverly have the fitting gores been carved out of the stripe of the fabric used.

PLAIN COLORED fabrics of intricate weave lend themselves to clever cutting and sewing. Almost any good point in a figure can be accented, while the poorer ones are soft-pedalled, by skillful use of the weave and way of a fabric—but it takes more than an amateur to cash in on the possibilities.

But this fall, whatever the device used to play up a fabric, it will have some interesting fastener or belt or whatnot to give it novel dash. Leather buttons, often in monogram form, gargoyles, sea horses, clasped hands, gold pens—anything but stove lids and colanders have been thought up and manufactured in lieu of clips and buttons, you might say, and the season is yet young, at that.

FROCKS OF this type should be shortish, or they will lose their dash. For all they are rich in dressmaker detail, they should not be of too conservative length. About 12 inches from the floor is the happy point to chop off most of them, for most types of figure.

3 Sailors Vanish, Sea Monster Blamed

CHANARAL, Chile, Aug. 31—(AP)—Chile, too, had its sea monster today.

A huge sea creature described as 35 feet long, is reported to have appeared in the bay today. Fisherfolk were panic-stricken. Recent mysterious disappearance of three fishermen was immediately attributed to the monster.

BARUCH IN HUGE SUIT OVER OIL

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The Times says Bernard Baruch, Wall street operator and unofficial adviser to the Roosevelt administration, has associated himself with the pending litigation to recover a $50,000,000 fortune in petroleum lands in the Kettleman Hills of Central California, scene of many a stirring account of over-night riches.

Baruch, the newspaper says, is a former stockholder in the Medallion Oil Company.

The Medallion Oil Company has filed suit against the General Petroleum Corporation, controlled by Socony-Vacuum Oil Company; the Continental Oil Company, controlled by J. P. Morgan, and the three widows of Washington Henry Ochsner, once head of the Stanford University geological department.

The newspaper says "Baruch and his associates" in the Medallion Oil Company charge in a bill of complaint that the defendants are illegally in possession of oil lands or profits rightfully belonging to the Medallion stockholders.

FORBES, BRIDE HITCH HIKE

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Ralph Forbes, actor, and his bride, Heather Angel, British actress, returned to Hollywood yesterday firmly convinced there is more fact than fancy in the old saying, "Love will find a way."

En route to Yuma, Ariz., where they were married by a justice of the peace, the couple's automobile stalled.

Forbes, who is the former husband of Ruth Chatterton, and his fiancee "thumbed" a ride some 30 miles to the nearest town and continued to Yuma by train, leaving instructions with a garage to tow in the automobile.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

This column is being written by PAUL YAWITZ until MR. WINCHELL returns next week.

A Columnist, Who Is His Own Worst See'y, Jots Down a Few Mea y Mem-s to Him elf!

Dear F. Y.: The facts arrived today—about the sudden return to the U. S. A. of the 2 local pretties who went to London to decorate a chorus-line. . . . It seems they did an A. W. O. L. on the show when a duo of noted Maharajas gave them each $5,000 for incidentals to spend a week-end with them in Egypt. . . . The expense money was handed out in London, but when they reached Paris en route to the Mediterranean, the American consul heard about it, stepped into the picture and said, "No" . . . So the babes took the first liner for Manhattan—and tho' they are unemployed, they go to the bank every day to count their What It Takes . . . You can emphatically deny the headlines which stated that Ozzie Nelson and his sweetness, Harriett Hilliard are Man-and-Wife—they will be thankful. . . . Doris Duke and Jimmy Cromwell were Casino-ing, and that ton of jewelry you reported last week was shining happily from her left digit. They danced every dance together.

Say something about Lew Brown's score for his new "Yokel Boy Makes Good" . . . He, Ballard MacDonald and Harry Akst have clustered themselves in his scandale-ish and are more than halfway finished with the book—which promises to be the best of their careers. . . . As usual, Brown's ditties will smack the nation especially his "Straw Hat in the Rain" which will outdo "Love Thy Neighbor". . . . And don't forget "I Don't Want to Be President—If it Means My Losing You" and a mad torch ballad, "I'm Stepping Out of the Picture". . . . After hearing the numbers, I don't think he's doing a show—he's doing four.

Joan Blondell long-distanced anxiously from H'wood to nag about her sister, Gloria, who had just emerged from an operation . . . The brave little gal underwent the knife without letting her clan on the Coast know about it—and I told Joan that it sounded much more serious in print than it actually was . . . Gloria has thoroughly recovered and will go into a B'way drama to get experience for the films despite the fact that Fox offered her a seven-year contract, experience or no experience . . . The Harry Laymans (Maxine "Follies" Robbins) will end it with a Mex-plosion.

Bee Palmer phoned . . . She says all reports about her splitting with Jack Finna, her pianist, are exaggerations in view of the fact that they were never actually hitched . . . Cables from London report that Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds" at the Coliseum are the smash of the town, drawing bigger raves than his sensational Florence Mills musical eight years ago . . . Lucille Kreimick, just off the Ile de France, came back with a Parisian wardrobe of 60 gowns—and is she stunning! . . . It wouldn't be fair to divulge his name, but his gag is the best of the year . . . He weighs 240 pounds and a West Coast producer wired him that if he would take off 40 pounds within 90 days he could have a major role in a good picture . . . The actor wired back that he would, but when the 90 days were up he discovered he hadn't lost a single pound . . . So, he went to his tailor and ordered three new suits—all four sizes too large for him . . . When he arrived on the coast last week, the first thing the producer noticed was the baggy clothing . . . "Say, that's marvelous," he told the actor, "I really didn't think you'd get down to weight."

Every star in town is clamoring to be put on the list that will appear at the German refugee benefit at Yankee Stadium Sept. 20 . . . I am referring them all to Louis K. Sidney and N. Kenny, who are supervising the talent . . . The Transients Emergency Relief Aid are badly in need of a piano. Can you get them one? They are caring for over 200 unemployed . . . Lord Inverclyde, who fell for one of the Dorchester exhibits (exported by N. T. G.) told her to go to a Bond St. Kennel and buy a puppy . . . The most it could have cost was about $40 . . . But when he received the bill it was for $100 . . . So he requested an itemized account, and discovered the lass had not only bought a basket, leash, muzzle, dog-soap, etc., but had also included "return fare to U. S." . . . Bert Lahr was at the best of his career in "Life Begins at 8:40"—a show without a dull moment. Dave Freedman's skit about the "Stock Broker" panic'd the opening-nighters . . . One of W. W.'s largest scallions to the Temporary Emergency Relief Adm. for its dismissal of Sylvia Ettinger, relief teacher who was fired from P. S. 36 in Bklyn. for giving lunches to undernourished children despite the fact they had no lunch tickets, and for its refusal to give her a complete hearing.

Your severest critic,

Paul Yawitz.

Powell's New Film Here

By MICHAEL SHAW

"Dames," latest in the Warner Brothers' series of expensive musical films, opened in the Stanley yesterday.

"Dames" is a good deal like its predecessors, and no one can deny their success. It has the usual cast—Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler, Joan Blondell, Guy Kibbee and Hugh Herbert, with Zasu Pitts as an added starter. Busby Berkeley handled the spectacles. Harry Warren wrote at least some of the music, and it sounds very much like "Forty-Second Street" and all the rest.

The plot is the backstage one, with the first night climax. This time there are some fantastic comedy overtones and yesterday's audiences found it pretty uproarious, especially when Mr. Herbert had the hiccoughs.

Mr. Berkeley draws some entirely new designs with his chorus of Hollywood beauties. One number presents the glorification of Ruby Keeler. With the aid of mirrors, photographs, and what have you, Mr. Berkeley has allowed us to see dozens, simply dozens, of Ruby Keelers, all performing at one time. Well, maybe you like Miss Keeler.

Mr. Powell is, if possible, a little more self-assured than ever. Mr. Herbert remains an engaging comedian in a rather bad part. Miss Blondell and Mr. Kibbee must be getting awfully tired of doing the same things in every picture.

But the paying patrons apparently aren't tired of this type of entertainment. They turned out in large numbers yesterday, and they seemed to enjoy every minute of it.

New York's Chinatown turns out en masse to hail Gen. Tsai Ting Kai, who stopped the Japanese onrush on Shanghai.

Lukas Once Mum In Vocal Role

Paul Lukas is said to be the only actor on the screen today who once was featured in an all-talking picture and acted his role, a speaking one, without uttering a word. The incident occurred when Lukas, now playing in RKO Radio's "The Fountain," He couldn't speak a word of English. Studio officials were so impressed with his histrionic ability that they remade the film and hired another actor to speak his lines for him.

Murder Mystery Solved In Warner Film

By MARGARET RUSSELL

Dragons, pianos and bulls comprise the respective themes of the two feature pictures and the short comedy at the Warner this week. Or to put it another way: Murder Dumb Husbands and Joe Penner. That is, Joe Penner is synonymous with the "bulls" part of this tri-fold cinema pattern. But in the title role of "The Toreador" he doesn't kill the bull in Sid Franklin's Brooklyn style. He puts salt on its tail and rides him. The bull, IMargaret Lindsay mean.

But to get back to the feature pictures. Philo Vance stalks the murderer to his lair again, this time in the person of Warren William in S. S. Van Dine's "The Dragon Murder Case," with Margaret Lindsay and Lyle Talbot providing the love interest. Don't be disappointed when you find only two people are murdered. Everyone looks suspicious including a wily butler who nearly gets murdered himself, in proper murder mystery fashion.

If you have the good fortune to see the "dragon" part of the program first, you can do one of two things when the second half of the program flashes across the screen. You can sit back and relax and laugh, if you've a mind to, at George Bancroft and Frances Fuller as "Elmer and Elsie." Elmer is a truck driver in a piano factory and Elsie is a music teacher from Akron. They get married and complications ensue when Elsie doesn't stick to cooking the beans in the kitchen. Though if she hadn't, I don't know what would have become of Elmer. That is your first alternative. Or if you already know what happens when smart wives try to manage dumb husbands, you can go home. Cheerio!

The program includes Pathe News.

Morning Matinees For Children

Saturday morning matinees for children, sponsored by local branch of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, will be held at 10 o'clock in the Enright and South Hills Theaters. In the former the bill will include Tom Mix in "Rider of Death Valley," Mickey Mouse and Betty Boop cartoons, Thelma Todd and Patsy Kelly in a two-reel comedy, and George Van Why's singing party. The South Hills program will feature Tim McCoy in "Voice of the Night," and there also will be chapters of two serials, "Tarzan, the Fearless," and Buck Jones in "The Red Rider."

Garage, Automobile Damaged by Flames

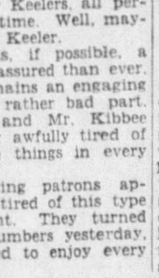
Fire starting from a short circuit in an automobile caused $100 damage to the car and $25 to a garage, owned by John H. Robinson, of 2504 Berthoud street, last night.

Film of Large Magnitude On View In Fulton

By MILDRED FILLMORE

A picture that merits serious attention of intelligent persons, because of the excellence of the production as whole and the condensation, pictorially and dramatically, of a story that is panoramic in action, is "The World Moves On," current on the Fulton screen. Franchet Tone and Madeline Carroll play the leading roles in this expansive picture, the time of which covers 100 years, and touches both sides of the Atlantic, as it follows several branches of a family into their homes and business offices in the United States, England, Germany and France.

"The World Moves On," by the way, was the first to receive the certificate of indorsement of the self-censorship bureau of the movie industry.



Miss Carroll

The story begins with a prologue in Louisiana, with a deceased leader in the cotton industry, through his will, urging members of his family to establish branches in the countries mentioned, and thus insure that it would, through solidarity, be never impoverished, but always strong and important in the industrial world. And so it is for a hundred years, when, in the depression of 1929, the family fortune is wiped out, and the finale finds two young representatives of the clan back on the old plantation ready to begin all over again.

The fate of this family, originally American-English, brings several of them into the World War, as nationals of the country in which they live, fighting against one another as a matter of patriotism, but there is no bitterness when the conflict ends, and they again are united in their original purpose, and wax more prosperous than ever before.

The romantic side is carried by Mr. Tone, descendant of the American founder of the family, and Miss Carroll, whose ancestor, not related by blood, established the English branch. This angle of the film is not emotionally prominent, but it suffices to give a photoplay that is filled with interesting incident the love interest that seems to be so essential. Mr. Tone is at home in his characterization of a sleek young man whose boldness is the cause of the loss of the family fortune. Miss Carroll, who bears some resemblance to Ann Harding, seems to lack vivacity, but perhaps she was expected to display English restraint, and knew how to do it, being English herself.

CAST IS STRONG ONE

The cast throughout is of high caliber, and there are several outstanding portrayals, especially those of Reginald Denny, Siegfried Rumann, Dudley Digges and Stepin Fetchit. The latter takes care of the comedy, before, during and after the war, which he is so happy to leave that he chortles over a wound that sends him to a hospital.

Pictorially it is most impressive, scenes ranging from the simplicity and quaint beauty of the old South to the terrific struggle on the battlefield, with many interludes such as an almost-royal wedding and its gayety, and an authentic mass service on the war front, with a soldier effectively singing "Ave Maria."

Alvin Bows In Mirth Bill

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Baby Take a Bow" is the title of the opening film in the Harris Alvin, shown last night for the first time in the presence of a large audience, many of the patrons in their evening best for an auspicious occasion, for such it was. Really two babies were taking bows, the theater and Shirley Temple, juvenile star of the picture featuring the program, which today is on the regular daily schedule, running from forenoon until near midnight. It may seem odd to call a theater 43 years old a baby, but we're not talking about that house. That was the old Alvin, of which only the walls remain. The interior, from sidewalk to stage, and from carpet to dome, is the new Harris Alvin, all fresh and lusty with youth, the youngest theater in Pittsburgh.

Shirley Temple

There was a gala program of preliminary events, in which congratulations to the Harris management were much in order, after which followed an entertaining screen program, featuring "Baby Take a Bow."

SHIRLEY WHOLE THING

But for the presence of little Miss Temple in the picture it would be just an ordinary crook comedy drama, but the adorable child, who is the feminine answer to the masculine sway of Jackie Cooper, makes it a feast of charm and comedy and suspense.

The story concerns two young men, one of them married, who have spent time in that institution known as the big house, who are in the employ of a rich man. A pearl necklace is stolen, and a preliminary investigation discloses that the boys have prison records and their jobs are forfeit. Furthermore they are under suspicion, and the comedy riot comes when the dumbest of the detectives searches the house in which one of the lads, James Dunn, his wife, Claire Trevor, and their child, Shirley, live.

SCREAMING SITUATION

There is much screaming as the search goes on, for the missing necklace actually is in the room, its presence being unknown to everyone except Miss Shirley, and the way she switches it about in innocent play that has the power to send her daddy—a straight lad, incidentally—back to a cell is both tense and ludicrously humerous.

For the balance of the program there is an organlogue in which Bernie Armstrong sets the audience to singing as of yore—and how it went for "The Man on the Flying Trapeze"—a novelty short film, featuring Val and Ernie Stanton, and a movie in which Ed Lowry acts as master of ceremonies.

And it is a good program.

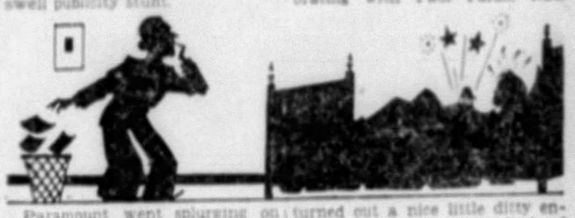
HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARK

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 11.—Hello. The week-end's shindigs. All this romantic fuss between Glenda Farrell, Robert Riskin and Bobbie Simon has reached the boring stage, especially when they try to mix up communists. Does it really matter after all? The John Murdock Jr.'s are baby b uggy shopping . . . Barbara Weeks and Big Boy Williams will face the preacher in about four weeks! . . . Phil Rosen is slated to direct "West of The Pecos," a curse-opera with Richard Dix in the stellar role, for RKO . . . Lee Tracy and Isabel Jewell are on the warpath for those sabby artists who claim they're frowning at each other. It's just the opposite.

Miss Farrell

A small boy's tummy ache proved to be the big pain in a swell publicity stunt.



Paramount went splurging on an idea to be pulled in San Francisco. David Jack Holt, the new kid sensation, was to be sent to the Bay City to meet Max Baer, his screen partner in "It's on the Cuff." It seems that Praise Agent Tom Baily let little David eat too much on the choo-choo, resulting into a two-day siege in bed for the youngster with a stomach ache bad enough for five kids. All the plans for publicity breaks, banquets and the like went right in the waste basket.

Sam Wood, formerly one of M-G-M's ace megaphonists, who promised he wouldn't work while on his European vacation, has weakened to the lure of British International Pictures and has signed to direct one production. He will, however, have his yarn prepared by Hollywood writers. England has put over another scoop!

Betty Furness, recently slated under contract to M-G-M following her departure from RKO, has been loaned for a second time to her former studio "home." This time she replaces Marian Nixon as the lead in "The Kick-Off" featuring Eddie Quillan. Lydia Westman's been signed for a featured role in "Sweet Adeline" at Warners . . . Stuart Walker, Universal director, is in bandages. A ladder fell on his head! . . . Marlene Dietrich has gone back to her favorite tailors and ordered a flock of new suits (with several pairs of pants, no less) . . . Lynne Overman claims he is the only Hollywood actor who hasn't been asked by Max Reinhardt to play in "A Midsummer's Night" . . . Alan Mowbray hopes it's a boy!

Well, this tops everything. Nate Stein has written a song! Collaborating with Paul Parks, Nate turned out a nice little ditty entitled, "That Was the End of Love"

When "Death Valley" Scotty bounced out of the Brown Derby, he was pounced on by dozens of autograph-seekers.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Bribe

THE MOTORCYCLE siren echoed shrilly through the lonesome neighborhood.

"All right, buddy. Pull over."

The low, red car came to a grinding halt at the extreme right of the road. Motorcycle Officer Williams parked his machine near the left fender of the car.

"Nice goin', kid," he observed. "Doin' over sixty all the way, and it took me almost a mile to catch you. Gimme your license."

The man at the wheel rubbed his chin nervously. He was dressed entirely in white, from his Panama hat to his polished shoes. But his face contrasted strangely with his attire. He was red, worried, nervous.

"I'm—I'm sorry, officer," he stammered. "I—I didn't know I was going that fast."

"Oh, you didn't, eh? I suppose your speedometer is broken and you just had no way of tellin.' That's it, ain't it? Gimme your license."

The man in white leaned out a trifle further.

"Listen, officer," he said quickly. "Have you got a heart?"

Officer Williams appeared slightly startled.

"Sure I got a heart," he admitted. "And I'm tellin' you right now that it's much bigger than the heart of a guy who'll drive sixty miles an hour through city streets and endanger lives and property.

"Now quit your stallin' and hand over your license. You ain't gonna get no place with me."

The other man swallowed hard.

"Officer," he blurted. "I haven't any driver's license.

"We threw a big party over at my house last night, and this car belongs to a friend who was there. We all had a lot to drink, and the guy that owns this car started to fool around with my wife. If we hadn't been drinking, nothing would have happened.

"But I suppose you know that some people go nuts when they drink, officer, and I'm one of them. I began to look around for some way to get even. And I finally wound up by taking both his car and his girl, and driving away from my house.

"That was about six this morning, and it wasn't until about an hour ago that I came to my senses. Both the girl and myself had fallen asleep in the car. I realized immediately how stupid I had been, and what a disaster it would be if my wife learned about it. So I took the girl to her home, and started racing back to my house on the chance that I'd get there before the trouble really started.

"And that's all there is to it, officer. If you pinch me now, it means disgrace all around. I'll be ruined."

The motorcycle policeman scratched his head dubiously.

"That's a good story," he asserted. "One of the best I've ever heard. But what am I supposed to do about it?"

The man in white dug into his pocket and produced a $100 bill. He extended it slowly.

Now it so happens that Williams was one of the squarest cops on the squad. He had done favors for people; plenty of them. But never in his life had he accepted a cash bribe. Under ordinary circumstances, he would have immediately made out the ticket and added "attempted bribery" to the charges.

But these were no ordinary circumstances. Only a short distance away there was a pretty sick kid. That kid was Williams' boy. The doctor had said that a month in the country would do the boy a world of good.

And here, out of a clear sky, was his opportunity. He hated graft worse than poison—but he dearly loved his boy. The $100 that was so near would turn his child into a thoroughly normal youngster once again.

His hand closed over the bill.

"Bud," he said softly, "I'm takin' your bribe. I oughtn't to do it, and the thing's gonna haunt me. I been 15 years on the job, and nobody could ever point a finger at me. This is the first time.

"I want you to know that I don't believe your story, so you needn't think you're gettin' away with somethin'. I'm takin' the dough for somebody else; somebody that means more to me than my pride.

"Now beat it. Beat it quick before I change my mind."

Officer Williams gripped his motorcycle savagely and wheeled it about. The man in white shifted his gears and stepped on the gas.

Williams never looked back. He rode rapidly in the other direction as if he were ashamed to turn around. Then he put his hand in his pocket and felt the bill—and a smile came over his face. He was thrilled to think how happy his wife would be, and how much it would mean to the kid.

Nearing his home, he decided to stop for a moment. Might as well tell the wife now. Might as well get ready to send the boy away. Might as——

He came to a sudden halt. There was a crowd on the corner near his home. He leaped from his machine and walked over. A man stepped out and stopped him.

"Wait a minute, Williams," he said. "Don't go over yet. Must tell you first. It's your boy. He's—he's dead."

Williams said nothing. He just reeled foolishly, his lower jaw hanging.

"Yeah," the other man droned on. "Happened about half an hour ago. The kid was playing when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver. Nobody got the license. All we know is that it was a low, red car and that the driver was dressed in white."

MUSIC

Excellent Talent Shown By Negro Musicians

Two well-attended sessions of the convention of the National Association of Negro Musicians brought to our attention yesterday some excellent talent.

Mr. Lissfelt

In the afternoon, at the Ebenezer Baptist Church, Muriel Rose, of Chicago, presented her double quartet, "Still, Still With Thee," after the poem, of Harriet Beecher Stowe. This program was devoted mainly to original works. Miss Rose's music has more than the natural religious fervor of the Negro, it has a restraint that shows excellent schooling and a natural good taste. Another song for tenor solo, "The Moon at Dawn," sung by Maurice Cooper, showed Miss Rose's ability to create a lovely atmosphere and to write a vocal line that might be the envy of more widely recognized writers.

Clarena Francois, also of Chicago, played hi "Zephyrs" for piano solo, a charming work in salon style.

MARIANNE GENET

As guest Pittsburgh composer Marianne Genet presented her "My Love is a Blossom, Heigh-o," and "Lotos Blossom," sung by our Pittsburgh contralto, Sarah Logan. Both composer and singer had an ovation and had to respond with Miss Genet's "Canton Boat Woman."

Dr. Caspar Koch spoke of the organ in modern music and in open forum responded concisely and wisely to questions anent contemporary organs and concert playing.

John Blakey and Frankie Minard sang Negro spirituals.

At Schenley High School last night the artist program was a revelation of what the Negro musician has accomplished with proper encouragement. A well-planned program presented Lillian Evranti, soprano; Louis Vaughn Jones, violinist, and Florence Price, pianist-composer.

Miss Evanti has learned her art in Italy, Germany and France and brings to the stage a most interesting personality. Her voice is lyric soprano, although in her Verdi air from "La Traviata" she showed considerable skill in coloratura. A Burleigh spiritual, "Lord I Want to Be," arranged for Miss Evanti, showed her smooth vocal style and the coy fan song was beautifully mimed and most attractively sung. She is a new type among Negro concert singers.

CAMP-MEETING VOICE

Jones has a European background too and makes his violin sing with all the resonance of a grand big camp meeting voice. He has a suave technique and doubtless a repertory of wide range. His program last night opened with two movements of Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole," and in another group he played the Pugnani-Kreisler "Prelude and Allegro." Maude Paowell's arrangement of Coleridge-Taylor's "Deep River," the "Hora Staccato" of Dinicu-Heifetz, Jones' own fantasy on the spiritual, "Calvary," and Tartini-Kreisler Variations of a Corelli theme. He was loudly applauded and then played the Schubert "Ave Maria."

Florence Price's contribution in the form of a piano concerto was by far the most important feature of the concert for here we see what the Negro has taken from his own idiom and with good technique is beginning to develop alone. There is real American music and Mrs. Price is speaking a language she knows. The work is in one movement with three moods, the middle slow movement a songful theme of quite some beauty. Her symphony last year was played by the Chicago Orchestra with Frederick Stock conducting. Margaret Bonds played the orchestral part on second piano.

Big Meteor Bursts Over Philadelphia

The "falling star" flashed through the sky at about 12:15 a. m., and shot downward in a long arc. As the meteor appeared to approach the earth, it burst into innumerable pieces which cascaded down like a huge skyrocket.

Toadstools Fatal To Woman, Man Ill

TITUSVILLE, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—A Titusville woman is dead and J. W. Westcoat, 55, Pleasantville oil lease pumper, is in a serious condition from toadstools eaten in mistake for mushrooms.

Mrs. Pearl Vanderhoof, 43, husband-estranged mother of eight children, succumbed last night in a Titusville hospital.

Boy Escapes Jail, Caught Hour Later

TOWANDA, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—An hour after he climbed a 30-foot wall surrounding the jail-yard, Clyde Gillespie, 15, of Williamsport, automobile theft suspect, was found hiding in tall grass near the Susquehanna River, a mile away.

DELAY SOUGHT IN 'LAKE' TRIAL

International News Service.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 31.—A ruling on the motion of counsel for Robert Edwards, 21-year-old mining engineer accused of the "American Tragedy" slaying of Freda McKechnie, his neighborhood sweetheart, to have the trial held for the November term of court, was delayed by Judge John Fine today.

Judge Fine stated he had been unable to discuss the case with all of his associates and said he was uncertain about announcing his findings late this afternoon in the event he is able to make the remaining contacts during the day.

The trial had been tentatively set for the term of court beginning September 10.

INAUGURAL OF DR. MILLER

New College Head Assumes Duties on Homecoming Day

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., Aug. 31.—Plans are being rushed for events for the annual Homecoming Day which will have as a joint attraction the inauguration of Dr. Charles S. Miller, as president of the local State Teachers' College October 13.

Dr. Miller succeeds Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, who resigned last May to accept a position at Shippensburg State Teachers' College. He is a graduate of Allegheny College, received his master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh, and his doctorate from New York University. He commenced his teaching career in the Edgewood High School, and was superintendent of schools 11 years at Latrobe. He comes to Slippery Rock from Lansdowne, Pa., where he was head of the city schools.

HILL SEEKS NEW RENT AID PLAN

The Hill District Taxpayers' Association today authorized its officials to confer with emergency relief authorities on the rent-relief problem, as George P. Mills, member of the County Emergency Relief Board, warned a crowd here Allegheny County whose landlords accepted the new "rent-relief" plan.

Mills said the new program would give landlords about $150,000 a month—nearly 15 times as much as they received under the plan, discarded at the beginning of August.

A score of evicted families were homeless yesterday.

The Hill district group in its resolution protested that the present plan of rent relief is "insufficient to justify continued occupancy." They seek a revision of the plan to provide "a sufficient return to justify further co-operation in this humanitarian plan for keeping the wheels moving."

Uniontown Wins Drum Corps Contest

The drum and bugle corps of Uniontown won first place in the fifth annual competition sponsored by the Burt Foster Post, No. 181, American Legion of McKeesport, last night at the World War Memorial Field, McKeesport, Ohio's six corps competed.

Duquesne was second with a score of 97.415; Greensburg third, with 96.66. Others in order of their finish were Fairmont, Crafton-Ingram and Charleroi. Uniontown had a score of 98.1. During the program the Grandview boys drum and bugle corps and Auto No. 285, F. O. E. gave a demonstration.

North Side Doctor Injured by Auto

Struck by an auto while walking at Fifth and Liberty avenues last night, Dr. F. A. Nolan, 39, of North Side, was taken to Mercy Hospital with a leg injury. Police said the driver of the car was Sherman A. Cutright, 31, of Beswicke.

CAPONE TOILS AT NEW PEN

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—All newly arrived inmates at the new federal prison on San Francisco Bay's Alcatraz Island, including Al Capone, have been assigned to duties, Warden James Johnston announced today. Johnston said:

"Every man in the institution has been put to work now and the prison's new routine is officially under way."

He declined to say whether Capone has been put to work in the prison's laundry, tailor shop, shoe shop, or at general maintenance.

Hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped.
Blend ingredients thoroughly and spread on thin slices of whole wheat bread.

TUNA FISH SANDWICHES—½ cup mayonnaise, 1 cup tuna fish, 1 teaspoon horseradish mustard and 1 pimento, finely chopped.

Blend ingredients thoroughly and spread on thin buttered slices of rye bread.

SPICY PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICHES—Blend peanut butter and relish and spread on thin buttered slices of white bread.

LIVERWURST AND PICKLE SANDWICHES—½ cup pickles, 1 small onion, ½ cup liverwurst, few drops of lemon juice and 3 tablespoons mayonnaise.

Put pickles and onion through the food chopper, using finest grinder. Work the liverwurst into a smooth paste and add the pickles, onion, lemon juice and mayonnaise. Spread mixture thickly between thin slices of buttered rye bread.

CRAB MEAT AND ONION SANDWICHES—¼ cup mayonnaise, ¼ cup pickled onions, finely chopped and 1 cup crab meat, flaked.

Blend ingredients thoroughly and spread on slices of buttered whole wheat bread.

CREAM CHEESE AND DATE SANDWICHES—2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese and ½ cup dates, seeded and finely chopped.

Blend ingredients thoroughly and spread on thin slices of graham bread, buttered.

HUCKLEBERRY PIE — 2½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, ¾ cup granulated sugar, ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 3 tablespoons water, 1 quart fresh huckleberries and pie crust.

Combine quick-cooking tapioca, sugars, salt, butter, water and berries; let stand 15 minutes, or while pastry is being made. Line a nine-inch pie plate with ½ of pastry rolled, allowing pastry to extend ½ inch beyond edge of plate. Moisten edge of pastry with cold water and fold inward, even with rim of plate. Fill with berry mixture. Moisten edge again. Roll other half of pastry ⅛ inch thick. Fold half the pastry back on other half. With sharp knife make several slits to permit escape of steam. Place upper crust on filled lower one, opening out folded half after it is placed on pie, and drawing snugly across top to prevent sagging at edges. Press edges together. Trim off surplus pastry, being careful not to cut folded edge of lower crust. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 15 minutes; then decrease heat to moderate (350 degrees F.) and bake 20 minutes longer, or until filling is cooked.

Change Nose? Noes Win! Anna May Knows Better

Surgeon's Offer Only Causes Big Laugh In Filmland

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 31.—Operations on double chins and cauliflower ears now are an old story in Hollywood, but filmland got it's biggest laugh today when an Eastern plastic surgeon telegraphed Anna May Wong, Chinese star, offering to resculpt her nose a la Occidental style.

The surgeon, who hit the front pages several years ago for his work on a youthful Broadway beauty, urged that his offer be accepted because it will open a new scope of roles for the actress and because it will bring them both international publicity.

Anna May Wong laughingly disagrees. She said:

"Imagine the result. Here I've won all my success on stage and screen in Oriental roles and he wants to change my nose so I could no longer play them."

The pay-off is that the Chinese star actually was not considered Oriental enough in appearance for her role in "Limehouse Nights."

Every day, before Anna May goes on the set to enact her scenes with George Raft, makeup men have to increase the slant of her eyes.

PRIZE RECIPES FOR DELECTABLE DISHES

By PRUDENCE PENNY

If you are in a hurry, don't try to experiment with today's first-prize winner, because the very first step in this Hungarian recipe procedure requires a half an hour's mixing of egg yolks with sugar. This phase of the method will not disconcert women who have electric egg beaters, and it may be that good judgment should determine the length of time for mixing if it is done electrically.

It is probable that electric egg beaters and mixers were never heard of when this recipe was originated, for it sounds like an old-world one, to be sure. The dividing of the batter into three portions is also not conducive to speedy preparation of this recipe but long winter afternoons looming around a not too distant corner should offer ample opportunity to try this unusual recipe.

Prudence Penny awards six prizes daily for the best of favorite recipes submitted in competition: $5 for first prize and five $1 prizes for the next five best recipes. No recipes can be returned. Write on only one side of the paper, and have your name and address at the top of each sheet. Send in as many recipes as you like. Here are today's prize winners:

Standards of Canners Found to Be High

Elizabeth Frazer, representing consumers, has just completed for Good Housekeeping an investigation of the canning industry. She reports in September Good Housekeeping that she found standards of production high because the canners themselves voluntarily regulated their industry before the NRA took hold. They created a minimum standard of wholesomeness below which no manufacturer may go without proclaiming it on his label. This standard was made legal in 1930 by the McNary-Mapes amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs Act. She says women who buy guaranteed brands may be assured of pure, honest products.

Federal inspectors whom she interviewed told her:

"The main body of food manufacturers are honest; they all playing the game, getting out good products, co-operating with us. It is the small minority of chiselers, fly-by-nights, who manufacture inferior food, that keep us awake at night."

She says:

"It is important to note that in all these processes there are no secret formulae, no artificial preservatives. The whole success lies in the scientific method of approach; good raw materials, canneries located close to the source of supply, through inspection, daily sterilization of all equipment, and constant laboratory control. All these factors work for the protection of the consumer."

In answers to queries as to how housewives can protect themselves from the minor group of "chiselers" Miss Frazier says:

"The answer is, buy guaranteed, identified brands in which the quality of the food is safeguarded every step of the way from raw materials in orchard and field to the finished product in the can.

"The woman who has taken from a shelf a can of quality food reaches for a can opener. The vast processional of scientists, horticultural experts, farmers and manufacturers who have labored to make a good product pass in shadowy file. Have you caught a glimpse of their tremendous efforts—of the research, the laboratory control, the integrity, the pride of honest achievement which have gone into the can of food? Then open the can—and enjoy what it offers you!"

sugar, salt, butter, peaches and lemon juice, let stand 15 minutes, or while pastry is being made. Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry rolled ⅛ inch thick, allowing pastry to extend 1 inch beyond edge. Fit loosely on plate. Fold edge back to form standing rim and flute with fingers. Fill with peach mixture. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 15 minutes; reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees F.) and continue baking 15 minutes. Beat egg whites until foamy; add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is thoroughly blended. After all sugar is added, continue beating until mixture will stand in peaks. Pile lightly on the filling and bake 15 minutes longer, or until delicately browned.

COCOANUT-CRESTED ANGEL FOOD CAKE—1 cup sifted cake flour, 1 cup egg whites, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1¼ cups sifted granulated sugar, ¾ teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon almond extract and ½ cup shredded cocoanut.

Sift flour once, measure, and sift four more times. Beat egg whites and salt with flat wire whisk. When foamy, add cream of tartar, and continue beating until eggs are stiff enough to hold up in peaks, but not dry. Fold in sugar carefully, 2 tablespoons at a time, until all is used. Fold in flavoring. Then sift small amount of flour over mixture and fold in carefully; continue until all is used. Pour batter into ungreased angel food pan. Sprinkle with cocoanut. Bake in slow oven at least 1 hour. Begin at 275 degrees Fahrenheit and after 30 minutes increase heat slightly (325 degrees), and bake 30 minutes longer. Remove from oven and invert pan 1 hour, or until cold.

Best Fruit Qualities Combined in Figs

Both Dried and Fresh Varieties of Figs Are Not Only Appetizing but Combine Such Food Values as Calcium, Iron and Sugar With Valuable Laxative Properties

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York, Former Health Commissioner of New York City

Most of us are familiar with the fig in the dried state. There is also the fresh fig, which is extremely perishable and difficult to ship great distances. It is sold only in shops specializing in fancy fruits. Either variety is delicious and palatable.

The fig is one of the oldest known foods and was originally cultivated in Smyrna. For many years it was imported from Europe. Today Texas and California produce figs of excellent quality.

The fig tree is attractive but fragile and requires constant care. It is well worth the careful attention it receives.

DRYING IMPORTANT

Drying figs is an important process in the fig industry. There are various drying methods used. Drying in the sun is the most common method. Some growers expose the fruit to burning sulphur. This destroys the insect pests and their eggs. The figs are then placed in the sun to dry.

Special precautions are taken in the drying and sorting processes. Before the figs are shipped to the various markets throughout the country they are labeled as "choice," "extra fancy" or "selected." They are then packed, ready for the consumer.

Some fruits have little nutritional value. They are included in the diet because of their fine flavor and tempting appearance. The fig differs from this group of fruit in that it not only has a distinctive taste but possesses great food value.

It is rich in minerals and sugar. Lime and iron are found in great abundance. A smaller amount of phosphorus is present. Calcium, or lime, is the mineral salt on which is dependent the development of strong and healthy teeth. The infant and growing child should be given foods rich in this substance. The expectant mother requires additional calcium.

COMBAT ACIDITY

Iron is the basis of the formation of red blood cells in the body. These cells are short-lived and therefore must be constantly replaced. For this reason an adequate supply of iron in the diet is essential. Minerals help purify the blood. In addition they prevent any tendency towards acidity.

The sugar content of the fig must not be overlooked. The fig is a valuable source of easily digested sugar and is an excellent heat and energy food. It has a distinct place in the diet.

Also the fig is of great assistance in the prevention of constipation. It is especially valuable in that form of the ailment frequently encountered in the infant and young child. The laxative property of this fruit has been known for many years. It forms the basis of many of the so-called laxative medicines.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS, :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Don't Be Love-Chiseler, Doubtful Girl Told

Going with a fellow who has been the regular boy friend of another girl, and for six years.

She knows that this girl LOVES this young man, even though he has asked the writer to be his steady flame . . . She doesn't care so much for men, never has . . . Yet she likes their attentions, and enjoys going out where an escort is essential.

But the situation worries her . . . She's the sort who obeys the laws of division fences, and hates to be stamped a wanton chiseler or a cutter-in.

Miss Brunot

And she's right . . . That is the correct principle to possess, and don't weaken, sister.

As I have said before in this column, to THYSELF BE TRUE. And it matters not, then, for the other person . . . We know no loyalty until we can hand it out to the other fellow . . . We know no happiness until we can give it to those about us . . . We know no peace until we can create it from within.

This contributor to the Speak Up Sisters column says there is still another fellow (Oh, yes, she is popular with the opposite sex) . . . whom she likes as well as this first young man . . . And she asks the world-old question . . . how she can WIN HIM?

GIVE HIM UP

Which shall she take . . . which shall it be? And my answer is, turn to the free-lance suitor. Don't enter the other girl's back yard . . . Chances she'd get her man in the end, anyway . . . For after a six-year love affair, even though the OTHER GIRL does drag the man to the altar, there may be bad steering ahead for her. Time may come when she'll have good reason to wonder if he is thinking of the first one . . . And where one hasn't a man's mind, she hasn't his heart, either.

Blanche, for that is this sister's name, doesn't go in for real petting. A kiss is sort of nice, she admits.

She has a gradually flowing penmanship, which indicates a certain sentiment, and also a gently moving but true-blue nature . . . So she mustn't be hasty, and if she just goes on as she has been doing, she'll get most any man who is attracted to her . . . Girls must always remember that it was the natural self which first made the dent in the young man's heart, and thus if she sets up a new and varied pose, it may chase him back to where he came from.

I am not far wrong when I make the statement that more girls lose out from assumed poses than for any other reason . . . Men have anything but complex minds where love is in action, and the twoo-many sided sister frightens them, even though they are interested . . .

FIGHT OVER RELIGION

Dear Miss Brunot:

I follow your column every day and find some very helpful thoughts . . . Now, I myself find that I need some aid, so I am turning to you. Since I started to high school three years ago, I have been going with a certain boy. I like him very much, and many a time have given up good times to go with him. He will graduate from high school in January, and I, in May.

We are both very fond of each other and we always got along fine until about a month ago. He never told me his religious beliefs and it is this thing that comes between us. And we have been arguing and quarreling over it.

Two weeks ago I met another fellow and he goes to the same church that I do. And we have fallen for each other strong. I hate to give up the first fellow, and what do you say about it. The second one is calling me up and writing to me all the while. My question is: Who shall I take, Miss Brunot?

LEA.

Take the second fellow, sister . . . You aren't really in love with the first, or you wouldn't be writing this letter . . . Where religion is important, and a certain creed is embedded in your very makeup, there are few loves strong enough to destroy this spiritual belief. And nothing but misery is the outcome . . . Household dissension is one of the most unfortunate of situations, and where principles are involved and where wills are strong, such difficulties seldom alter themselves . . . You are very young, the best of your life stretches ahead. Don't make the one big mistake, and marry where there can be no peace . . .

MUST GET CONSENT

Dear Miss Brunot.

I have a friend who is a high school graduate and who has much artistic talent. He has made a type-o-graph which is almost perfect of a very big movie star . . . Could he get it patented?

A DAILY READER.

Not without the movie actress' consent, and then only under the full knowledge that no one else has ever patented the same article . . . Tell him to write to the actress whom he has so honored . . . Her home is in Hollywood . . . And I believe she answers personally, or has her secretary answer, all mail received by her . . .

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

FAY KING POINTS OUT WHY SOME GIRLS FAIL IN POPULARITY

By FAY KING

Some girls who wonder why they are not more popular have only made the mistake of being ever nice to those they like and not at all nice to those they do not like so well.

. . . . Not every young man you meet is going to fall in love with you, or you with him.

But if you are pleasant and gracious you may have jolly jaunts to the movies, a dance, or at a gathering of friends.

You may meet the one you will love and marry through a casual friend.

Never be rude to any girl you may not care about, but of whom one of the boys in your crowd is fond.

Never be the one who causes discord!

Facts About Inorganic "Foods"

In a recent letter were these questions:

"Will you please tell me something about inorganic foods? What are they and are they absolutely necessary in the diet?"

Dr. Copeland

Inorganic foods are really not foods at all, as we use that term. They are substances found in foods and are the residue or remains of food burned in the body, substances which do not undergo any digestive change.

These inorganic elements combine with our tissues in various ways. Some are absorbed through the intestinal walls. Those that are not needed by the body are discharged in the wastes of the body.

Minerals or inorganic food substances are of vital importance in regulating the body mechanism. Though only small amounts are taken, yet they perform duties essential to the growth and development of each of us.

Certain of these elements, such as soda, potash and lime, are responsible for the elasticity of the muscles. It is well understood that lime is necessary in the diet for the development of strong bones, muscles and teeth. Lack of minerals in the body causes the bones and teeth to be weak and soft. Growth is stunted and rickets, a nutritional disease, may develop.

It does not seem credible, perhaps, yet it is true that extreme irritableness may result from the lack of inorganic food elements in the body. This is a proven fact. The organs regulated by the central nervous system, too, are dependent for proper functioning upon these vital food substances.

Mineral salts also render aid in the coagulation of the blood. It is interesting to note that a wound, no matter how slight, would result in death by bleeding if we were not protected by these mineral salts. They assist in causing the blood to clot and thus stop the bleeding.

The blood is also kept neutral by a sufficient intake of mineral salts. When the correct balance is disturbed digestive disturbances arise. The sufferer then complains of nausea, gas, biliousness and constipation. When foods containing minerals or inorganic salts are abundantly added to the diet these disturbances gradually disappear.

Other inorganic salts are chlorine, manganese, iron, sulphur and iodine. They are important to the health of the body. Unfortunately, their value is often overlooked. Nature does not store them in the body for any length of time and when they are lacking in the regular diet, serious damage is certain to follow. These food substances are especially important in the diet of the growing child.

Answers to Health Queries

D. M. Q.—What can be done for hives? I am very nervous and irritable and this naturally affects my digestion.

A.—Try to find the underlying cause of the trouble. Watch your diet and elimination. Get more rest. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

J. Y. Q.—What can be done for a leaking heart in an adult?

A.—Heart conditions demand special medical attention. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Given in Marriage : A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Realizes She Chanced Husband's Jealousy

"That sympathy thing is a queer racket," Lillian went on, ignoring, or not seeing the stunned horror with which I was regarding her. The warning she had given me—not to betray so much anxiety for Hugh Grantland—had brought my house crashing about my ears. I had built up so carefully the edifice of friendship for Hugh and comradeship with him, keeping always in the background of even my own soul the knowledge that he loved me hopelessly, chivalrously, asking nothing in return, that until she showed me my error I had not realized how much his comradeship and the knowledge of his devotion was meaning to me.

She had spoken correctly in saying that I did not care for him in the way I cared for my husband, but, as if her words had been a light illuminating the secret places of my soul, I saw in those deep recesses memories, impulses, that I knew I should be loath to have Dicky know.

I realized something also, searching my own soul all the more pitilessly because Lillian had now averted her eyes from mine and pretended to be absorbed in arranging her gown; I knew that if I had discovered in Dicky the same warm, sympathetic emotion for some woman that I unconsciously had been sending out to Hugh, I should have been furiously jealous.

I must have made some sound—must have uttered a little moan or groan indicative of my complete abasement—for Lillian suddenly turned upon me tigerishly, and taking me by the shoulders shook me as she might a refractory child.

SCOLDED BY LILLIAN

"Stop it! Stop it, I tell you!" she commanded. "Don't you tell me I have been mistaken in you all these years, and that there's a length of rubber hose down your back instead of vertebrae. All I've done is to give you a little tip to mind your step, and you immediately descend the steps of Avernus as deeply as if you'd given Dicky cause for a trip to Reno. Snap out of it! No milk has been spilled, and if you don't start making a mountain out of a miserable mole hill, there won't be. Now—having mixed my metaphors beyond all repair—will you come to your senses?"

Her crisp utterance, her coolly critcal eyes were like streams of icy water played upon me. They brought me out of the sickly realms of fancied disloyalty to Dicky in which I had been wandering, and restored to me the "senses" of which I indeed had been bereft during the moments following Lillian's surprising strictures.

"I'm all right now, thanks to you," I said, "and you won't have to warn me again."

I tried to step away from her, but her hands still pinioned my arms.

"Yes, I shall," she said, "only in the opposite direction. Tell me the truth. Aren't you planning to treat Hugh, when next you see him, with the studied politeness you would use to a bishop or some other dignitary who had come to call—that is, supposing that we rate a bishop?"

WARNED OF GOSSIP

She looked at me searchingly, and I crimsoned, for something faintly akin to her burlesqued suggestion had been in my mind.

"Aha! I knew it," she gloated. "I knew the old intuition hadn't gone back on me. Now, you listen to your Aunt Susan's words of wisdom—and heed 'em, dearie, heed 'em—for they come from a woman what's had lots of experience, more than she wishes she had."

There was a note of bitterness in her last words, and I remembered how much unhappiness her life had held before she and Harry Underwood had found their present haven—and heaven—in each other's companionship. But the next instant the saddened note had vanished, and there was again good-natured mockery investing the very sound advice she was giving me.

"If you suddenly change your manner to Hugh, especially when he is wounded and ill, you're going to have every cat in the house asking 'why? Why? Why?' And you know as well as I do that we have two of the very miauwest—pipe that word, dearie—of all cats right on this very floor, ready to claw your eyes out if they are given the chance."

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

Minimum Responses

When a player has opened the bidding with a minimum hand it is his sad but nevertheless impelling duty to apply the brakes should his partner make a Forcing Takeout, as otherwise the bidding is quite likely to get out of hand, before the hapless player realizes just what is going on, he may be saddled with an unmakable contract. If, however, he realizes this danger and gives a minimum response, then the danger can be averted and probably a satisfactory result achieved.

Mrs. Culbertson

It was an appreciation of the sound basic principles of correct bidding that brought good results to one North and South pair on the hand below, while others, who failed to appreciate the advantages of a minimum response with a minimum holding and of the wholesale showing of Aces by the use of the Four-Five Notrump Convention, got one trick too high because there was an Ace in an opposing hand.

North, dealer.

	North
	♠ Q J 10 ♡ K J 10 9 8 ◇ Q 7 ♣ K Q J
West ♠ 8 6 5 4 ♡ 4 ◇ 8 6 3 2 ♣ 10 5 3 2		East ♠ A 9 2 ♡ 5 3 2 ◇ 10 9 4 ♣ 8 7 6 4
	♠ K 7 3 ♡ A Q 7 6 ◇ A K J 5 ♣ A 9
	South

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡ (1)	Pass	3 ◇ (2)	Pass
3 N T (3)	Pass	5 N T (4)	Pass
6 ◇ (5)	Pass	6 ♡ (6)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—A sound Opening bid, even though vulnerable. The hand is too rich in honors to pass.

2—South sees the certainty of a Small Slam and the possibility of a Grand Slam. The forcing takeout is his only correct bid.

3—North, holding no Aces, is anxious to keep the bidding low so that an unmakable contract will not be reached. He therefore makes the minimum notrump response rather than rebidding hearts.

4—South correctly decodes his partner's message, but feels sure that even with a minimum hand a Small Slam is a certainty. He therefore makes the conventional bid showing three Aces and the King of a bid suit.

5—North wants to stop at six, and does not know the best suit, so he bids the lower one.

6—South must trust his partner. North's refusal to make other than a forced bid indicates that there is an Ace off the hand.

It is obvious that six hearts is makable against any Opening, the Ace of spades being the only loser. At other tables the bidding was: North one heart, South three diamonds, North three hearts, South seven diamonds and North pass. And whether the contract was doubled or not, it was inevitably defeated.

This type of bidding should result in disaster, both North vital errors—North in rebidding and South having committed his weak suit after the Forcing Takeout, and South in jumping to a Grand Slam without adopting the conventional safeguard.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Mrs.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct form to be used on a visiting card? My friend has been married and divorced, and now her ex-husband is dead. She ordered cards recently and was told that Miss or Mrs. was not necessary. It doesn't seem to me to be in good taste or even correct for a once married woman to have her cards engraved just plain Mary Jane Smith. She is about 40. I told her that a young girl graduate might perhaps leave off the Miss, but I was sure that she should prefix Mrs. Am I right or wrong? Should it read Mrs. Mary Jane Gorham Smith or Mrs. Mary Jane Smith?

How should the card be worded? READER.

You are definitely right. Of course there should be a Mrs. before your friend's name on her visiting card.

The best form of name for a divorced woman to use is the last name of her maiden name prefixed to the last name of her married name. That is Mrs. Gorham Smith. It is never good form for a woman who is married, a widow, or divorced, to use her first name in her formal name.

The next best form is the use of the initial of her first name: Mrs. M. Gorham Smith.

Notes of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have recently been in the hospital and while there I received many cards and bouquets from friends. I thanked them personally when they called to see me. Is it necessary to show my appreciation of their thoughtfulness in any other way? A READER.

Since you have already thanked these friends personally, it is not necessary to write them. But still it would be a very lovely thing for you to do, if you are now able to write letters.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When extremely high heels are worn the weight of the body is on the ball of the foot. The feet cannot work up and down comfortably because of the cramped, bound position. It is taken in [illegible] for the [illegible] normal motion. Result: Weak ankles, fatigued leg muscles, a calloused spot on the sole of the foot, irritated toe joints and a mad on at all the world.

You'll notice, too, that those little dears who clump around on spiked heels haven't pretty legs. Because of lack of body balance there is an inclination to bend the knee at every step. It is ruinous to leg contour.

Gals who have kept their shoulder length locks are having a lot of fun designing [illegible]. Pony pigtails at the rear of the head lend themselves to all manner of decorative arrangements. One new stunt is to have the hair waved on a slant at the back, with a narrow braid placed in each undulation.

There are various means of removing superfluous hair besides the use of tweezers, depilatories and waxy preparations. The electric needle is one method. Scientifically done, it is not particularly painful. It kills the papilla from which each hair sprouts forth, but the operator must be experienced.

FOR THE LADIES

The [illegible] nut chopper. A modern kitchen necessity. Practical, lasting, inexpensive. Chops nuts evenly, easily and quickly. Also to be used in cutting up olives, cherries, hard boiled eggs, cheese, tuna fish and many other foods used for salads, sandwich fillings, etc. No muss, no fuss, no bother. Fully guaranteed. 80,000 TO SEE BEARS MEET COLLEGE STARS TONIGHT

James J. Long's Sports Comment

ASSUMING THAT THE opposing clubs in the World Series will be the Giants and the Tigers, and that Southpaw Carl Hubbell again will be the main pitching hope on the National League side, baseball fans already are speculation Detroit's chances against left-hand hurling. The fact that Earl Whitehill and Bobby Burke recently defeated Mickey Cochrane's club on successive days has given some National League partisans the idea that the Bengals are weak against fork-handers. In the season's records, however, the evidence is to the contrary.

Carl Hubbell

Only Five Lefties Win

DETROIT HAS BEEN beaten by only five left-handers—Gomez, four times; Whitehill and Burke, three times each, and Walberg and Grove, once each. In 321 innings against southsiders, the Tigers have made 371 hits, or better than a hit per inning. Not counting Rogell, who is a turnover hitter, Detroit's left-hand swingers are Cochrane, Gehringer, Goslin and White.

In the case of Hubbell, however, the usual left-hand dope does not apply, as generally he is more effective against right-hand hitters than against the left-hand type, inasmuch as his screwball breaks away from the right-handers. On May 4 the Pirates beat Hubbell, 4 to 3, with six left-hand hitters in their lineup.

Frisch Stays as Pilot

IT HAD BEEN expected that Frankie Frisch would get his walking papers if the Cards failed to win the pennant this year, but St. Louis reports now say he is certain to be re-engaged as manager for 1935. His handling of the latest rebellion of the Dean brothers, and the way the rest of the team packed him up to win seven out of nine games while Dizzy was suspended, is said to have made Frisch solid with the owners.

Frankie Frisch

So unless something happens between now and the finish to cause a change of mind, the Cardinal front office intends to let the situation stand, reappoint Frisch as pilot and refuse to trade or sell either of the Deans, confident that the latter will do no more kicking over the traces.

Two Years for Barney

BARNEY ROSS SAYS he expects to be through with the ring in two years more. He figures he will be starting to pass his peak by that time, and thinks no boxer should continue in the game once he has seen his best days. As Barney sees it, no money is worth the lickings a fighter has to take after that stage.

True enough, but the trouble is that the average fighter can't be convinced that he is done when that time arrives. Perhaps Ross, his present good resolutions notwithstanding, will not be different from the rest.

Barney hopes to earn enough money in the meantime to make his proposed retirement in two years conveniently possible. To that end he plans to keep busy and to accept every profitable match offered, and says that if he finds he can hold his speed in fighting at a little over 140 pounds he will even be ready to meet the holder of the middleweight title, and try to win a championship in a third division before hanging up his gloves.

Pro Gri[illegible] Hold Edge

IT'S A [illegible]RESSIVE lineup that those [illegible]mericans will present against the Chicago Bears in tonight's football game at Chicago, with Joe Skladany representing this district, but that it is strong enough to beat the Bears is doubtful. The pros have one great advantage. They're a team, a unit. The all-Americans are a bunch of stars playing together in a game for the first time. And football is a team game.

Joe Skladany

Another picked eleven that met those same Bears in Los Angeles last January had such tackles as Turk Edwards and Ernie Smith. Big men and tough. The other forwards were in keeping with them. And Presnell, Pinckert, Musick, Caddell, Krause, Apsit, Blood and Saunders were a pretty fair set of backs. Yet they lost 23 to 0, and the main reason was that, while rating high as individuals, they were outclassed by the Bears as a team.

Former Local College Stars In Backfield for Pirate Pros

GEORGE KAVEL, CARNEGIE TECH

WARREN HELLER, PITT

The Pittsburgh Pirates professional football team this fall will not want for "local color." Here are three new backfield performers, all of whom have starred on local college teams. Other local players with the Pirates include Jess Quatse, Joe Skladany, John Love and Jimmy Clark, of Pitt; Ray Tesser, of Tech, and Henry Weiberg, Ben Ciccone and Armand Niccolai, of the Dukes. Luby Di Meolo, of Pitt, is the new head coach. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures taken in the training camp at Mt. Pleasant. The pros play an exhibition at Beaver Falls Monday.

JOE SKLADANY TO START AT END POST

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—College football will attempt to take a fall out of the professional game's best—the Chicago Bears—tonight at Soldier Field for the edification of 80,000 or more spectators.

Tiger Walton

The collegians or rather, ex-collegians, since they were members of 1933 college elevens, will be in there with plenty to gain and little to lose. The Bears, champions of the National Professional League in 1932 and 1933, must win handily or be responsible for a shock to the professional game's prestige.

GOLLEGES' GREATEST

The Bears will meet college football's greatest threat, fortified by experience and weight, and with the lineup which finished last season almost intact. Coach Noble Kizer, of Purdue, and his assistants, Jimmy Crowley, of Fordham; Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, and Mal Edwards, Purdue's line coach, have worked hard with a prime pick of last year's colleges.

Included in the all-stars' starting lineup are two University of Pittsburgh graduates, Joe Skladany and Frank (Tiger) Walton. Skladany was all-American end last fall.

Kizer has prepared the college squad with as much of the Notre Dame system as it has been able to absorb. His early choice for field general was Homer Griffith, of Southern California. Joe Laws, Iowa's quarterback last year, was definitely named for a halfback job, but the other two positions rested among four stars.

LINEUP IN DOUBT

Herman Everhardus, of Michigan, or Beattie Feathers, of Tennessee, were in line for the other halfback, with "Iron Mike Mikulak, of Oregon, or Fred Hecker, of Pudue, candidates for fullback.

Red Grange, beginning his ninth full season as a professional gridiron workman, is not a certain starter; Bill Hewitt, former Michigan star, ranked as the pro game's premier end, and Bronko Nagurski, of Minnesota, are to be in the Bear's starting battlefront.

In the event of rain, the game will be played tomorrow night. The probable lineup:

MAJOR HURLERS LED BY GOMEZ

Associated Press.

So long as they have the not-so-goofy Vernon Gomez on the job it seems certain that the Yankees won't let themselves be counted out of the American League pennant race until the last possible moment.

On games won and lost, Gomez rates the leading pitcher of both major leagues with 23 triumphs against three losses. His latest achievement was to record victory 23 yesterday with a five-hit pitching performance that carried the Yanks through to an 8-to-2 victory. That put him one up on his nearest major league rival, Dizzy Dean, of the Cardinals, who has won 22 games.

It was the ninth victory in a row for Gomez in a streak which has included one, two, three, and four-hit games and a shutout triumph over Detroit's league leaders. The only way in which Goofy failed yesterday was that he couldn't make his club gain on the Tigers, who came from behind as usual to pound out a 6-to-1 decision over Cleveland in the only other major league contest.

Behind Gomez the Yanks pounded out 12 hits off Monte Weaver and Alex McColl for an easy victory.

Detroit had a stiffer struggle for six innings as Monte Pearson gave only four hits and Earl Averill smacked his twenty-second homer to put Cleveland ahead in the fourth. But from then on the Tigers began to make it look easy.

The other four American League clubs and the entire National League had an open date following the end of the East-West series.

Local Boxers Split Even at Parkersburg

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Four Pittsburgh fighters won two and lost two bouts in the show presented here last night by the local American Legion post.

Don Asto, Pittsburgh, dropped the decision to Billy Wolsey, Akron, in the main bout of 10 rounds. Harry Krause, Pittsburgh, was the winner over Young Terry, Akron, in eight rounds; Wesley Martin, Akron, beat Sammy Paris, Pittsburgh, in six rounds, and Billy Conn, Pittsburgh, pounded out a six-round decision over Bob Dronan.

America's Cup History

THE THIRD CHALLENGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The veteran schooner America came out from the curtain of the past to play an unofficial part in the New York Yacht Club's successful defense of the America's Cup against the challenge of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club's Countess of Dufferin in 1876.

Although 25 years had elapsed since the America had lifted the international trophy from England in 1851, the old boat built by George Steers was still fast enough to outsail the Canadian challenger.

In this contest three races were arranged and the challenger had to meet only one defender—the center-board schooner Madeline, owned by J. S. Dickerson.

The Countess was of a shallow type, drawing only six and a half feet of water to a beam of 24 feet. She was exceedingly rough in finish and badly canvassed.

The first race was sailed over the N. Y. Y. C. course and was won by Madeline by 10 minutes 59 seconds corrected time. The second race was 20 miles to windward from Sandy Hook and return.

The old America, looking and acting like the great boat she was in spite of the years that outmoded her, participated in this race as a pacer.

While the actual rivalry for the cup rested between the Countess and Madeline, old America beat the Canadian schooner by 19 minutes and 9 seconds and finished a little more than eight minutes behind Madeline, the official winner.

DEFENSE BOATS GIVEN SAILS

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Rainbow entered the home stretch of the final trials to select an America's Cup defender today with her sail locker enriched through the sporting instincts of Frederick Prince, owner of Weetamoe, eliminated from the trials last week.

Prince offered the use of Weetamoe's canvas to both the surviving defense candidates, Rainbow and Yankee, of Boston.

Harold S. Vanderbilt, managing owner of Rainbow, promptly accepted several pieces of canvas including a big Genoa jib, from Weetamoe's wardrobe. Rainbow, although constructed this year, has been competing without a new main sail. She has been using the canvas employed by Enterprise, successful defender of 1930, to a large extent, although she is known as the boat supported by "seventeen millionaires."

Among her owners are the Vanderbilts, Harold S., Frederick K., William K. and Alfred Gwynne, and J. P. Morgan, Edward S. Harkness, George F. Baker, George Roosevelt, Joseph P. Day, Walter P. Chrysler, Ogden Mills, Marshall Field and Alfred P. Sloane, Jr.

If there is a sailing breeze, Rainbow and Yankee are expected to cross the starting line at 10:40 a. m. (Eastern Standard) today in their fourth meeting of the final trials. Rainbow, as a result of her victory yesterday by a margin of two minutes 21 seconds, was credited with two triumphs and one defeat in final trial competition with Yankee, sailed by Charles Francis Adams, former navy secretary. Yankee still has a wide edge on the basis of the earlier series.

Meanwhile Tom Sopwith, owner of the British challenger, Endeavour, has been taking his craft out for daily spins and has been giving many connected with the cup defense acute chills. Endeavour consistently has run away from Vanitie, old and new ineligible cup boat, in light air and Vanitie always was a dangerous opponent for the American contenders in such conditions.

Conneaut Field Trials Tomorrow

CONNEAUT LAKE, Pa., Aug. 31.—The field trails for pointers and setters, to be staged by the Conneaut Lake Kennel Club, will get under way here tomorrow. A coon trial also is listed. A bench show for sporting dogs is to be held Sunday, and beagle trials are carded for Labor Day.

Th bird dog trials will consist of a puppy stake and a champion derby and all will be run off in one day.

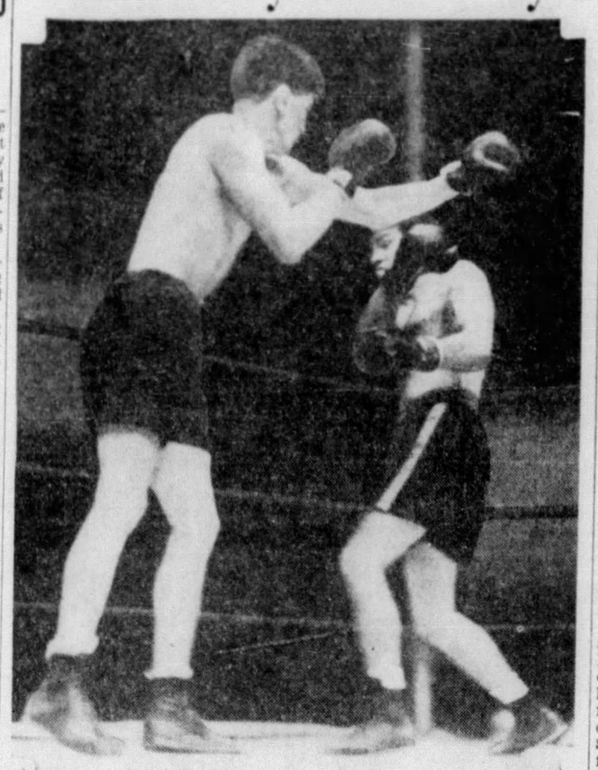
Dublinsky Beats Tony



CHICAGO STAR TURNS IN GOOD VICTORY

Pirate Gridders Continue Drills

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., Aug. 31.—Another strenuous workout is scheduled for the Pittsburgh Pirates' professional football team here today as they prepare for their first two exhibition games with the Connellsville stars at Connellsville Sunday and the Geneva Alumni at Beaver Falls on Monday night.

In the meantime, President Art Rooney, of the Pirates, has gone to Chicago to see the Bears meet the college all-stars tonight. He is reported in the market for some players to bolster the Pirates.

SOFTBALLERS STAGE GAME

By PHIL GRABOWSKI,
Softball Tournament Secretary.

The game of softball, making rapid strides in this section as a result of the success attained by the first annual Western Pennsylvania amateur tournament, staged by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will be introduced at Winter Field, Brownsville road, this evening when the Harris Reds oppose St. Michael's in an exhibition game. The Reds made a good showing in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's tournament, concluded last Monday.

The West Newton Scholastics, who won the Western Pennsylvania girls' softball championship in the Sun-Telegraph's tournament, will meet the Cecil Red Y's on the latter's field in an exhibition game at 6:30 this evening for the benefit of Miss Mae Belle Bout, who recently was injured in a game between the same teams.

The East Liberty Shamrocks, senior champions of Western Pennsylvania, scored a 4-3 victory over Elizabeth Produce in an exhibition game at Peabody High field last night. This game is one of the several arranged for the Shamrocks to keep them in top form for their invasion of Chicago to compete in the national tournament.

In another exhibition, the Commercial Garage team, runnerup in the senior division, nosed out the Harris Reds at Washington Park, 6 to 5. Charles Rubinoff hit a home run with one on for the winners.

ARIZMENDI NEW FEATHER KING

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—There's a new featherweight champion of the world today and his name is Baby Arizmendi.

Arizmendi, a brown-skinned little Mexican who apparently never grows tired, outboxed and outspeeded Mike Belloise, of New York, in 15 rounds at the Dyckman Oval before a crowd of 5,000 last night.

Arizmendi was Belloise's master throughout the fight. He started in to outslug the American at the opening of the fight and had Belloise in trouble all the way.

The feather title has been vacant in New York state since Kid Chocolate, flashy Cuban Negro, was deprived of the bauble several months ago.

LITTLE BUCCOS RALLY, WIN

The Little Pirates, of McKeesport, staged a five-run attack in the eighth inning to defeat Jeannette, 9 to 4, in a Penn State Association game at Jeannette yesterday. Salin, a relief pitcher, fanned seven as Monessen rode to a 6-1 victory over Washington. In the third game played in the league, Charleroi defeated Greensburg, 6-4.

With their winning streak resumed, the Huntington Red Birds have cut down the first-place lead of the Zanesville Greys in the Middle Atlantic League standing to three and one-half games, the lowest it has been for more than a month.

The Red Birds got back into the win column last night with a dual triumph over Johnstown, while Zanesville was dropping a 13-4 decision to the last-place Wheeling Stogies.

After taking the first game of the doubleheader, 7-2, Huntington went on to an 8-7 victory in the second behind the batting attack of Pitcher Heist, who accounted for two homers, the first in the third inning with two on, and another in the sixth.

Today, Huntington takes on the National League's Cincinnati Reds in an exhibition game, while Zanesville, meeting Wheeling in another regular league game, has a chance to regain at least a part of its lost first-place lead.

REPORT HAS FOXX HEADED FOR YANKS IN BIG DEAL

MACK SLUGGER TO REPLACE BABE RUTH

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Denials, I presume, will be promptly forthcoming from the usual channels, my last outburst on the subject having inspired practically a daily denial until such time as the principals become lured by their own blather and turned their attention to something useful.

Jimmy Foxx

Anyhow, it is now my information that the New York Yankees are hoping to take the title to Jimmy Foxx, of the Athletics, next winter in the biggest money deal yet consummated by baseball.

According to details, so far unconfirmed, the Yankees, feeling the need of a general re-paint job on the ball club and, in particular, a hitter to replace Ruth, are prepared to give $150,000 and two players for Foxx's contract. One player, I understand, is a young infielder with one of the Yankee farms, for whom Mr. C. Mack has conceived a fancy. The other is a pitcher now with the club.

TO BE BIGGEST DEAL

The latter could be Johnny Murphy, Johnny Broaca or Jimmy Deshong. But they are young, and if Mr. Mack is to be a party to this transaction, he will want something a little more mellow and generally reliable. He's a little oversold on youth in his pitching now. Therefore, Charley Ruffing might go along to make character and as a bit of fancy window dressing.

Figuring the two men at a value of $20,000 to $50,000, depending on their identity, the rumored deal tops everything in money, including the Grove-Bishop-Walberg transaction with the Red Sox last winter and the $137,500 purchase of Ruth himself. The Red Sox, by the way, were reported not too long ago as wishing to make a bid for Foxx, but that just can't be so because, at the time, I received a telegram from Owner Tom Yawkey, entering a categorical denial. I am, therefore, forced to assume that Mr. Yawkey has no wish to acquire Foxx and pretty soon I expect to learn that Kelly has no further use for his flag pole.

TO PLAY THIRD

In the meantime, I am not yet ready to believe that Mr. Mack has no use for $150,000, even though the money would come from a club with which, so far as I can recall, he has attempted to do no business since the Frank Baker sale away back around 1915.

One other thing: If the deal goes through, the Yankees will play Foxx on third base and Mr. Mack will do even better. He'll play the $150,000 in the First National Bank.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: BREAKS SPIKES WITH HIS TEETH—Francois Russell does an interesting act at the World's Fair in Chicago, not one, but two, both of which seem quite impossible to anyone who hasn't actually seen him work. Russell drives a 60-penny nail into a block of wood and then breaks the nail completely in two with his teeth. The nail is a standard bridge spike and is subject to inspection by anyone to prove that the nail is a standard iron spike. Then, just for extra measure, Russell takes his bed of sharp spikes, lies back down on the point and supports three men standing on his chest. ROUND ABOUT COMMUTER—H. S. Brown lives only five miles from the site of his occupation, yet must travel more than 41 miles each day to and from work. Brown lives in Chevy Chase, Md., and works at Magnolia, Md., which is just five miles away, but is across a river where there is no bridge. Consequently, he must walk two miles to catch a train for Baltimore, thence back on another train to Magnolia.

TOMORROW: A MAN WHO NEVER EATS.

BUCS TO CALL IN RECRUIT FARMHANDS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Gangway, please, and let's have a cheer for the unsung bush-leaguer who is about to have his day!

Beginning tomorrow and continuing until the curtain falls on the major league campaigns, the minor leaguer will strut his stuff on the big-time diamonds of the land, for the open season for bushers is upon us.

All major league clubs, curtailed to 23 players through most of the race, are permitted to load up after today.

The Pittsburgh club plans to call in several youngsters. Negotiations looking toward the recall of certain recruits are now in progress.

The Pirates have farmhands in the baseball vineyards at Albany, N. Y.; Little Rock, Ark., and Springfield, O. Five promising Buccos are toiling at Albany and all of them may be held up if their club gets into the International League playoff.

NATIVE SON LIKED

Two of the most promising of the embryo Buccos are Pitcher Clarence Strum and Third Baseman Elmer Trapp, of the Little Rock Travelers. Both are likely to be called in soon.

Trapp is the same Pittsburgh district boy who starred in the City League before hooking up with the Pirates. His performance at Little Rock have won him a trial in the majors, it would seem.

Young Strum, fireball pitcher and strikeout artist, is so highly touted that Manager Traynor wishes to see him in action. The boy hurler apparently needs further seasoning, but the Buccos are in such a bad quandary concerning sharpshooters, Boss Pie doesn't wish to overlook any prospect.

There are certain signs and portents in the Pirate household these days which indicate there will be a big shakeup in the club this year.

BUCS PLAN TRADES

The swapping of several stars of the club may come to pass, although the owners naturally will not discuss these angles in advance. Disclosing the identity of players on the block doubtless would take something from their trading value.

Reports flying around the circuit to the effect that Fred Lindstrom might be traded back to the Giants drew very little comment in the home office. Even if Lindy were to be swapped during the winter, the local officials would not deny or confirm the question at this time.

The Pirates had their defeat complex with them at Punxsutawney yesterday as they bowed, 4 to 2, before the Electrics of that city. A crowd of 1,500 fans saw Poydock and Powell, of the sandlot club, hold the big leaguers to six hits.

The Traynor clan rested in Pittsburgh today, aside from a workout at Forbes Field. The Buccos are slated to play tomorrow in Zanesville, O., and from that city will hurry to Cincinnati where they will play the Reds twice on Sunday.

Avalon Youth to Defend College Boxing Title

J. RUSSELL CRISWELL, JR. . . . INTERCOLLEGIATE CHAMPION

State College Star, too Light for Football, Wins Honors in Ring

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

Because he was too light to play college football, J. Russell Criswell, Jr., of Avalon, today is the Eastern Intercollegiate 115-pound boxing champion.

He leaves next Monday or Tuesday to resume his studies at Penn State College, after working in a local dairy during the vacation period as part of his agricultural course, and will defend his title next winter.

Criswell played football, basketball and a bit of baseball at Avalon High School. He did not enter State until a year after his graduation and one day while in the gymnasium he was asked to spar with one of the boxers. He did fairly well and went into an intramural tournament in which he won his first bout with a knockout. He lost his second start.

Then he won an interclass tournament and was spotted by Leo Houck, the coach, and asked to come out for the varsity squad last season, his sophomore year. He won bouts in meets with Bucknell, Western Maryland and Maryland, and lost against Navy, Syracuse and the Army, but defeated Rhodes, of the Army, to win the intercollegiate tournament at Syracuse a week after Rhodes had beaten him in a dual meet.

Between Rounds

Tiger Joe Randall would like to get a return bout with Frankie Hughes, of Indianapolis, who got a decision over him at Hickey Park last Monday night.

Al Salbano will be Paul Pirrone's opponent on the Ted Yarosz-Vince Dundee title bout card at Forbes Field one week from next Tuesday night.

Charley Burns, Johnstown lightweight, is laid up with a cut eye which will keep him on the sidelines for several weeks. He defeated Eddie Rane, of Philadelphia, at Lancaster, Pa., last Monday.

Wirt Ross, coast manager of boxers, is expected to arrive here soon with Young Peter Jackson and a few other good boxers. Chalky Wright, coast Negro featherweight, already is here.

The amateur boxing show under the auspices of the Charleroi Baseball Club tonight has been transferred from the ball park to Turner Hall on account of the chilly weather. Seven bouts are listed.

RACES CARDED AT FAIR

After a day of idleness, the harness racing program was to be resumed at South Park this afternoon when the South Park Matinee Club will present four events, two trots and two paces. The program:

First event—Green trotting: [illegible]

Second event—Pacing: [illegible]

Third event—Pacing: [illegible]

Fourth event—Trotting: [illegible]

Three special races were staged after the horse show yesterday. Hi Hat, of the Chartiers Heights Club, won the three-quarter mile flat race, Red took the pony event, and Strychnine was the victor in the mile race.

COUNTY GOLF DATES SET

Dates for the playing of the North and South Parks golf championship have been announced by William S. Haddock, recreational director at the two parks.

September 12 has been selected for the North Park women's championship, an 18-hole medal play event. The South Park women's affair has been discontinued.

The men's championship at both parks will start on Sunday, September 16 and continue until Friday, September 21. The winners in these two tournaments will meet in a playoff for the title now held by Carl F. Kauffmann, South Parker, who defeated Alex Shacoski, North Park kingpin, in last year's playoff.

Mrs. L. G. Riley, of the Edgewood Country Club, won the one-day medal play tournament, staged yesterday by the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania at the Fox Chapel Golf Club when she shot a 92.

One stroke behind Mrs. Riley were Mrs. Frank Campbell, of Stanton Heights, and Mrs. W. G. Boggs, of Chartiers Heights, who tied with 39s. Mary Kuhn, of the Field Club, and Betty Abernethy, of Oakmont, each scored 94. Mrs. Boggs won low net honors with 83.

W. B. Nicklin, of Stanton Heights, won the low gross prize with a 75, and B. R. Seeman and F. C. Bortz, each with a 74, shared low net honors in the stag tourney for friends, staged yesterday at Alcoma.

In the second annual golf tournament held by the J. C. Williams Country Club in Weirton yesterday, Rader Jewett led the professionals with 38-37—75, while Bill Bossen, East Liverpool, won low gross, 38-40—78, and Ralph Kapp, East Liverpool, low net honors with a 39, in the amateur competition. Billy Marks, of Oakmont, was second in low gross with 37-42—79.

Arch Loeffler, of Weirton, and Andy Patrick, Ellwood City, tied for second honors in the professional event. Loeffler scored 39-38—77 and Patrick had 41-36—77.

Mrs. Frank R. Liggett, Mrs. James W. Kinnear, Mrs. Porter Sawyer Kier, Mrs. James Patterson, Edith Speer, Emily N. Reed, Mrs. Frank Boerman, Mrs. J. Raymond Price, Mrs. S. Fownes Wadsworth, Betty Abernathey, Mary Kuhn and Mrs. A. R. Budd are among the local women who have entered the second annual Mason and Dixon women's golf tournament, which is to get under way Monday at While Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Baer Fight in Court

Suit Over Small Bet Asks Ruling on Technical Knockout Ending

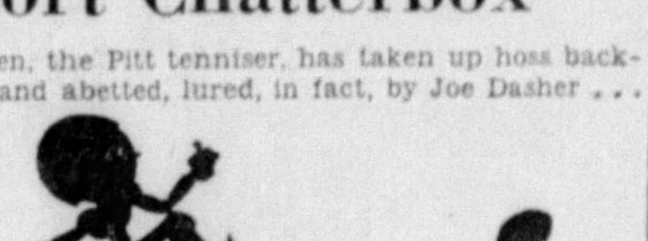
WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(A.P.)—The Municipal Court was asked today to decide whether Max Baer actually knocked out Primo Carnera.

The world championship awarded Baer is not involved, but a $10-to-$5 bet between Isadore Halpern, lawyer, and Al Peluso, barber, is.

It seems Peluso collected from the stakeholder, Joe Pugliese, on grounds the technical knockout awarded by the judges wasn't a real kayo in the sense of the bet. Now Halpern is suing.

Sport Chatterbox

Bob Madden, the Pitt tenniser, has taken up hoss backing . . . aided and abetted, lured, in fact, by Joe Dasher . . .



Madden is Joe's tennis instructor and what Joe will do to Madden on that horse won't help Bob's racket swinging for a day or so.

Penn State made a smooth, smooth move in obtaining the services of Herman Everhardus as backfield coach . . . The Pitt boys who played with the former Michigan star in the East-West game in San Francisco last Christmas time say he's one of the niftiest backs on which they ever laid an eye . . . He could kick, pass and run. . . . On the defense, he was a wow. . . . Everhardus did not do much of the punting for Michigan last year, but he easily was the best kicker on the entire East squad.

With Rolling Rock inaugurating steeplechasing October 9, and the annual Greensburg Hunt Cup race two days later, the Pittsburgh district takes a firm step forward in "'chasing." . . . There are few sports containing the thrill of steeplechasing. . . . It's a grand sport . . . and a man's game. . . . And how. . . . Try a nice six-foot jump some time, if you think differently.

Joe Petterman is very much interested in Pitt's football chances this fall. . . . Joe, who knows as much football as any layman, keeps asking about the ends . . . which is just what Dr. Sutherland is asking. . . . John Ritchey, who longs for the good old days at Wash-Jeff, won't admit it, but he looks for the Prexies to do as well against the Panthers in the opener this year as they did last . . . and they did plenty good in '33, if you recall.

Just when the boys were getting ready to restore Tony Canzoneri to the top, along came Harry Dublinsky and now what? . . . Nothing except that Tony has to start all over again . . . if possible. They have a new nickname for Warren Heller, the Pirates' footballer. . . . They've dubbed him "Curly." . . . Mose Kelsch says that every night before he goes to bed he prays that nothing ever happens to Heller . . . that if it does, he'll be the baldest man on the squad.—JESS CARVER.

Western Leaguer Succeeds Where Rowe Failed

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Aug. 31.—(INS.)—Frank Lamanski, southpaw pitcher for the Davenport (Iowa) team, today held a new Western League record of 17 consecutive victories.

He scored his seventeenth win last night by pitching Davenport to a 3-to-1 victory over Cedar Rapids.

Lamanski will report to the Brooklyn Dodgers at the close of this season. He has won 24 games and lost five.

The previous Western League record of 16 consecutive victories was held by Bud Tinning, former Des Moines pitcher, now with the Chicago Cubs.

At Fort Hamilton, N. Y.—Joe Doherty defeated Abe Wasserman, 10 rounds.

RANGERS QUIT GRID RANKS

By TOM BIRKS

With the approach of the football season rumors are flying thick and fast in local sandlot circles. Reports from authentic sources have it that the Rox Rangers, lightweight champions of Western Pennsylvania, will not sponsor a team this fall, while another brings the news that the Bradley Eagles, for a number of years the outstanding sandlot eleven in the district, will be revived with many of the Rox players in the field.

Toby Uansa, a native of McKees Rocks, coached the Rangers to the championship last fall, only to retire at the end of the season to devote his attention to business.

Dormont to Oppose Akron Tomorrow

The Dormont-Mt. Lebanon Club will have the Akron Goodyears as their attraction at the Washington field tomorrow evening. Play will get under way at 6:15.

The Book team plays Parmelee in a City League game at Frick Park this evening. Ingram and St. Phillips play a Crafton-Ingram Church League game at Ingram. The Ottie Cochrans and Hazelwood Verhovays meet in a Greater Pittsburgh Commission elimination at Burgwin Field.

Eddie Hennessey pitched a one-hit game for the Republic team to score a 8-1 victory over Oliver in a Fayette County League game at Uniontown yesterday. Of the 28 men who faced him, 10 were retired on strikes. Ingomar defeated Bairford in an elimination game, 2 to 1, while Hillman vanquished Renton at Springdale, 3 to 1, in other sandlot games.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

They are planning to fly the mail between distant points 15,000 feet in the air. The time will come when all they will do is go up 40,000 feet and then stand still for an hour or so and let the earth do the traveling. For instance, say the earth is traveling from west to east. A plane goes over New York 40,000 feet and waits until California is underneath. Then it comes down! These scientific fellows should let me do some of their figuring. I am a hound for science. Regards,

ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH PLUS MEANS EASY DRIVING!

ALLISON IN LOCAL NET TOURNEY

Bill Corum Writes:

By BILL CORUM
(Written for International News Service)

A great many of my friends have been asking me:

Barney Ross

That's a difficult question.

But if they had ask me:

"Who would you like to see win the fight?"

Well, that would be different. It would also be easy.

I'd like to see Jimmy McLarnin win the fight.

I say that knowing quite well that the pleasant and personable young Ross boy from Chicago will understand. When McLarnin fought what was left of Benny Leonard as a ringman not so long ago, I would have liked to see Leonard win. Indeed, when Benny clipped James with a rousing righthander on what is vulgarly known in our set as "the lug," I probably was the first man on his feet yelling:

"There it is!"

By the same token, I'll either be first, or at least, in the money, with that yell, if McLarnin can nail Ross with the convincer in the gloaming of next Thursday evening. I am a sentimentalist at heart, and also strictly a rooter for the underdog, which is how I vision McLarnin in his approaching farewell to arms.

Ross Favorite

I do not mean the underdog because Ross will be the favorite, which he no doubt will. But because, to my way of thinking, everything is going to be against McLarnin in this fight except the always long chance that he will get across his knockout punch while there still is enough behind it to make it a knockout punch.

That may be an erroneous, even a ridiculous, sizing up of the situation, but for better or for worse it chances to be mine, and I am stuck with it.

Only the other day I was reading in the paper where that famous horseman of Saratoga, the gay caballero of Forty-ninth street, otherwise Mr. Alfred Damon Runyon, was intimating that McLarnin would have to be pretty bad to lose. Mr. R. may be right as unusual, but it seems to me that Jimmy will have to be very good to win.

This is no soft touch for any man's fighter, this Ross boy. This department was inclined to think otherwise at first. But after they had kicked me down the stairs about four times in succession, I began to get the idea. They didn't want me up there, and Barney Ross is better than a fair fighter.

You need only go see the two young men in their training to get my point. Or I think that is all you need do. You might, of course, see it differently. But to my eye McLarnin, in superb physical condition and with his heart and soul set on winning this fight and what he still considers his title, has to drive himself through his paces. He has to fight himself to make himself fight.

But the Ross boy goes a-galloping. It still is fun and excitement and bang for him. All that has gone out of it for the sedate and sober Irish lad.

Recalls First Fight

It is always somehow faintly amusing when somebody comes running over to you in the paddock of a race course to whisper:

"So-and-so likes his horse."

Why shouldn't he? It's his horse.

But I can't forget that in their dressing rooms after the last fight it was McLarnin who was the beaten, bleeding boy and Ross who was perched on a table chipper as a chicadee, discussing the opening of the World's Fair at Chicago. And the years, yes, even the months, are running for Barney now.

Before the last fight I coined a phrase that became something of a byword on the fight which was:

"I like Ross until McLarnin hits him."

Maybe this time, in spite of everything, Jim will hit him. So make mine McLarnin, Mr. Compositor—with horseradish!

DAVIS CUP ACE TO PLAY AT ALLEGHENY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Wilmer L. Allison, veteran Davis Cup ace from Texas, will compete in the new Allegheny Country Club invitation grass court tennis tournament, getting under way on Tuesday, September 11, and continuing through the ensuing Saturday. Allison, who is seeded second to Frank Shields on the American list in the National men's singles championship at Forest Hills the coming week, is the first big name on the Allegheny roster.

The affair, arriving the week immediately following the National classic, should catch at least several of the host of luminaries who will be hitting the trail across the continent for the Pacific Southwest championships in Southern California from September 17 to 23. Among those who have indicated probability of accepting Sewickley bids are John McDiarmid, another Texan; Lefty Bryan, ace of Chattanooga, and Chuck Garland, former Pittsburgh pride and present Chicago net leader. There also is distinct hope that Shields, Sidney Wood, Bitsy Grant, Henry Prusoff, R. Norris Williams II, George Lott, Lester Stoefen, Gilbert Hall, Sam Gilpin, and perhaps three or four more of the upper 20 will attend.

PERRY TO BE ABSENT

Fred Perry, British Davis Cup crack and generally recognized to be the greatest amateur player in the world today, will be unable to appear. The same goes for Roderick Menzel, Czecho-Slovakian giant, who is ranked number two among the invaders at Forest Hills.

Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, head of the West Penn ranking lineup and local representative in the national conclave, left last evening for New York with his P. A. A. confrere, Ed Kelly, and the Keystone squash satellite, Howard Brennan. O'Loughlin is slated to practice this afternoon at Forest Hills. Tomorrow he takes on Dr. Eugene McCauliff, Yonkers slasher, in the inaugural round.

The twenty-eighth annual Beaver County tennis championships will get under way on the five clay courts of the American Bridge Company, Ambridge, tomorrow at 10 a. m. Sixty-four contenders, including such stars as Dr. John O'Loughlin, Frank Broida, Paul Barber, Lowell Wingerd, Howard Campbell, Johnny Hecker, Bob Lampus, Howard Cooper and Bob Madden are listed for men's singles, with 33 pairs entered in the masculine doubles division.

PAIRINGS ANNOUNCED

Due to the size of the field, it may be necessary to play Sunday, as well as tomorrow, Labor Day, and the ensuing Saturday. The pairings:

SINGLES

COACH JOE BACH — DIRECTOR CHRISTY FLANAGAN

Bach and Flanagan will begin the fall training season for the Duquesne University gridders tomorrow morning. Their squad of 34 players will be called upon to play a 10-game schedule. Eleven members of last year's fine team were lost by graduation, but good prospects are available. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

DUQUESNE SWIM STAR LEADS IN MARATHON

TORONTO, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Ninety swimmers plunged into the chilly waters of Lake Ontario at noon today in the annual Canadian National Exhibition 15-mile marathon.

The water temperature was at 60 degrees when the big splash marked the aquatic chase for $5,000 in prize money.

This was two degrees colder than the stipulated minimum, but Elwood Hughes, exhibition general manager, got around this technicality by calling off the original race and substituting another under identical conditions except for the provision concerning temperature. Entrants were given the chance to withdraw and get back their entry fees, but none dropped out.

The leader at the end of the first lap, a distance of one mile, 134 yards, was Gianni Gambi, of Italy, who was clocked in the fast time of 26 minutes 4 seconds.

Trailing Gambi, in order, were Charles Garreau, of Sudbury, Ont., George Rundle, of Montreal, and George Young, of Toronto, the 1931 winner, all bunched. Last year's victor, Marvin Nelson, of Port Dodge, Ia., was in the next group, about seventh.

The first withdrawal was Clifford Patry, a Canadian, who climbed on the official barge at the end of the first lap, complaining of a pain in his side and ill effects from the cold water.

Withdrawals came in bunches, 13 dropping out within a few minutes of the start. Among them were: George Boyd, Philadelphia; Tony Carvajal, El Paso; Charles H. Graefem, Jr., Bayonne, N. J.; Wilson F. Padgett, Marion, Ark., and Everal R. Curry, Emporium, Pa.

Radokovich's time for the two miles was one hour flat. He held only a slight margin, however, over the next dozen swimmers. Garreau held second place, with Johnny Cairo, of Toronto, third. John Gortawki, Trenton, N. J., had moved up into fourth place, closely trailed by Young. Gambi had slipped back to sixth place, with Nelson seventh.

SECOND GAME

*Cumberland ...... 4—New Orleans 3

*Thirteen innings.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—All square after two closely-fought games, New Orleans and Cumberland, Md., moved back to Comiskey Park today to play the final game of their series for the American Legion junior baseball championship.

Although they had had only one day of rest, the two big hurlers, Jerry Burke, of New Orleans, and Ronald Triplett, of Cumberland, were the likely pitching choices today.

Phil Hoewatt's single, with the bases filled in the thirteenth inning enabled Cumberland to eke out a 4-3 decision yesterday, and even the series' count at one-all. The score.

Bantam Gridders Open Here Sept. 14

Bantamweight football will make its bow in Pittsburgh under the lights at Forbes Field on September 14, when the Cleveland Bearcats will be the opponents of the local All-Stars, according to an announcement today by T. G. Hayden, president of the newly-formed Western Pennsylvania Bantamweight Football Association.

Bantamweight teams consist of players who are not more than 16 years old and do not weigh more than 118 pounds. It is popular throughout Ohio.

The local team will play its first game at Erie next Thursday night and also is booked against the Red Peppers, champions of Ohio, at Akron, September 21, and will play this team in a return game here in October. Dayton will play here on October 7.

SCHUEBEL SETS GOLF PACE

HERSHEY, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—four birdies in the first eight holes won Joseph Fungy, of Cumberland, the cheers of the gallery this morning as he, with close to 100 other professionals, went after the principal purse of the $2,500 prize money and Ed Dudley's crown in the second annual invitation professional tourney.

Dudley, himself was shooting par golf on the first seven holes.

Of the early finishers of the first 18 holes of the 72-hole test, only John F. Schuebel, of the Oak Terrace Club, Ambler, cracked par. He had a 38-34—72.

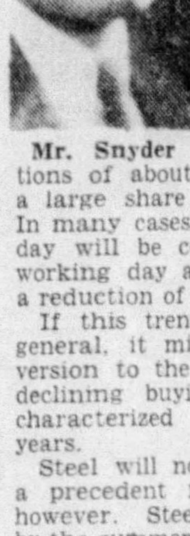
Cuts in Steel Salaries Disturb Industry

By GEORGE H. SNYDER,
Business Editor.

THE REDUCTION in salaries in the steel industry came as a shock to a business world which was getting in the habit of hearing about increases. While the steel industry will abolish all Saturday work for its salaried office forces, effective September 1, it is to be hoped that this does not represent a general trend for all industry. The Saturday lay-offs in steel will result in salary reductions of about 10 per cent for a large share of the industry. In many cases, however, Saturday will be counted as a full working day and will result in a reduction of 16 2-3 per cent.



Mr. Snyder

If this trend should become general, it might mean a reversion to the vicious circle of declining buying power which characterized the depression years.

Steel will not necessarily set a precedent for all industry, however. Steel was harder hit by the summer slump than most other industries. This was partially due to a rush of buying in the second quarter to take advantage of prices, scheduled to be increased last July 1. Consumers are using up stocks bought at that time and this has accentuated steel's results.

Put Salaries At Low Point

THE STEEL industry has worked in close harmony on its salary reductions but there have been minor variations between companies. An employe of one company in a minor executive position received $100 a week before the depression. His first cut amounted to 16 2-3 per cent when he was put on a five day week. This was followed by a further 10 per cent and orders to go back on a full six day week. These cuts amounted to a reduction of about 25 per cent and left him with a salary of 75.01 a week. A subsequent 10 per cent increase boosted his pay to $82.51 a week. In this particular case he will get a cut of 16 2-3 per cent on September 1 so that his salary will be $68.76 a week, the lowest of the depression. Even salaried employes scheduled to get a 10 per cent cut will receive high less than they did at the low of the depression. On this basis, the salary in question would be $74.26 a week.

The latest order, of course, does not affect workers in the mills paid on an hourly basis. But such men are working only one or two days a week at present, if they are working at all, and the net loss to them in income has been even greater. Steel mills are operating at about 19 per cent of capacity.

Ford to Supply Own Steel Needs

HENRY FORD'S announcement that his new steel plants, now under construction, will permit him to supply all his own needs for steel on a 3,000 car a day program, has caused little worry in the Pittsburgh district. While it will mean the loss of some substantial orders, Pittsburgh mills are designed for the production of heavier types of steel than are needed for automobile production and the change will not affect this district to as great an extent as Youngstown and Cleveland.

A year ago, when the steel code was being put into operation, there was much discussion of the possibility of leading automobile makers starting the production of their own steel. Ford has been the only manufacturer to carry out such a policy. For a time, General Motors was negotiating to acquire Corrigan, McKinney but this scheme was abandoned and Corrigan, McKinney has been included in Republic's latest merger plan. Leading steel companies have been ordering additional equipment for the rolling of automobile sheets on continuous mills so that the steel industry does not appear worried about the possibility of any general loss of automobile business.

NEW YORK CLOSE WITH NET CHANGES

PRE-HOLIDAY APATHY RULES IN STOCKS

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Labor Day troubles, another relapse in the British pound and industrial uncertainties combined with the usual pre-holiday apathy today to fetter any strong bullish sentiment that might have appeared in the financial markets.

With many traders out of town for an extended Labor Day recess and others subject to nervous indecision, stocks generally were permitted to drift aimlessly in an extremely narrow price range. There was profit-taking in grains notwithstanding private crop reports which forecast the smallest production since 1881. Cotton and other commodities were diffident. Hogs at Chicago were somewhat reactionary. United States government securities continued to point downward and corporation loans were listless. The British exchange fell to its lowest level since last February in terms of the dollar.

Many shares yielded fractions to around a point in early trading, but the majority of losses were regained or reduced later. Some of the food issues such as National Dairy and Borden were under momentary pressure, but they, too, came back.

Most market commentators stressed the seriousness of the textile controversy, although some voiced the faint hope that last-minute presidential intervention might bring about a peaceful settlement. In the event the strike takes place tomorrow night, few would predict how long it would last or the effect on industry generally.

Employment and payrolls, says a statistical service, are receding rapidly to a level below that in force in the latter months of 1933. Living costs are well started on an upward trend that can hardly fail, before the winter is ended, to reach a plane higher than any in the last two or three years. With such background, labor will be under no necessity to argue that its need for added income is a valid one. On the other side stand employers with higher costs, dwindling volumes and an increasingly well-defined prospect that the fall will bring less than the normal seasonal snapback.

The downfall of sterling, causing nervousness in stocks as well as government bonds, was attributed by banking circles partly to seasonal factors which naturally depress the British currency. At the same time the gyrations of the pound brought speculation as to the momentary status of those European countries still remaining on gold and to what depths the Bank of England exchange control would allow sterling to sink. A "currency war" would be far from pleasing to most market followers.

TEXTILE STRIKE HITS COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 2 to 6 lower on the textile strike news and the decline in sterling exchange. October, 13.05; December, 13.19; January, 13.21; March, 13.25; May, 13.32; July, 13.40.

Trading was more active than in some time and offerings increased after the opening with the selling more general. October contracts sold off to 13.00 for the first time since early in the month, while December declined to 13.12 and May to 13.27 with all positions making new low ground for the present movement, at net losses of 6 to 10 points.

Trade buying was mostly on a scale down but more support developed at the 13-cent level for October, while offerings tapered off somewhat and the market turned slightly steadier.

Demand around the 13-cent level for October, which was said to be getting close to a parity with the loan offer on farms, proved sufficient to steady the market later in the morning.

Offerings were absorbed, and the volume of business tapered off, with prices working up several points on trade buying or covering.

At mid-day trading was quiet, with December ruling around 13.19 cents and May at 13.34 cents.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 31.—Cotton, 6,000 bales including 3,900 American. Spot quiet; prices four points lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling 7.71; good middling 7.41; strict middling 7.26; middling 7.11; strict low middling 6.96; low middling 6.76; strict good ordinary 6.56; good ordinary 6.26. Futures closed steady. October 6.89; December 6.86; January 6.87; March 6.87; May 6.86; July 6.85.

POUND FALLS BELOW $5

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The British pound sterling sold below $5 today for the first time since the dollar became effectively stabilized at its new gold value last February.

The rate for the pound in New York trading dropped to $4.98½, off 3 cents on the day and about 11 cents since its sharp depreciation got under way 10 days ago. In Paris, the pound fell to a new record low at around 74.60 francs, off some 60 centimes.

The gold price in London was forced to a new peak at 140 shillings 11½ pence a fine ounce, and over-the-counter offerings were reported as high as 141 shillings 7 pence.

Last February, just after the dollar's gold valuation was officially cut to 59.06 per cent of its previous parity, the pound touched its year's low of $4.86. This occurred, however, before the dollar had effectively reached its new price in relation to foreign exchanges.

A couple of weeks later, when the dollar became adjusted to its new gold content, the pound was worth about $5.10. High for the year was reached early in April at $5.18⅞.

Other foreign currencies were relatively steady in terms of dollars today.

WARREN'S TALK 'UNOFFICIAL'

International News Service.

BAD EILSEN, Germany, Aug. 31.—In declaring the world price of gold must be doubled to re-establish conditions which prevailed before the depression, Prof. George F. Warren, of Cornell University, was speaking as an individual and not as a representative of the United States government.

The noted economic expert, chief proponent of dollar devaluation in the United States, made this clear today in a statement to International News Service which may or may not be indicative of the status of his relations with President Roosevelt.

With regard to rumors and reports that the and the Chief Executive have parted company, Prof. Warren had only this to say:

"I have not heard of any rift."

Street Watches Washington for Money Move As British Pound Drops Below $5

As the British pound dropped below $5, seemingly headed for its old parity of $4.86 with the dollar, Wall street eyes turned toward Washington in an effort to catch the reaction of the administration to the drop in the pound. There was a good deal of talk in the financial district that if the decline in the pound continues, demands for a further cut in the gold value of the dollar would increase and the administration might feel impelled to counteract depreciation in sterling. However, some monetary experts considered it unlikely that Washington would become apprehensive over the drop in sterling unless the decline took it well under $4.86.

Brokers wasted no fond regrets on the passing of August as they watched the stock market ticker stutter through another slow session today. Most of the larger commission houses probably will write up the August record in red ink. Trading continued through the month at the slowest pace in a decade. Among the few features that distinguished it in stock exchange annals was the session of August 20, when volume dropped to 274,440 shares, establishing a record for dullness that went back to July, 1922. Nor was August very productive for traders. The market came out of a rut into a moderate upswing in the second half of the month. This week's reaction has cancelled in part that advance and the market closes August only a little above the levels prevailing at the end of July.

The windup of August was faintly reminiscent of the final days of August, 1931. There were echoes of the German financial crisis in the summer of 1931 in the statement of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German minister of economics, that Germany needed a complete moratorium for years and also a cut in its foreign debt total. Three years ago the British pound was showing the first tremors preceding its fall from its gold anchorage. On the whole, though, the comparison was superficial for the world has gone a long way toward restoring stability in the meanwhile.

With the end of the San Francisco general strike, labor worries temporarily had faded into the background when August made its debut, and the western drought was making gloomy headlines. As August goes out, the situation is reversed. The textile strike called for tomorrow has put labor unrest back in the news and the drought has been rained out of the headlines. So far much of the industrial history of 1934 revolves around labor disputes and threats of strikes and from all appearances will continue to pivot on the labor problem.

The federal reserve statements this week show the first decline in monetary gold stocks since the United States adopted the gold bullion standard last January 31. The loss was only $2,000,000, but was considered significant as marking a reversal of recent trends. If the treasury continues to buy silver abroad and inflation talk persists at home, further outflow of gold was considered inevitable. The dip in gold stocks, though, did not interfere with the rising trend of member bank reserves.

Excess reserves of the member banks for the first time were estimated to have reached $2,000,000,000. And the government, as Secretary Morgenthau explained to the country this week, is keeping $2,800,000,000 in profit from dollar revaluation under lock and key. Excess reserves probably would shoot upward at an accelerated pace if the administration suddenly began to spend that "nest egg," bankers said.

Circulation of Silver Is Expanding Steadily

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Conforming to the program of remonetization of silver, more than $100,000,000 in this type of money—both metal and paper—has gone into circulation since President Roosevelt took office March 4, 1933.

Silver money is moving into circulation at the rate of $10,000,000 a week, according to figures available at the Treasury today.

The present circulation of silver was given as $749,254,800 as compared with $642,875,000 February 28, 1933. This represented a gain of about $107,459,000.

The various types of silver in circulation were given as follows (000 omitted):

Denomination.	Feb. 28, 1933.	Aug. 27, 1934.
Silver certificates	$362,436	$438,542
Silver dollars	28,357	30,344
Subsidiary silver	252,068	280,071

During the last six months there has been an abnormally heavy demand for the use of small silver such as dimes, quarters and half dollars. The demand for "small change" has not been explained although some experts felt that the sale of beer and other alcoholic beverages may have accounted for the situation.

Following the mandate of Congress aimed at increasing the popularity of silver as a circulating medium the Treasury is now printing this form of paper money in denominations of $1, $5, $10, $20 and $100. Heretofore only ones and twos were printed.

The present stocks of silver in the Treasury are sufficient to support $100,000,000 additional silver certificates. Stocks were being increased daily in the purchase of the newly mined metal and under the order of August 9 which nationalized this metal and brought all available stocks of bullion into the Treasury.

News and Views

AMERICAN AIR LINE MILEAGE

The Commerce Department reports American-operated airlines flew 21,517,658 miles and transported 241,772 passengers and 1,573,014 pounds of express in the first six months of 1934. With respect to passenger miles flown, express carried and passengers carried, the above statistics show material increases over the corresponding period in 1933, but fewer miles were flown in 1934. There were 5,942 persons in the employ of the airlines on July 1, of which 497 were pilots, 233 co-pilots, 1,939 were mechanics, 1,762 belonged to other hangar and field personnel, and the others employed in the offices.

FURNITURE BOOKINGS UP

The midyear peak of new orders booked by furniture manufacturers was reached in July, showing a gain of 107 per cent over June, in comparison with one of 55 per cent over the seven-year average for the period.

LOCAL MARKET CONTINUES QUIET

Trading continued quiet and prices irregular on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Only a few issues appeared on the board during the early market with quotations showing a slightly lower tendency, as compared with last night's final figures. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt sagged fractionally to a new low for the current downturn but there was no noticeable pressure on the stock. The other heavy industrials were quiet and substantially unchanged as were the local issues.

On the "big board" the leading issues were irregularly lower in quiet dealings. Lacking any incentive on the up side, the list likewise appeared to ignore the rather bearish implication of the reduction in salaries of the big steel companies' white collar employes. Operations in the steel industry are at the lowest of the year. On the other hand, Dun's trade report noted an increase in retail sales in many sections of the country. Gyrations in the foreign exchange market tended to keep the traders on the side lines, leaving the market almost entirely to the professional element.

MANNING HEADS CORD CORP.

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—L. B. Manning today was elected president of the Cord Corporation, succeeding E. L. Cord, noted financier and industrialist.

Cord, who is in Europe, was re-elected to the board of directors.

U. S. CONSIDERING FEDERAL ANNUITY SYSTEM

Forbes

Do Something! Warburg's New Book. His Viewpoint.

By B. C. FORBES

MARK TWAIN once remarked that people did an awful lot of talking about the weather but that he had noticed they never did anything about it.

In this country the New Deal and all its ramifications have overshadowed every other subject of conversation, particularly throughout the business and industrial worlds; but so far they have done very little about it.

Mr. Forbes

What can you or I do about it?

An answer, written by an ex-member of Roosevelt's inner council, who quit because wild-ideaed brain trusters gained the ascendancy, is shortly to appear in the form of a book, "It's Up to Us." The author will tell specifically just how each of us should proceed to make his or her influence felt in the shaping of governmental policies.

THE WRITER IS James P. Warburg, 38-year-old descendant of a historic family of bankers, whose brains, progressiveness, liberalism, attracted the attention of President Roosevelt and led to his being invited to Washington as an adviser on monetary and other financial problems. He became a powerful influence—for a little while. Then others of no practical experience—Warburg was and is head of one of New York's larger banks—got President Roosevelt's ear, their amateurish theories won out, and Warburg quit.

WHEN WARBURG confided to friends early this year that he was going to publish a book, "The Money Muddle," criticising the brain trust's theories and experiments, they pleaded with him:

"Don't do it, Jimmy. You're young. Almost your whole business career is before you. Politics and business don't mix and you'll ruin yourself as a business man by mixing in political disputations."

Warburg replied:

"What happens to me as an individual is unimportant, but what happens to the American people and to business is important. It may be, as you say, that business and politics don't mix, but it is high time business men were taking more than a lip interest in what politicians do to the American people and to business.

"Business, long ago, should have begun taking an active interest in national affairs and, long before then, should have begun taking the people into its confidence instead of being so mysterious about itself—leaving the public to guess as it pleased and telling it nothing, or practically nothing. With the facts before it, the public can be depended upon to act intelligently.

"It's up to business men to be equally as intelligent and to furnish the facts."

The book was published—and proved a best seller.

IN THIS NEW book, I am told, Warburg propounds a lengthy series of questions citizens should ask themselves—and answer.

He gives his own answers, his own specific suggestions, on such vital matters as agriculture, industry, money and banking, taxes, foreign trade.

Then—unlike Mark Twain—he tells what can be and should be done about it all by you and me.

The presumption is that he advocates our asserting ourselves as sovereign citizens, coming out into the open and expressing our views honestly and courageously, no matter what our views may be—and bestirring ourselves to champion and fight for our convictions conscientiously, fearlessly, patriotically.

IN REPLY TO one reader who wrote abusing me vitriolically for not "patriotically getting behind the President," I replied that it wouldn't be patriotic for me or anyone else to get behind President Roosevelt or any other statesman and push him forward if we were convinced he was following a path which ended in a precipice.

Surely, it is just as patriotic for a citizen who differs with certain acts of the administration to criticize them as it is for believers in these same acts to commend them enthusiastically.

Loans to Brokers Recede 17 Million

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve Member banks in New York City, decreased $17,000,000 during the week ended August 29, to $793,000,000 from $810,000,000 in the week preceding.

The high record of $6,804,000,000 was established October 2, 1929, and the record low of $331,000,000 on July 27, 1932.

Coal Production Higher for Week

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Bituminous production for the week ended August 25 is estimated by the National Coal Association at 6,200,000 net tons against 5,772,000 for the previous week and 7,754,000 tons for the corresponding week last year.

SUPPLEMENTS AGE PENSION PROGRAM

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—A federal annuity system to finance the government and supplement old-age pensions is being considered by experts framing recommendations for President Roosevelt's social security legislation.

The plan, it was disclosed today, has already been considered by Treasury experts as a means of providing funds for the government without resorting to huge bond sales.

The annuity plan, in brief, provides that an individual can pay so much a month to the government and after he is 65 receive a stated amount from the government each month.

Adoption of the system would put the government into a field now occupied by life insurance companies. It has developed rapidly in the last few years.

The theory of advocates of the annuity system is that any system of old-age pensions can provide only moderate benefits, probably not over $30 a month for those over 65 years old.

COULD DOUBLE PENSION

The annuity system would supplement it. A person who has paid money regularly to the government for 25 years might receive an additional $30 a month annuity, thus doubling his pension.

Representative David Lewis (Dem.), of Maryland, co-author of the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill which was supported by the administration last year, expects to lay the annuity plan before President Roosevelt within two weeks.

The plan, Lewis insisted, would not compete with insurance companies because they usually sell annuities for larger amounts. He said:

"An annuity system is of benefit to the government as well as to the annuitant. Why should not our government finance itself by the issue of life annuities to the people rather than by the sale of bonds?"

BENEFITS CITED

The plan, Lewis holds, would promote thrift. It would, he says, encourage people to save for old age instead of depending upon an old-age pension.

Experts studying old-age pensions hold that one danger is that Congress or State Legislatures always would be under pressure to raise the amount of the pension.

An old-age pension organization, like veterans' organizations or others, could exert strong political influence upon Congress at all times. The experts argue that with an annuity system, the responsibility for increasing benefits in old age would rest on the individual.

SCHACHT PLAN STIRS B. I. S.

BASEL, Switzerland, Aug., 31.—(AP.)—Officials of the Bank for International Settlements today began drafting a stiff protest to Germany against yesterday's speech of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, acting minister of economics and president of the Reichsbank, in which he proposed an absolute moratorium.

Authorities said they considered his speech "a virtual declaration of the bankruptcy of the reich." Financial authorities said they were not surprised at Schacht's declaraton and that they had expected it to follow the partial moratorium Germany declared June 14.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—As bad as the German trade and financial situation undoubtedly is, the opinion prevails in Wall street that Dr. Schacht is painting it in the gloomiest possible colors.

The assertion of the fiery Reichsbank chieftain, speaking before the International Conference of Agricultural Science at Bad Eilson yesterday, that the reich needed a "full moratorium for several years" on all foreign debts, is regarded by international financial authorities here as an extreme statement.

HEARST STOCK PAYING NEW DIVIDEND

Universal Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—Launching its fifth year of unbroken dividend payments since the initial public offerings of preferred shares, the board of directors of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., has voted the seventeenth consecutive quarterly disbursement of 43¾ cents per share on the Class "A" 7 Per Cent Stock.

This dividend, which covers the third quarter of 1934 and at the annual rate of $1.75 per share, will be paid September 15 to stockholders of record on the books of the company as of September 1.

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., has already earned during the first six months of 1934 dividends in excess of the full requirements for the entire year on the 2,000,000 shares of Class "A" 7 Per Cent Preferred Stock.

The 10 metropolitan newspapers in the Hearst Consolidated group have shown a substantial increase in advertising and circulation volume in the first half of the year. These gains show a definite upward trend in business in the newspaper industry that is being reflected, likewise in earnings.

During the six months ended June 30, last, the Hearst Consolidated Newspapers reported total advertising aggregating 47,899,705 lines in comparison with 39,692,908 lines for the corresponding period in 1933. This increase amounted to 8,206,797 lines, or 20.68 per cent greater than a year ago.

Circulation, both daily and Sunday, has also made commensurate gains.

RETAIL TRADE EXPANDING

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Productive and distributive branches of trade, said the weekly Dun & Bradstreet trade review today, are looking forward to Labor Day, the turning point from a curtailment of production, toward a period of recovery and expansion. The summary said:

"After its maintenance at an unexpectedly high level since June, the consumer-buying impetus gained rapidly in the closing week in August.

"As consumer buying turned pronouncedly stronger as the month drew to a close, many retailers had the best week of the summer, and sales rose as much as 15 per cent above the level of the week preceding and were 8 to 12 per cent larger than in the comparative period of 1933.

"In contrast to the encouraging progress being made in the distribution of merchandise, the rate of industrial activity continues to lag, and in many instances is becoming more dependent on federal or state expenditures."

Ickes Defers Action On Fuel Oil Prices

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(INS.)—Action by the oil administration on complaints of unreasonably high fuel oil prices has been deferred, Secretary of Interior Ickes announced today, until more information can be obtained. The Petroleum Administrative Board reported:

"Neither the information supplied, the administration at a public hearing, nor briefs submitted contained sufficient accurate data for a decision as to whether prevailing prices were unreasonable."

July Steel Wage Index Declines

NEW YORK, Aug 31.—(AP.)—The declines in steel operations is shown in the July report on wages and employment issued by the American Iron and Steel Institute today. The number of wage earners employed in July was 383,673 as against 415,547 the previous month. Total wages, exclusive of salaried employes, was $26,150,272, a decline of 35 per cent from the previous month.

BANKS' EXCESS RESERVES AT NEW HIGH

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Excess reserves of Federal Reserve member banks crossed the $2,000,000,000 mark this week for the first time as total reserve balances increased $54,652,000 to a record of $4,126,937,000, weekly bank statistics for August 29 reveal.

The Reserve Board's figures also show that gold and cash reserves of the 12 regional banks reached a new high total at $5,239,692,000. Gold certificates in the amount of about $16,000,000 were transferred to the Reserve banks by the Treasury, although monetary gold stocks dipped $2,000,000 during the period.

The statistics indicated that the Treasury had deposited with the Reserve banks some silver certificates against recent silver acquisitions, in exchange for credit at the Reserve institutions for Treasury and national bank currency, as reported by the Reserve Board, increased $13,000,000 in the week.

The Treasury thus had funds to disperse obtained from the deposit of both gold and silver certificates, in addition to drawing on existing bank credits.

The 12 reserve banks reported industrial advances on August 29 of $810,000, a rise of $512,000 from the preceding week, and commitments to make industrial advances of $357,000, a gain of $12,000. These credits come under recent legilation providing for direct loans to industry by the reserve banks.

TORONTO MART SEATS SPURT

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Reports from Toronto of a further sharp advance in the value of Toronto Stock Exchange seats stirred interest in Wall street today. An open bid of $52,000 for a membership was reported against the last sale three months ago at $44,700. The current asking price was said to be $60,000.

While the climb in Toronto seat values was viewed in some quarters as portending a loss of some speculative business to the exchange across the border, it was pointed out by brokers that seat values on the New York Stock Exchange have also strengthened since the last sale about two weeks ago.

At the present time, it is understood, seats for sale are being held around $160,000 against $95,000 on the last transfer.

Textile Strike Benefit Unimportant Abroad

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Great Britain and other textile producing nations of the world stand to gain little, if a strike in the United States textile industry materializes, according to Edward T. Pickard, chief of the textile division of the Commerce Department.

Existing supplies in the warehouses of the manufacturers will enable this country to care for its limited foreign trade for some time, according to Pickard.

Manufacturers have reported to Pickard that they have at least a month's supply of goods in their warehouses. It was regarded as unlikely that the strike, if called, would extend for a long time.

Pickard admitted, however, that the existing stocks do not provide a variety of cloths for the purchasers. He continued:

"This country exports only 5 per cent of its textile production. Most of the goods go to countries of the Western Hemisphere, including Argentina, Mexico, Canada and the West Indies, and the Philippines. While the United States exports only three hundred million yards a year, Great Britain sends abroad about three billion yards. Hence, even if England should capture our entire foreign market, she would gain only a little in comparison to what she already has."

Pickard observed that Japan and China export far more textiles than this country.

He leaves his wife, Frances Ackenheil Crone; a son, Bernard; a daughter, Audrey, and five brothers, Jack, of Pittsburgh; Daniel, of Baltimore; Gus A., of New York City; Maurice B., of Los Angeles, and Erwin B., of Chicago.

CROWLEY SEEKS STATED LEVY FOR FDIC

By CHAS. P. SHAEFFER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—The major objection of bankers to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation will be removed at the next session of Congress, Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the corporation, has promised, with the announcement that legislation would be sought setting a definite assessment on member banks.

Under the present law, there is no limit to the number of assessments which may be levied against open banks to meet the losses of closed ones. The argument has been cited that if the deposits of those banks which closed in 1933 were added to the deposits of the banks which failed also during the three years previous, the total would have amounted to nearly $7,000,000,000.

INEQUALITIES SHOWN

If all those banks had closed under a guaranty plan such as is now operative, the losses falling on the fund would probably have aggregated more than $2,500,000,000. This amount was held to be equal to about 8 per cent of the deposits of all banks operating on an unrestricted basis, and about 48 per cent of their reported capital funds.

It has been pointed out that in many individual cases, where the ratio of capital funds to deposits is small, the burden would have been equal to 75 per cent or 100 per cent of capital funds. For instance, a bank with $50,000 capital, $50,000 surplus and $1,000,000 deposits, would have its entire surplus and all but $20,000 of the capital wiped out by an 8 per cent assessment on deposits.

ADDED POWERS SOUGHT

Also, it has been advanced many banks upon which these assessments would have been levied already had their capital impaired and the additional burden might have placed more institutions in the insolvent class, thus greatly narrowing the base for assessments, with these results cumulative as failures continued.

Under Crowley's tentative plans a definite assessment will apply for one year.

Legislation also will be sought to give the corporation added regulatory powers over banks which seek membership in the fund.

Capt. Midnight

By LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

CHAPTER IX

"Then you know. They all know——! And that is why Paul acted so strangely, and that girl you were with laughed at me——"

"Do not mind them," said Jean Pierre stanchly, gravely. Yvonne felt a great relief to hear him speak thus; she felt that in him she had one who would not laugh, would not feel scorn. It was a strange sensation and vaguely, while it consoled, even gladdened her, she felt alarmed. Finally she glanced down at his bronzed cheek, his thick brown hair, knotted at the nape of his neck—and looked away.

"But—but is it true—what this old man said—that his—his face?"

"I am sorry to be the one to tell it you, Yvonne," said Jean Pierre. "But others might say it less kindly. The Iroquois held him prisoner—they are fiends——"

"And now he dare not ever——?"

"So one says," nodded Jean Pierre. Shyly he laid his hand on hers. "But, if you love him, what matter? It is only the heart that counts, you know." He smiled queerly. "Often the smiling face masques a rogue's heart."

She withdrew her hand quickly, sensing the irony of his words. He was a rogue—one who had been exiled from France for love of la Pompadour——

"It is said," she retorted du[illegible] "And I—I am wed to this m[illegible] whose face must be hidden forever from the world. I—I know not what to think or say or do. He seemed to be kind, so strong, so fearless——"

"He would prove, I have no doubt, a stout defender, milady."

"Yes," Yvonne thought guiltily of Capt. Midnight's estimate of Jean Pierre, of his unwillingly surrendered intention of crossing swords with the gay Parisian for presuming to encroach upon her lips.

Wife in Name

"I know," continued Jean Pierre, "that he was a good man, a brave soldier and a gentleman. There is nothing to prove that he has ceased to be any of these. I do fancy, though, that marrying you under such circumstances, he did not think to make you, other than in name, his wife."

"So he may have thought," said Yvonne a bit proudly. "But since then he has avowed his love for me and I—I have said I loved him."

"Then do not let what you have heard change you," advised Jean Pierre dispassionately. "And do not fear to follow the dictates of your heart—usually they are to be relied on."

"You are an authority on such matters, m'sieur, I know."

He bowed slightly.

"I have had some little experience, I must admit."

"And—and you feel no pity for me—?"

"Because you are married to St. Hilaire? I do not! He is all that I have said, and more. And if they marred his face, the devils, they did not touch his heart. You see, milady, I knew him in France."

"He—he did not tell me that!"

"Ah, then, you discussed me with him! Did you tell him, perhaps of my rashness, my temerity in——"

"I did tell him."

"And what did he say?"

Not for Love of Him

"He would have fought with you, killed you——"

"But you dissuaded him! You would not let him——"

"I care not for bloodshed, m'sieur. It was not for love of you."

"That I do not doubt," said Jean Pierre humbly, and helped her to arise and rode back to Quebec with her, chatting amiably of nothing.

Francois Bigot, intendant of New France, and Simon Girard, his friend and familiar, rode that selfsame night to Beaumanoir, the intendant's country residence, where, well removed from the observant eyes of the scandalized nuns of 'hotel dieu and from the disapproving gaze of the military governor, Vaudreuil-Cavagnal, he could pursue his drunken dissipations in peace.

The subject of conversation for this precious pair of scamps had been, of late, much the same—Capt. Midnight.

"I tell you, my friend Girard, affairs cannot long go on in this manner or presently it will be Capt. Midnight and not Francois Bigot who will govern the colony."

"That would be disastrous," agreed Simon.

"For Francois Bigot," said the intendant dryly. "But what are we to do? It is an ugly predicament we are in; and to fight a hidden foe—bah! We should have laid this fellow by the heels long ago. He is only human, however much of the devil has actions savor. This is what I would tell you—the dagger of Melusine is gone——"

"Gone, you say, my lord! It——"

"All week it lay on my desk where you saw it and the accursed ruby stared at me like an eye of fire. Then, one afternoon, I missed it."

Must Kill Him

"But he could not come into your private apartments to possess himself of that," said the lawyer fearfully, and under his cloak he felt for the stout butt of the pistol thrust in his belt.

"Nonetheless, it is gone. So many come and go there—but why should they take it when all about were things of far greater worth? It could not have been for greed. It gave me a shock, a thrill of uneasiness when I saw it gone. If he took it—and something tells me it is in his possession—he can want it only to give it back to us again—and it may well be between the ribs."

"No! No!" said Girard. "Not that! We must kill him, shoot him down like a dog or a wolf. We are fools to delay. It's on me he would be avenged—not on you, my lord. I—I think sometimes I will lose my reason. Perhaps you will tell me it is already gone when you hear this. But I—" Girard laughed, such a mirthless, dissonant laugh that Bigot stared through the gloom at the dark shadow riding beside him.

"What is it? Take a grip of yourself, man, or pardieu, I must believe that you are not right in the head."

"I cannot help it. I tell you I cannot! You have not seen this man—you have not seen Laurent. He is no longer Laurent de St. Hilaire; he is a fiend. But I have seen him. I beg you, sire, not to think me mad. I saw him—at my window——"

The intendant made a sound that was both a prayer and a blasphemy.

Face at Window

"I do not doubt you. Why did you not tell me before? And where was this—and when?"

"At the window of my room. Just to talk of it now makes my blood run like a stream of ice. I dared not speak before. I thought it might have been my nervous fancy. But no! He laughed—God, m'sieur, such hideous laughter! I saw his face pressed against the pane—the masqued face—and then he removed the masque and—"

"Yes! Yes! What did you see? Speak, Girard! Tell me what you saw—"

"Something out of hell—something grinning and ghastly—that grinned with the eyes and the tattooed brow—a masque of the devil. Mad; no wonder that ancient man went mad! I, too, if again I must see him, will gibber and mouth and fear the dark that can conjure up such horrors. I screamed like a frightened child.

The servants were roused from sleep and came a-running. I told them it was a nightmare—but I heard the hoof-beats of his horse. I heard his awful laughter in the night. I have not slept since. My lord, we are in terrible danger from this man.

"This girl who is his wife—does he come to her? She must know something of him. Where to find him. Can we not use pressure on her to make her speak? How did you bring her to the point where she would wed you?"

Brother as Bait

"Some gaming debts her brother owed me," mumbled Girard, not daring, even in this extremity, to tell the truth to Bigot, who loved money more than life itself.

"Through her brother, eh," said the intendant craftily. "Come, Simon, is there not some way in which you can use the same weapon?"

"I know of none, sire. But it suggests something to go on, and I shall think about it this night. It seems that only through her can we lure him within striking distance. The habitants will not betray him—they even supply him with food, and they fear and admire him."

"Ah," said Bigot thoughtfully. "So they do—admire him. He is a sort of popular idol with them. But suppose their idol turns upon them? Let me think, Simon. Surely, with [illegible] combined efforts and all the [illegible] in Quebec we can put an end to this scourge—we can—we must!"

They came to Beaumanoir; candles made little stars of light at the windows. Some of the guests had arrived before their host and his henchmen, and the rest came shortly. About the fireplace in the long banquet hall, before a blazing fire, they gathered—young officers of the garrison mostly, wild and eager for the husks of swine that Bigot fed them from his cornucopia. He loved youth, but so does the devil. He loved it only to debauch it and, for him, innocence had a beauty that it was beautiful to destroy.

(To Be Continued)

Synopsis

Yvonne Caron's dreams in the Governor's garden of old Quebec are interrupted by her brother, Paul. He tells her of the latest exploit of Capt. Midnight and of the arrival from France of Jean Pierre Martel, reputed to be the greatest lover and worst scoundrel in France. Yvonne pleads with Paul not to gamble with Simon Girard. Simon tells her of Paul's theft of government funds and promises protection if she will marry him. He leaves with a warning to "think well." Yvonne and Martel meet. Capt. Midnight visits Martel and tells him of rendezvous with death. Capt. Midnight stops Yvonne's marriage to Girard and weds her himself. Capt. Midnight, man Girard paid the Iroquois to kill, forced to wear mask to hide face disfigured in torture by Indians. Bigot tells him Martel unmasks Girard as cheater during card game. Capt. Midnight visits Yvonne and kisses her. Yvonne learns husband's identity. Madman at windmill tells her of Capt. Midnight's hideous face. Martel saves Yvonne as horse runs away.

Now Go On

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Now we have a new contest, fellows!

This week's ended yesterday, and the judges are busy looking over the letters now. The winners will soon be named in the paper—look for them too.

We're sort of wondering what you think about keeping on with the contest after school starts, fellows.

We wish you would write and tell us what you think, because maybe some of you are afraid you will be too busy with your school work to write letters. And, of course, after school, during the cool afternoons, you will want to play some outdoor games. It's not too early to think about football. It won't be long now before the college squads go to camp.

Now we'll tell you the new contest for next week's contest. "What Would You Buy First If You Had $100?" We'll bet that will give you plenty of ideas, fellows. Everybody wants to buy lots of things, but some things better than others.

Maybe you would buy a ticket to the World's Fair. Maybe you want your mother to have a new fur coat. Maybe you would buy thousands of lollypops and ice cream cones.

Well, you tell us, fellows! And remember, we want to know what you think—not anybody else. So just ask yourself. Make up your own mind. And then write the letter, and see if you can't win one of the big prizes—$2.50, first; $1.50, second, and $1, third.

If you win, you will be well started toward that $100!

The rules are the same—don't have your letters more than 100 words long, and you must belong to the Junior Patrol to make your letter count. Send them all to the Junior Patrol Contest.

Daily Short Short-Story

By MARJORIE ERICKSEN

The row of frame houses stood like gray sentinels against the city's new developments. They were their gray paint, their high-stilted open porches, their long flights of steps like uniforms. Before each one, pointing skyward like a soldier's bayonet, stood a scraggy poplar tree.

During the day they might preserve this dignity, but when evening came they seemed to hear the command, "Fall out!" Their doors opened and young and old spilled out to sit on the porches in groups that overflowed on to the steps.

The noise was tremendous. Everyone talked at once. Conversations were carried on with neighbors to the right and neighbors to the left without stirring from one's step. Voices were lifted in an attempt to be heard over the laughing and wrangling of the children. No one ever thought of retiring before midnight.

It was all very familiar to Adeline Sakowski. A large part of her babyhood had been spent at the foot of such a flight of stairs. As she grew older she had climbed up one step at a time, until now she was quite eligible to share the porch bench with her mother.

Throughout her childhood she never questioned this custom, but now that she was a wage earner with a finger wave and a manicure she began to see its disadvantages. What young man would have the temerity to run the gauntlet of that lineup from one end of the block to the other? How could romance flourish under such scrutiny?

The neighborhood boys did not interest her. But what kind of impression would be made on an outsider? She felt that her whole life was being ruined.

It was like an answer to a prayer to hear her father say: "The porch is in pretty bad shape this year. Guess we'll have to do some rebuilding."

She seized the opportunity presented. "Say, pa, why don't you build an enclosed porch this time?"

"Why, I dunno. What's the matter with one like we got?"

"Uh, pa! It's so old fashioned. You should see the cute ones in some of the magazines. Vines up the front. You—you wouldn't get bits by mosquitoes, pa, if it was enclosed!"

"We always liked it the way it was, Adeline," spoke up her mother.

"You could fix it up real cute, ma. We'd go downtown some saturday and buy some cretonne for the windows. And plants, ma. You could bring some up from the basement and make it look swell!"

Little by little she gained her victory. Not so much by her arguments as by her so evident desire for it. She was deliriously happy. There was a boy at the office dying to ask her for a date, she knew.

As soon as the porch was finished she would give him the necessary encouragement. The house would look so nice. The younger children would be outdoors. Her parents would be sitting on the newly finished porch, dignified and decorous. Everything would be perfect, at least so far as her family was concerned.

Finally the porch was completed. The long-awaited evening arrived. Even the anticipated invitation was received. When the boy came to take her to a show the children were nowhere to be seen. Her father was on the porch reading the newspaper. Her mother was there, too, embroidering a splasher for the kitchen wall.

She took the boy in and introduced him. The curtains and the plants looked so clean and cheerful, she felt a thrill of pride in it all. Her father glanced over his paper and admonished, "Don't stay out late."

"We won't, pa." Laughing, they ran down the steps.

A few minutes later Mr. Sakowski threw down his paper and went out muttering something about sprinkling. His wife continued to sew for some time, but it was lonely there. She went to the window and peered out over the fires and the rubber plant.

There was pa sitting next door with the Kuchvaleks family. The sight made her still more lonely. Just then Mrs. Kuchvalek sighted her.

"Come here and sit," she cried.

Mrs. Sakowski did not need a second invitation. She hurried over to her neighbor's house. Mr. Kuchvalek moved down a step to make room for her.

It was cool and pleasant. They felt at home. Not that the new porch wasn't pretty. It was, but it set them apart, and for that they had no wish.

Darkness fell and the children gathered nearer to their parents, as they always did at this time. The Sakowski children arranged themselves on the steps with the Kuchvalek children. The clock behind them struck 11.

"Adeline and her new fellow will be coming along soon, I guess. He seems like a real nice boy. We'll stay here 'till they come. I know Adeline will want you all should meet him."

A street car stopped at the corner and disgorged its passengers.

"There she is, ma! There she is!"

"Yoohoo, Addie! Come over here and let's meet your friend!"

"Right here on the top step, Addie!"

There was no escaping the clamor of voices. Addie led her new friend to the steps and sank down defeated.

Rex says Connellsville has a fast home run promoter. Very close to the diamond are the woods. A ball that would otherwise be about a two-bagger goes out into the woods and gets lost. There's plenty of time for the batter to run on in while the boys in the field are finding it. Rex says this woods of course is as fair for one side as another, but it didn't happen to do Esrom any good, as she didn't hit the ball.

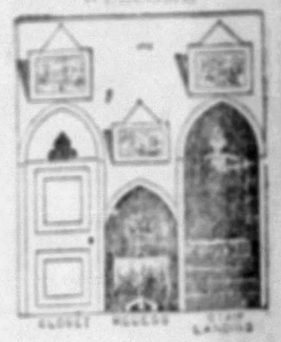
YOU'RE QUITE WELCOME



There is some basis for the assumption that America will become a nation of interior decorators. Statistics show that already the idle farm hands are wearing berets. Thousands of sons of stalwart mechanics now go in for ping pong and libations of whale oil on their hair. Anthropologists will tell you that these are all symptoms leading us toward the abyss, at the bottom of which are millions, yes, thousands of interior decorators and batik dippers. Therefore we take pleasure in printing the above helpful chart for home decorators—clipped, we might say—in fact we will say—from "The Home Beautifier," a volume published only fifty-three years ago. How time flies!

We Take Dictation From Nobody

We say this without bias, rancor or hope of reward.

One Nap at a time is enough.

There was a time when an Rhinegold strong man looked the part. Now they are casting in 4-year-old dress.

They trust nobody, including themselves.

That don't scare us none. We would have an army as big as Europe if our gangsters and bankers were uniforms.

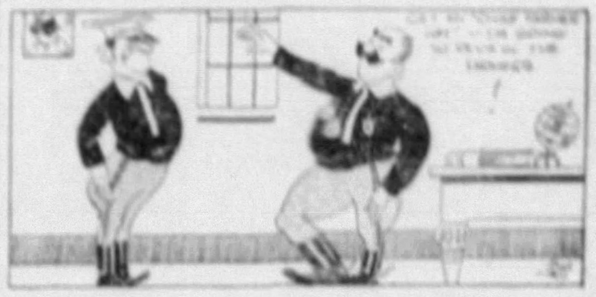
Their national anthems should be "The Stranger's Ball."

How about the bird who said, "My will is the law?"



That reminds me of myself and my half-witted brother. Add us up and the total is three-quarters.

A king of France once said, "I am the state."

What state? He can't name his on Huey Long in Louisiana.

A dictator is more than the state. He is the county, the city and the Fifth Ward.

He is the king, the president, both Houses of Congress, the page boy, the ambassador and the dieffet.

He is all things to all men.

The trouble with this last crop of dictators is they don't dress correctly. The right hat and overcoat are in a glass case in the museum of the Grand Armee.

Dictators are too expensive. They make themselves rulers. Two weeks later they waste the nation's money holding a post-mortem election.

We don't care for the kind of geography that is bounded on the east by a stone wall and on the west, by a firing squad.

And we don't like dictators. Now, when the voice of the people is the squeal of a mouse in a trap.

Selfish Politics

In Rejecting the Relief Conference Mr. Earle Does The State an Injury

The attitude of George H. Earle, Democratic nominee for Governor, has probably killed a plan by which a special session of the Legislature costing the people of Pennsylvania half a million dollars might have been averted.

The plan was for the Democratic and Republican nominees for Governor and other officials to meet with Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and assure him that if successful at the polls in November they would favor action by the Commonwealth for the relief of the unemployed. Mr. Hopkins demands such a promise as a condition of the continuance of federal aid.

Mr. Earle has declined to attend the conference on the ground that the state's power to raise money for unemployment relief lies "with the existing Legislature and not with men who are merely candidates for an executive position or a future Legislature whose composition is problematical."

Well, Mr. Hopkins knows that as well as Mr. Earle; but if the Federal Relief Administrator is willing to give Pennsylvania a chance to escape a costly special session of the Legislature provided he can just get some sort of assurance that influence will be brought to bear on the Legislature at the regular session in January to act on the relief problem as he demands, Mr. Earle is doing the state an injury in rejecting the chance.

Gov. Pinchot does not exaggerate in denouncing as "discourteous" and "childish" the Democratic gubernatorial nominee's refusal even to find out the terms of the plan. He should certainly have agreed to attend the conference, and then and there, if he desired, was the proper occasion for giving out the statement of his reasons for not accepting the plan.

It is not pleasant to impugn Mr. Earle's motives; but it looks very much as if he were eager for a special session, regardless of the unnecessary burden that it will impose on the people, because of the possible advantage that it may give the Democrats in the campaign. In short, Mr. Earle gives all the appearance of a politician, more concerned with the promotion of his own interests than with the well-being of the state, playing selfish politics.

If Gov. Pinchot should ask the Legislature, at the special session, to pass social legislation, as he has said he would; and if the Legislature should refuse, as it has previously done, it might furnish Mr. Earle fresh ammunition with which to attack the Republicans, who control the Legislature.

Or if the Legislature, in the desperate need of raising money to assure continuance of federal aid for the unemployed, should pass an unpopular taxation measure—and any tax bill is bound to be unpopular with a considerable section of the people—Mr. Earle might consider it smart politics to use that as ammunition to attack the Republicans.

But if that is his motive for refusing to have anything to do with the relief conference, it is an unpatriotic motive and unworthy a man who at a time of distress like the present crisis is asking the people of Pennsylvania to give him the highest executive position at their command.

A State Lottery Urged

What a Pity That Thoughtless People Ignore the Experience of Earlier Generations!

Magistrate Anthony Lucas found a man guilty in Central Police Court yesterday of operating a lottery, but instead of holding him for the grand jury, as the law requires, let him off with a fine. And this, notwithstanding that detectives said it was the fifth time the defendant had been arrested for "writing numbers"!

Toleration of lotteries has become so prevalent in Pennsylvania (except in Philadelphia, where stiff jail sentences are now being imposed) that Wilson H. Sarig, Democratic floor leader in the House of Representatives at Harrisburg, and the Rev. Frank W. Ruth, another Democratic legislator from Berks County, have come out with the proposal that the state engage in the "numbers" racket itself, and thus gain for poor relief the profits that are going to criminals.

The plan is sponsored by a civic league and indorsed by the District Attorney of Berks County, and has been laid before Gov. Pinchot with a recommendation that it be submitted to the Legislature.

The proposal brings to mind the remark of a sage that the greatest obstacle to the progress of the human race is the refusal of almost every generation to profit by the lessons learned by earlier generations. Thoughtless people insist on testing by their own experience, bitter though it be, the wisdom gained through the suffering of their forbears.

There have been state lotteries before. Our ancestors gave them a thorough test, and found they did not pay. They found that, with gambling made respectable by government sponsorship, and with the lure of getting rich quick constantly flaunted before people of weak moral fiber, the temptation to risk money was irresistible, and that embezzlements and suicides frequently resulted.

The financial gains that the lotteries brought the state governments did not compensate for the suffering they inflicted, for the ruin that they brought to those who hazarded and lost their savings. And so one state after another abandoned its lotteries, and the federal government did its part to outlaw them by forbidding them the use of the mails.

Is all that painful experience to go for naught?

The Odyssey, Please!

Young America's Taste in Movies Sets a Standard For the Grown-Ups

During all this talk about gangster movies and their effects on children, some bright mind in the moving picture industry decided to ask the children themselves what sort of film they like best.

The answers make you think more highly of juvenile intelligence than, perhaps, you did before.

Among the stories they enjoyed most on the screen, or hoped to see sometime, were "David Copperfield," "Treasure Island," "The Little Minister," "Ivanhoe," "Gulliver's Travels" and "The Odyssey."

The youngsters who were polled were New York school children, between the ages of 8 and 15.

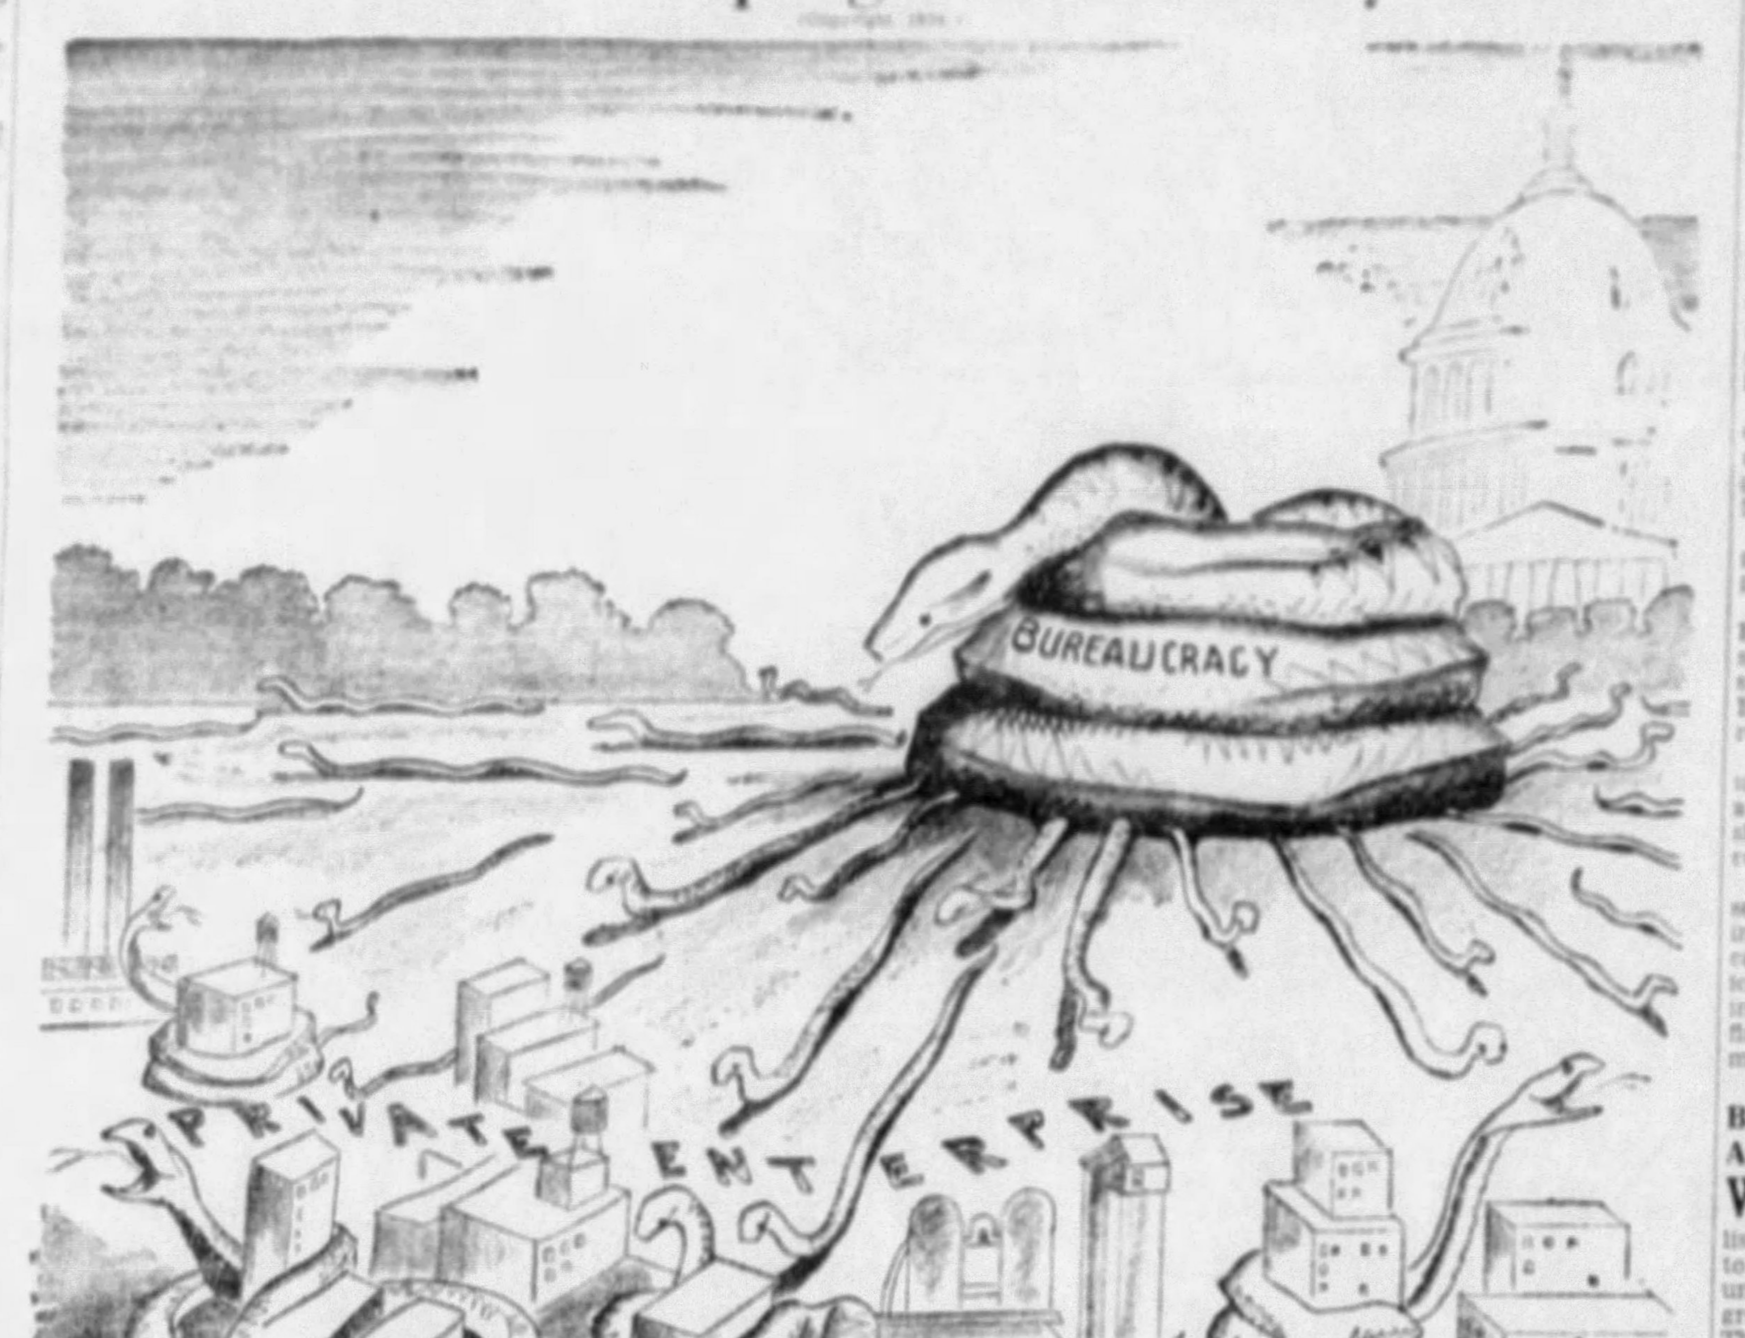
We think their choice does them infinite credit, and shows better taste on their part than the average among adults.

Well, perhaps if we live long enough, we'll grow up to our children's level some day.

Our Creeping Bureaucracy

(Copyright, 1934.)



To understand the increasing evil and danger of bureaucracy it is necessary to regard government in all its phases.

Essentially, bureaucracy is not new to us. It began years ago at Washington with the multiplication of departments and functions in the Federal Government. The New Deal, with its scores of bureaus, and the NRA, with its hundreds of codes, are the culmination of a long slow tendency.

And also, we find that bureaucracy has been increasing itself simultaneously THROUGHOUT THE LAND—in the State governments, in the useless counties and in the overtaxed and sometimes bankrupt municipalities.

If bureaucracy is not checked, it will ruin government.

As the National Economic League has declared, "efficiency and economy in government, Federal, State and local, is the most important issue before the country.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

'Desert Wife'

Red butte. Black shadow, hard and thick as lacquered jet. High cloud, flame-white against the blazing blue. Beneath—the endless quiver of the sun-lashed sand.

Silence so taut it made the eardrums ache.

Distance so vast it broke the mind's small grip.

Across the sand, a tiny, crawling dot. A makeshift team—two humans and a dog. Behind them, all they'd ever owned. Before them? They had not the least idea. But they were one, against a wilderness. So on they went—

Red butte . . . black shadow . . . and white courage, flung like a great flag against the savage challenge of a world's despair—that is the setting and theme of Hilda Faunce's book "DESERT WIFE" (Little, Brown & Co., publishers.)

A magnificent book! Briefly, it's the story of a woman who went with her brooding, bankrupt husband back into the Arizona desert, and for four years worked with him at an isolated trading post on a Navajo reservation. During that time she lived a life of almost unbelievable hardship and loneliness, hardly ever seeing a white face.

This is a record of those days—set down as starkly as one would set down a time sheet. Not once does she go literary. Nor Hollywoodish. Nor use that incredible interlude as a stage setting for Hilda Faunce, herself. To the contrary, she moves through it all like a small, meek shadow at her husband's spurred heels.

But suddenly, as you read, the book is gone from your hands—and the room from your eyes. And there, heaving high against gaunt horizons—lurching low into grim depths, with only an unburied skull or sunken grave to mark the human trail—sways, once more, the pageant of the American pioneers!

But these are not those gypsies and adventurers of 1849 fleeing monotony, seeking fortune on a glamorous frontier. Here in the person of one small, quiet, timid woman is a greater spirit—a more heroic trek.

Here is a woman who followed a man into hell because he was her man, and she wished to save him from despair. She doesn't put it that way. She doesn't put it any way. She just goes and does it. And never guesses that in the doing of it she has done more to restore the faith and fury, the pride and beauty of the old American spirit than regiments of soldiers or platoons of preachers.

Review a book like that coolly? Analyze its technique? It can't be done. Or, at least, I can't do it. For I've lived in that land myself. I know what it means . . . what it does to a woman's body and soul. And it's not paragraphs I'm seeing as I follow that desert wife . . . nor grammar I'm hearing—

But the sudden, high yammer of a coyote across a gulf of darkness. And the silence rushing, roaring in after—drawing you under its monstrous weight—

Or the smell of the first rain drop hitting the seared earth after the summer drought . . . and the cracking of the heat horror like a thong around your heart . . . and the mad, foolish babble of laughter and tears as you run, thrusting your hands deep, deeper into the blessed mud!

A noble story. A story that will make you burn with pride because you, too, are an American!

But the greatest story, and one which only a woman can understand, lies not in the lines themselves, but between them—the story of a husband and a wife.

He loved her. But how did she ever know it? For there were days, seeming weeks he did not speak. Times when she put out her hand in a sudden agony of loneliness, and he did not take it. And when she lay near death he did not come—said frankly that he would not have come if she had died, but would have ridden fast and far away.

It is not the fashion of our times for a woman's love and faith to endure through tests like that. We feel we owe it to ourselves to demand more of our husbands. But she did not demand more. She loved him. She believed in his love for her. She felt he had a right to be what he was—that love meant taking him as he was. So she did!

We have needed the evidence of love like that for a very long time. We have needed, desperately, the evidence of such courage. Here they both are. And all America should be thanking you, Hilda Faunce!

MARRIED TEACHERS

By Winifred Black

So you think a married woman is apt to be a better school teacher than a single woman, do you Dr. White?

Well, maybe she is, and maybe she isn't, but she has a husband to support her and that's why some people think she ought not to be teaching school, when there are so many single women looking for jobs.

Of course, when you think of it that way you're just thinking of the single woman and her point of view—and perhaps after all she is not so important in this particular instance.

It's the children we have to think about, isn't it?

And between you and me I know one or two old maids who love children better than any married women of their acquaintance, yes, and understand them better, too.

But on the whole I sort of agree with you, Dr. White.

Marriage is a discipline you know, according to the old Scotch preachers' dictum, and we all know that a little discipline is good for the average mortal.

A married woman thinks about someone besides herself.

She has to—she may not like to, but she has to. Husbands are like that, don't you know.

And then, of course, marriage is the normal vocation of every normal woman, and when a woman does not marry she does seem to be apt to get a little out of tune with life.

I don't know why she should be like that, but so often, so very often, she is.

A married woman shows by the very fact that she was foolish enough to give up a good job to be married, that she is human.

She loves and she hates and she gets mad and she gets over it, and she cries and she laughs and she thinks her funny, bossy little husband is the greatest man in the world, and she isn't too hard on people when she comes to judge them.

But I don't see how a woman can look after a lot of children all day, and then go home and be nice and pretty please to a man who is tired and hungry and sort of mad at the world in general.

Who on earth is a man going to for comfort after he's had a "hard day at the office" if his wife wants comfort after a hard day in the school room?

Oh, of course, I know that it isn't modern to look at marriage in that way.

"Pals, partners, comrades," he going his way and she going her way and nobody in the least concerned about what happens at home.

It sounds fine and free and sensible doesn't it, but somehow human nature isn't always so fine and so free and so sensible as it ought to be. A man with a hard row to hoe, a man with a tricky partner he has to watch, a man putting every bit of his blood and his brain and his heart into hard, exhausting work—doesn't he need a wife at home to look after him? And how can a woman who has been keeping restless children quiet all day, have any nerves left, and how can she spend the evening bracing her husband's courage, and go to school in the morning with the nervous energy she really needs?

Still and all, I believe you're right Dr. White, I sort of wish I didn't feel that way, but why not be honest about it, and admit that I do.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Women—And Other Women

Before looking around for a new husband, it is always well for a woman to find out how much the judge will allow her on the old one she's trying to trade in.

Fashions in women change almost as rapidly these days as the color of a screen star's hair. Men are becoming as capricious about the styles in girls as women are about the styles in clothes. From glamorous Garbo to seductive Mae West to hoydenish Hepburn—it's "just a season!"

Many a plump, overfed matron envies a jobless working girl the 18-inch waist and slithery hips which have been acquired by trying to subsist on one meal a day and a half-portion of optimism.

* * *

What the average love affair lacks today is a little suspense to sustain the heart interest, a few intermissions between kisses to break the monotony and a surprise somewhere in the plot.

If you want to know why women spend so much time and money in beauty parlors instead of in doing good works, just reflect on what the masculine vote would register in a popularity contest between Queen Victoria and Ninon de L'Enclos.

* * *

A man's weakest moment is when he is feeling convivial and pleased with himself; a woman's weakest moment is when she is feeling lonely and sorry for herself.

It's nice to be open-minded and trustful; but when a shapely girl tells you that she wears those red-white-and-blue shorts "for comfort" or a handsome bachelor declares that he is marrying a wealthy widow "for love," your credulity is inclined to shrink like a cheap bathing-suit.

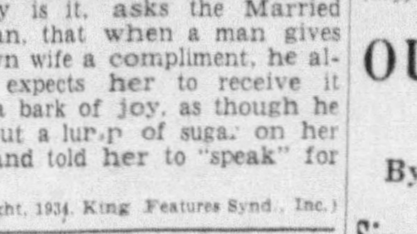
At a summer resort, a man's love-technique is very simple. It consists merely in getting the nerve to tell the girl that she has the luck to be the next temporary heart-throb on his list.



Why is it, asks the Married Woman, that when a man gives his own wife a compliment, he always expects her to receive it with a bark of joy, as though he had put a lump of sugar on her nose and told her to "speak" for it?

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

These Russians sure believe in mass production. Just come from the race meet and they had 36 races. They run the Soviet Derby today. All the horses belong to the government but are raised and entered by different parts of the army and the collective farms, half of 'em running and half trotting races.

When the trotters come out old David Harum wanted to come down and take over the ribbons. Tomorrow I am trying out Russia's commercial aviation, flying down through the Ukraine and Caucasus to the Black Sea.

My life cannot now be
The same as ere I knew
The flash of white sails thrusting up
Beyond the rim of blue.

An added joy I hold
Which will not slip away,
Since I have heard old oceans song,
Have seen its wind-tossed spray.

Siroccos, fierce and swift,
May sear this inland place;
Yet I have but to close my eyes
To feel the seas embrace.

And as my narrow walls
Press close and stifle me,
I can escape when I recall
The seas infinity.

Something has come to bless
My once unquiet breast
Since I have known the restless sea,
I have found peace and rest.

American Merchant Marine Is Threatened

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IT will be a sorry day for the American merchant marine if the internationalists around the President persuade him to enter an international conference for the limitation and reduction of merchant shipping for which the British Board of Trade is calling.

The purpose of such a conference, as the British ship owners and their representatives in the government admit, would be threefold:

First, to limit or abolish altogether government aid to shipping.

Second, to restore what the British term "equilibrium" in the shipping trade by adjusting the supply of tonnage to what the British believe are actual world requirements.

Third, to adopt any other measures that in the estimation of such a conference would restore the shipping industry to its former condition of prosperity.

Today the United States stands second to Great Britain as a trading nation, but American ships are carrying only one-third of American trade. British ships are carrying one-third and other foreign flag ships are carrying the remaining third.

British Would Limit America's Share

WHAT the British appear to object to is the policy established by the American Congress to build up our merchant marine until American ships carry the greater part of our foreign trade. The British would prefer to maintain the status quo and continue to carry one-third of our trade in their own ships and to see their allies carry another third of our trade in their ships, thus limiting American ships to one-third of America's trade.

Nor is the United States the aggressor in the matter of overbuilding which the British Board of Trade would have the world believe. The records show that since 1921, 2,399 ships having a total tonnage of sixteen million, two hundred and eighty-eight thousand gross tons have been built by Great Britain and the other chief maritime powers, including the United States.

One thousand and seventy of these ships, of seven million one hundred and sixty-five thousand tons, have been built by the Br[itish].

Only one hundred and thir[...] ships were built by the U[nited] States during the same period [...] one million, one hundred th[ou]sand tons.

In other words during [...] since 1921 the British have [...] 44 per cent of the total new [con]struction throughout the w[orld] and the United States has [...] less than seven per cent of [the] total.

Many American Ships Scrapped

NOR is that the whole story. [In] the period when the Brit[ish] were building 1,070 ships th[ey] helped to increase the mercha[nt] shipping of Japan, Greece, Ita[ly] and other foreign competitors [of] the United States by selling [...] them four million, seven hundr[ed] thousand tons of merchant ship[ping] while the United States reduc[ed] the world's total by scrappi[ng] three million tons of ships, ma[ny] of which were far from being o[b]solete.

In view of these figures [it is] hard to see on what ground [the] British Board of Trade can as[sert] that the United States is [...] largely to blame for the over[pro]duction of merchant shipping.

The truth is that the Br[itish] Board of Trade sees other na[tions] led by the United States build[ing] up their own merchant mari[nes] and thereby challenging Briti[sh] domination of the world's tra[de]. By getting the United States a[nd] her other competitors into a [con]ference to abolish or limit [gov]ernmental aid to shipping, [the] British hope to stop the expa[n]sion of the American mercha[nt] marine before it attains t[he] strength fixed by the Americ[an] Congress—a merchant mari[ne] large enough to carry the great[er] part of American trade in Ame[r]ican ships.

Every time the United Sta[tes] enters an international conf[er]ence, whether on economic or d[e]fense affairs, the American peo[ple] know from long experience th[at] they lose.

To enter a British organized conference to limit federal aid to American shipping would seem to be the most foolish move that the Roosevelt administration could now make in the world of foreign affairs.

Saratoga, Famous Racetrack Town, Is Much Changed, Wit[h] Touts Now Drinking Orange Juice and Matrons Cocktail[s]

By Edwin C. Hill

OFF and on, for many years, I have known Dead-Pan Louie as one profitably engaged in jughandled enterprise around racetracks—some of it mildly felonious, as I have been led to believe by Louie himself. There seems to be little hazard in his ventures, as he is always in funds, always expensively and fashionably tailored, always with a loose string on his fat bankroll.

Between manicures, he could be found in any of the better appointed bars, bland and munificent, contemptuous of small change. He was an epicure, too, ordering fastidiously but with careless grandeur in restaurants where such unconcern would have been ruinous to the common man.

At Saratoga I saw Louie on the street, with three others like him—nice shark skin suits, Malacca sticks, seemly haberdashery, all freshly massaged and fit as a quarter horse, and conversing inscrutably out of one side of the mouth about somebody "taking it on the lam when this guy gives the sap a tumble about the ringer," and "Skeets figures he'd have to take the rap"—and so on.

Found Ordering Orange Juice

I WAS about to hail Louie when the four of them turned into an open door. It was the Janice Meredith Colonial Tea Shoppe, done up with chintz and doilies and boquets of zinnias. I followed them in. They were ordering orange juice and toasted cheese sandwiches.

I wandered out in a daze, and, chasing the will-o-the-wisp of an idea, hastened to the old basement bar of the United States Hotel, where, in days long gone Louie had gloried and drunk deep. Hopped up for its brief summer run, the old hotel—grandiose, liverish-colored hang-over from the Gen. Grant days—has reopened the old bar, just as it used to be, soaped mirrors, Lime Kiln prints and all.

There wasn't a racy-looking gent in the place. Rather, there was a bevy of middle-aged women, some of whom, at great labor and expense, I definitely and positively identified as Montclair and Ma[m]aroneck matrons. They w[ere] drinking cocktails and talking track lingo quite unintelligible [to] these untutored ears.

And so it was all around to[wn] as I pursued my researches. T[he] "hard guys" played the fetch[ing] little tea shoppes and the d[...] kitchens, and the women who [in] Tod Sloan's day would have be[en] going to Browning clubs were [...]ting the hard stuff and calling [the] bartender by his first name. Wh[at] drove out the other from his a[c]customed haunts? Perhaps no[th]ing short of another federal s[ur]vey could settle that, but the f[act] is that things around this lov[ely] old track, with the placid swa[ns] still there in the lake, are getti[ng] as mixed-up as a bowl of ch[op] suey.

Changes Seen At Saratoga

THE old town has changed. Wealthy owners used to come up for the summer, open up one of those stately old mansions on the road to the track, bring a string of driving and riding horses, as well as race horses, stage big doings at the stupendous old hotels, and, altogether, kick up an excitement and a fanfare long to be remembered. The mansions are boarding houses now, and the only horses on the streets are the bony hacks which drag the moth-eaten old phaetons to the track—at two bits a drag. The yo[ung] sports who have inherited th[eir] parental racing strings zip up to the track in an airplane, see th[e] races and fly back to New Yo[rk] in time for dinner.

Around the road houses, of au[]thentic Hollywood Spanish tra[di]tion, one so inclined can get [...] play in roulette, keno, poli[cy], Klondyke, craps, tit-tat-toe [and] competitive fly-swatting, but [the] take has been pretty light. Som[e]how the holiday crowds seem [to] be cutting their eye-teeth.

But, with all this, anyone [who] loves a good horse race, u[nder] honest management in one o[f the] grandest old tracks in the w[orld], can't go wrong in Saratoga.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You may be down, but don't admit it, even to yourself.

It is more important to fight against a conviction that you are down and out than to endeavor to hide the fact from others.

To doubt yourself means that you are lost so far as your general usefulness is concerned.

If you have ever taken part in athletic contests, you know the value of not giving up.

Many races are won by a contestant who is more nearly exhausted than some of those over whom he is victorious.

The losers too easily allowed themselves to be convinced that they had reached the limit of their endurance and so failed to draw upon reserve energy.

In contests in which you have participated you know you became tired long before the finish was reached.

WISE WORDS

Criticism, as first introduced [by] Aristotle, was meant as a standa[rd] of judging well.

Do what thou dost as if t[he] stake were heaven,
And that thy last deed ere t[he] judgment day.—Kingsley.

As cloud on clouds, snow [on] snow, as the bird on air, as t[he] planet rests in space in its fli[ght], so do nations of men and th[eir] institutions rest on thoughts.
